Quite the contrary is true. He is, for example, a former Missouri Valley conference championship sprinter; he has for some years been known to Drake Relays audiences as the "man on the mike" or the "Voice of the Drake Relays."

He has written extensively on sports and other subjects for an impressive number of big-time publications; and he is author of the popular sports page feature, "You Be the Quarterback," which is published by more than 100 daily newspapers and credited to a "big name" coach of the vicinity.

He has been a member of the Drake faculty since 1950, worked as a sports broadcaster in Kansas City and several other cities, and last fall in Esquire magazine's Back-to-College edition was one of 33 popular and highly respected educators accorded the title of "Super-Prof".

It can almost go without saying that he is a scintillating speaker, with a great fund of stories. He harbors a particular interest in Belmond since Drake was so fortunate as to acquire Bobby Misner's skills as a football star.

Coaches Ted Besch and Don Jones will present Honor B's to the boys who lettered in basketball and wrestling, respectively, during the past season; and up-coming prospects in both sports will be introduced by Coaches Chuck Stalker and Jerry Kintzi.

Lions President Bill Walrod says, "This promises to be one of the finest events of its kind every held in Belmond, and we hope that a large crowd of sports fans as well as members of the athletes' families will be present."

Tickets may be purchased as any of the following places: Belmond Independent, Iowa Electric Light and Power office, Thompsen-Keleher Clothiers, Kessler's Pharmacy, Redder's Rexall Drug and Dr. A. M. Larson's dental office.

Joe Ziller dies at age 62 years; funeral Tuesday

Joseph Ziller, 62, a long-time resident of the Belmond vicinity, died last Saturday at Belmond Community hospital. He had been a patient for two weeks, but had suffered for some time from a heart ailment.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at St. Francis Catholic church, Rev. R. A. Ormsy officiating and Fulton Funeral Home in charge. Burial was in St. Francis cemetery. Pallbearers were John Zeiger of Kanawha, Francis Morris, Jack Campbell, James W. Barry, Louis Loth and Jim Payne.

Mr. Ziller farmed for a number of years south of town until retiring in June of 1959 and moving into a home in Belmond. He was born Feb. 27, 1905, at Nenningen, Germany, son of Johanes and Matilda Hanle Ziller.

He emigrated to this country at the age of 19 and first lived in Nebraska. On Feb. 12, 1929, he married Mary Zuehlke at St. Libory, Neb. In 1939 they moved to Belmond.

They were the parents of three children: Lawrence, now farming the place his parents operated for so many years; Lew, who is in the U. S. Army; and Evelyn (Mrs. Allan) Elthon of Fertile. There are nine grandchildren.

Mr. Ziller is survived, in addition to his wife and children, by three brothers living in Germany, Herman, Alfred and Richard; and two sisters, who also remained in Germany, Mrs. Herman (Mary) Klaus and Mrs. Arthur (Lucia) Schmidt.

Also participating in the Play Day, but not present for the picture, were Delores Hauge, Nancy Barkema, Evelyn Basener, Nancy Smith and Linda Aitken.

One new teacher signed—

Cleveland taking Torgerson's job

One new teacher for the 1967-68 school year has been hired by the Belmond school board, three vacancies in the faculty remain to be filled, and the school directors have their fingers crossed in hope that this may remain the size of their hiring problem.

Marian Little of Ames, presently teaching in the Union-Whitten Community school system, has signed a contract to teach junior high English and social studies. She replaces Mrs. Jack Manders, who resigned.

Miss Little has had more than 21 years of teaching experience, but her teaching career was interrupted by a three-year period when she operated a dress shop at Nevada. In the past several years she has taught at Northeast Hamilton (Kamrar), Vinton and Dallas Center, as well as Union-Whitten.

She will receive a B. S. degree in education from Drake university at Des Moines this June. She has taken college work at Iowa State university, Black Hills Teachers, State College of Iowa, the University of Colorado and University of Iowa.

One vacancy in the staff that the school directors have found possible to fill from within the staff is that being left by the resignation of Jerald Togerson to accept a counseling position at North Iowa Area Community college, Mason City. He will be succeeded by Donald Cleveland, junior high science teacher and coach, who this summer will complete work on a Master's degree in counseling at Northeast Missouri State Teachers college, Kirksville.

Mr. Cleveland has been a popular teacher since joining the faculty here after graduation from Simpson college, Indianola, where he received his B. A. degree in 1961. Board President Ed Gabrielson says the directors considered themselves fortunate to find a man of Don's capabilities ready at hand to occupy the vacancy.

Glen Losen has announced his resignation as high school mathematics instructor. He hopes to obtain a teaching position in a larger school system, but has not yet signed a contract. His place on the high school faculty will be filled by Don Jones, who in addition to coaching wrestling has been 8th grade and freshman mathematics teacher.

In addition to the junior high mathematics and science vacancies, the board has one high school position as teacher of English to fill. This was left by the resignation of Fern Robinson.

At a recent meeting, the school board purchased a Chevrolet truck chassis from McLaughlin Brothers, Inc., for $2,614.55 and a 60-passenger Superior bus body to go on it that was bought from Hawkeye Equipment company of Des Moines for $4,200. This will be used as a squad bus for athletic events, in addition to regular route use.

Pork Producers prove pessimistic predictors

Wright county's hog-raisers turned out to be a bunch of pessimists in registering guesses on what they expected the bottom price on top butcher animals would be for the period of April 1, 1966, to Feb. 1, 1967.

Their guesses were made at the annual banquet of the Wright County Pork Producers asociation a year ago at Eagle Grove and the winners were identified at the dinner meeting for 1967 held Wednesday evening of last week at Belmond Community High school.

Extension Director Bob Bernhardt, in announcing the '66-67 winners, noted that the hog men and others attending last year's banquet just couldn't believe that hog prices were destined to continue as high during the 10-month marketing period as turned out to be the case.

Four guessers hit one of the two dates (Nov. 10 and 14) on which the lowest figure was reached, but the price on those dates was a good deal higher than they'd expected. Dr. Jack Stoakes, Goldfield veterinarian, came the closest to the $21 that turned out to be the bottom price on the Chicago market.

He predicted a low price of $18.90 — which was higher than any of the other three who guessed either Nov. 10 or 14 as the date when the low level would be reached. All the other winners picked Nov. 10, Delmer Voss of Eagle Grove guessing $18.75 as the price; Lawrence Evans of Dows, $18.00; and George Boyington of Clarion, a lowly $16.40.

Dr. Stoakes got a credit slip good for a pigskin hat at Thompsen-Keleher Clothiers. Each of the other men was presented with a canned ham.

Guesses were turned in a year ago by 241 men attending the annual banquet. The average of their guesses was $18.91, or $2.09 short of the correct price of $21. Most pessimistic of all who registered guesses was the gentleman who put down $14. One optimist was so starry-eyed over what the hog market had been running that he predicted the price would not fall below $32.25.

The actual price was obtained from Dallas McGinnis of the Iowa State University Marketing Service, as is the yearly custom.

It was the first time in a number of years that the market dipped to its season's low so late in the year. In each of the three preceding years, April had supplied the lowest price of the period: 1965 — April 15, $18.25; 1964 — 1 and 7, $15.00; and 1963 — April 8, $14.35. In 1962 the market bottom was reached on May 8 and 10, when the price was $16.25.

Guesses were made again last week for the period extending from April 1 of this year to Feb. 1 of next year.

Jim Kleen, some years ago instructor of an adult education vo-ag class here for farmers of this area was one of two chefs from the Farmbest corporation of Denison who prepared the smoked loin of pork that was piece de resistance of the meal served to more than 600 diners in the BHS gymnasium. Other arrangements for the meal were in the hands of the Belmond Jaycees and Jaycee-Ettes.

Verne Christensen of Eagle Grove, president of the Pork Producers association, served as master-of-ceremonies for the after-dinner program in Luick Memorial Auditorium.

After a greeting from Mayor Robert Misner, Mr. Christensen introduced Deanna Young of Clarion, who related some of her experiences while reigning during the past year as National Pork Queen. Currently a student in psychology at Iowa State university, Ames, she told of her participation in the district, state and national Queen contests and about some of her duties since receiving the national crown.

Dale Williams, assistant extension editor for radio station WOI at Ames and the "Holy cow!" man of Iowa State university football game broadcasts, was the featured speaker. He entertained the audience with a host of stories and an interesting preview of what lies ahead for the farming industry.

Annual financial report of the pork association was presented by Bob Cullinan, the treasurer.

Votes were cast to fill the directorships of the northwest and southwest districts of Wright county on the board of the association. In each case the incumbent director was re-elected, Jim Knight of Goldfield and Mr. Christensen, the 1966-67 president.

Extra pay to faculty men given school board okay

Another $3,300 was tacked onto teaching salaries for the 1966-67 school year by the board of education last week with a decision to pay male members of the staff — excepting administrators — $150 each for such after-school hours as they put in on school activities.

These duties will include taking tickets at athletic events, chaperoning activity buses and dances, serving as game timekeepers and scorekeepers, and other assignments of like nature.

Pay has never been given for such duties in the past, and they have been shared by women of the faculty. But the married male teachers were in prospect of losing $150 annually from their former pay scale (except those with wives teaching in the school system) due to restrictions of the federal fair employment act, which forbids higher pay for men than women employed in similar work.

Women on the faculty, according to Supt. Don Faris, expressed a willingness to be exempted from these after-school duties. The school directors believe that under the circumstances the men may be given additional pay for the school-connected work without this being in violation of the fair employment practices act.

Assuming that any male teachers who might resign from the present faculty will be replaced by men, 22 would receive the extra $150 stipend next year. This is four more than were getting the $150 bonus this year, as male teachers, because that number were ineligible for it because of being single or having a wife teaching in the system.

By continuing, in effect, the $150 differential for male teachers, the added faculty cost for next year will be brought to nearly $50,000 more than the teaching expense for the current year — $49,310, to be exact. Faculty raises approved earlier by the board had increased the 1967-68 budget by $46,010.

Basketball double-header Monday; proceeds to go into library fund

People of the Alexander community and area adjoining will be offered some "different" entertainment next Monday night, with the hope that the fund for the Alexander library will benefit by a generous number of dollars from the proceeds.

A double-header basketball program will be presented at the school gymnasium starting at 7:30 o'clock, which Rex Aldinger, president of the sponsoring Alexander Community club, promises will provide a lot of fun.

In the first game, men of the Community club will be opposed by a team comprised of members of the Alexander Women's Federated club. Mayor "Dead-eye" Orville Arends will play center for the men. And Dave "Hot-Shot" Pastour will endeavor to ressurect skills that won him all-state forward honors a few years ago (well, QUITE a few — like back in 1934).

The women have an ace of their own up their sleeve, for they will import a pro basketeer, Connie Kearns, to add zing to their lineup.

In the feature game, Eldon Schulte's All-Stars will take on the Belmond Independents. Some really fine basketball is in prospect when those two outfits go at it, Mr. Aldinger predicts.

Admission will be 50 cents per person; or just like the drive-in movies on Buck Night, an entire family can witness the proceedings for one dollar.

Something like $500 is still needed to wipe out the deficit that stands against the new $40,000 library; and the Community club hopes Monday's benefit will knock a good-sized chunk off of that deficit.

TO THE EDITOR

A little over one year ago, you, the people of Belmond worked very hard and sacrificed to raise the money to secure the location which is now Triggs Mfg. Co. so I would move our families and men to your town

After tonight at the council meeting I wonder why.

We stepped out on faith and moved our families and our business to a new home. We were excited and happy to have found a city with what we considered the friendliest people any where, because we all know that a city is not bricks and lumber and ground — but people

We accepted the help of these friendly and good people with the understanding that their friendliness and help would be repaid in full. This first year in this community has been a good one and we have begun to repay that debt to these good friends. And as this year has progressed we have felt these friendships grow.

We have employed 15 to 25 men all year to help this community as a whole to grow. We have stepped out in good faith and put our roots down in homes here.

But now, we feel threatened and we feel this whole city is being threatened by allowing a service — not an industry — to come in which will pollute the river and pollute the air. We understand there will be three men living in this town employed there.

We have voiced our objection also because it will be about four blocks from our plant. In answer to our objection we have had several people tell us if we don't like it to just get out. We have also had a great many tell us they do not want the rendering plant in Belmond any more than we do and they certainly do not want us to move.

We attended the hearing at the city hall and voiced our feelings on this matter. We met with overwhelming approval. We had actual pictures to show the conditions we are faced with and the men representing this plant could not assure us that it would be any better here. They simply said we could get used to the smell.

In spite of all this we are still faced with the threat of this rendering station coming in. How many of you would like to live beside a dead-animal receiving station? How many of you want to smell that ungodly odor each time you step out of your door? Are you prepared to keep your windows closed tight on those days when the wind is from the north? Or do you actually believe you can get used to such a stench.

Are you ready to accept devaluation on your homes just recently built because a few men believe this dead-animal station is going to bring in a few tax dollars? Believe me, you are all going to lose if you allow this to be built.

Now, I am going to talk directly to the Belmond Industries Directors. Would you be willing to have such a dead animal station within four or five blocks of your home? Of course not. Then why make us live in the slum district! We don't have to and won't.

Have we been mistaken about the people in Belmond? Are you really more interested in the Holy Dollar than the good of all the people of Belmond?

Now, if after all of this you would still rather have this dead-animal station instead of Triggs Mfg. Co., the choice will have to be yours because it will be one or the other. Please let me know so I may plan.

A person we were talking to last week declared this to be the case. And since we've harbored some doubts as to the susceptibility of some of our state lawmakers to the blandishments of professional lobbyists, we're a little more than ever inclined to wonder.

What this fellow had to tell us was, a few free drinks seem to be a pretty persuasive argument in favor of a bill that has no special pertinence to a particular legislator's district or constituency. No apparent direct pertinence, that is.

This particular gentleman has had occasion to do ax-grinding both in the national capital and at Des Moines.

He says, "In Washington, if you pop for a couple of bourbons, throw your arm around a Congressman's shoulders and invite his support for a bill you're pushing, he'll give you a pleasant smile — and promise absolutely NOTHING."

"But it's different, down at Des Moines," he says. "You toss a couple of drinks into one of the boys down there, and if the bill you're backing is one he has no direct commitments on he doesn't hesitate a minute in promising his vote."

That's a pretty broad accusation. We hate to believe that bottle goods — or a free dinner — could actually have as much influence on our elected representatives at the statehouse as our informant implied. Implied? Actually, it was just a flat statement.

From our personal acquaintanceship with Senator Hugh Clarke and Rep. Ray Bailey, we're inclined to question seriously if their votes on ANY bills are so readily "for sale".

Whenever we've approached either of them in regard to legislation which we personally favor or oppose, we've found both insistent on knowing the whys and wherefores of our stand. And we get the distinct impression that the presence of a brass rail wouldn't alter their businesslike inquisitiveness.

Of course, all along we've held the conviction that our own two spokesmen in the legislature are a good cut above the average in both ability and integrity. But we'd like to think that the average is a good deal closer to Messrs. Clarke and Bailey than our lobbying friend suggests.

We hereby "sign off" on Interstate 35 jibes

If ever we get lonesome for mail, we always know how we can get some. Just write an editorial commenting on the Interstate 35 routing controversy. We can always count on a reply from our good friend Bob Spiegel, managing editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette.

It's probably the devil in us that prompts us from time to time to rub Bob's fur the wrong way. It's like ringing the phone and expecting an answer if there's anybody at home; except, we KNOW Bob's going to be there.

He has called to our attention, since our latest I-35 essay a couple of weeks ago, that the ORIGINAL proposed routing through this area was parallel to Highway 65, NOT along Highway 69. We know this to be the case. But to the best of our knowledge, this proposal never got to the public hearing stage.

The Highway 69 parallel DID get to the point of public hearings (we attended a couple) and to our recollection was nearing the further point of being an accepted plan until Mason City objected so strenuously as to get the U. S. Bureau of Roads to quash the Highway 69 routing. In a large majority of cases, by the time a routing proposal becomes the subject of hearings, it's "all over but the shouting". (And not much attention is usually paid to the shouting.)

Bob writes, "We did not disregard 'any hardships.' We worked hard for squaring off at Highway 20 . . . but were stopped cold by the road-user benefits that MUST be considered in routing interstate highways." To which we can only say that the Iowa state highway commission seemed to regard the Highway 69 parallel had a sound case as to road-user benefits when it was planning to follow THAT route.

Our Mason City confrere gets to the nub of the matter when he says, "The Highway 69 route was rejected because it did not do what the federal highway act requires — connecting populationa and economic centers."

But let's face it, Bob. The rejection came about because one relatively small population and economic center squealed like a hog with its tail caught in a gate.

We don't blame Mason City for being both happy with its accomplishment and a bit proud of its achievement of emitting so loud a squeal that it was heard all the way to Washington, D. C. Wails from the grassroots are most likely to languish on the prairie air long before they get as far east as Peoria.

For Bob's peace of mind, we might say that we are sufficiently indifferent to the whole ball of wax that it's unlikely we'll again be so bereft of editorial ideas as to brandish our lance on I-35 any further. We remain unconvinced that pristine logic was the primary consideration in the routing switch; but since Bob is uncomfortable with us on his back, we propose to relieve him by getting off.

Seeking new aircraft designs—with paper planes!

Talk about "back to the old drawing board"! In these days of cybernetics when the computer is supposed to reign supreme in the field of scientific design, what are they turning to in hope of uncovering revolutionary new concepts for aircraft? Paper airplanes, yet!

Of course, this isn't so silly as it might appear at first glance, for the delta-winged, high-speed test craft that have pushing the speed barrier higher and higher in recent years are a dead ringer for the planes that school boys have been creating out of notebook paper for a couple of generations.

Perhaps that's what inspired Scientific American magazine to conduct not long ago the first international paper aircraft competition. And if you think it was looked upon as just a scientific inch ahead of the more familiar marble tournament, get this! It attracted more than 10,940 entries! And NOT just kids, either.

There must surely have been duplicates. It's hard to believe there are THAT many ways to fold a piece of paper. Size, of course, entered heavily into the variety of entries. They ranged from 11 feet in length down to one teensy that measured .08 by .00003 of an inch in dimension. The latter must have put to a stern test of the vision of the distinguished panel of judges who picked the winners.

Appropriately, the finals were conducted at the Hall of Science, Flushing Meadow, N. Y. And if you think the competition was some sort of a gag on the part of the sponsoring journal, take a look at the judges' credentials: two were airplane pilots, two professors, one a soaring champion, another a skydiving champion, plus a kite expert and (how'd he get in there?) a philosopher.

The paper craft were judged on duration aloft, distance flown, acrobatics and origami. . . . Origami? . . . That's "paper folding".

Goodness knows what we may be seeing overhead a few years from now, if the aeronautical laboratories can figure how to adapt origami to plexiglass and metal.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

I think the thing of most interest in the legislature this past week concerned the memorandum released by the ways and means committee to the Senate. For some time, at least six weeks, the Senate majority leadership has been telling us that they would bring out a personal property tax relief bill that would not shift the burden of this relief to real estate property.

The ways and means committee of the Senate, realizing the need for tax reform and also realizing that the increasing costs of local government can no longer be supported by the property tax, has adopted the follow policy as a means of preparing a bill which will bring about long overdue property tax relief.

The guidelines to be followed are:

1. CONSIDER BROADENING the tax base in the area of property, real and personal, including intangibles and a review of all exemptions.

2. Establish a percentage ceiling limiting the amount to be levied on real and personal property for the operation of governmental subdivisions.

3. Provide for an alternate source of revenue for financing governmental subdivisions with particular emphasis on the income tax.

The mechanics of getting this job done will take some time and it will probably be toward the latter part of the 62nd General Assembly that a bill embodying these guidelines will be in a form that can be acted upon.

TO IRON OUT THE DIFFERENT reapportionment views held by the House and the Senate, a conference committee was set up. I think it is fair to say that members of both the House and the Senate thought that for the best interest of the people of Iowa that a just decision must be reached this session on the matter of reapportionment.

Certainly I, and most members, wanted the opportunity to indicate our position on reapportionment and because both political parties wanted to establish a reference which could be used as a guideline for future action effecting legislative reapportionment, the members of the Senate and House agreed to support the passing of the 1965 permanent apportionment plan and to pass for the first time a Constitutional amendment requiring the mandatory creation of single-member legislative districts.

THEY ALSO AGREED TO LEND their support to the 1965 permanent apportionment plan when it is submitted to the people for ratification in the 1968 election.

The resolution also bound those individuals voting affirmative to support the second passage of the proposed Constitutional amendment requiring single-member districts when it is submitted to the people for ratification in the 1969 election.

The last point in the resolution provided that for the 1968 election only, a commission shall be created to submit a plan, before adjournment of the 62nd General Assembly, which will sub-divide the multi-member districts into single-member districts and this to be done based on the legislature's present size and preserving current terms.

With this whirlwind of activity, the Senate adjourned for Easter recess. It will be nice to get away from the hubbub of the metropolitan living for a week and get amongst old friends before convening March 27.

A Happy Easter to All

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

PALMER NOT CONFIRMED—
As the Iowa legislature reached the mid-way point (spring recess), it found itself embroiled in a controversy over the appointment by Gov. Hughes of Dr. David Palmer, Davenport businessman, to the state board of regents. The Senate refused to confirm Palmer; he was shy six votes.

It takes 41 votes to be confirmed, a two-thirds majority. The vote was 35 to 24. A motion was immediately filed, following the vote, to reconsider the vote. This motion can be taken up at any time.

MEMBERS OF THE IOWA Medical Society had opposed Palmer's appointment. They charged that Palmer has a "conflict of interest which disqualifies him" for appointment to the board of regents.

Palmer is president of the Palmer School of Chiropractic at Davenport and president of the Palmer Broadcasting company, which operates radio and television stations in Des Moines and Davenport.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS—
In other action, the Senate confirmed the appointments of the Rev. Carl S. Sinning, Manning Presbyterian minister and a Republican, to the Iowa liquor control commission; and Dale Parkins, Urbandale Democrat, to a third term as state labor commissioner.

GLASSES BILL BLOCKED—
A bill which would prohibit any reference to price in the advertising of prescription eyeglasses has failed to clear a hurdle in the Iowa House. The bill, which has been passed by the Senate, was voted down in the House judiciary committee, 12 to 9. However, the bill still may be called up for another vote in the House committee. If the committee approves it, then the bill goes to the House floor for debate.

DST REPEAL DUMPED—
One of the most controversial issues in recent legislative sessions is daylight saving time. This general assembly is no exception, as thousands of letters have been written to legislators on this subject — pro and con.

In a surprise move, and with little debate, the House has disposed of a bill to repeal daylight saving time. The bill drew only 47 votes and needed 63 for passage. There were 70 votes against it. The bill called for repeal of the law enacted two years ago which put Iowa on daylight time starting on Memorial Day through Labor Day.

WHEN CONGRESS PASSED A uniform time law in 1966, Iowa was forced to observe the federal statute which provides that any state having daylight time must observe "fast time" from the last Sunday in April through the last Sunday in October.

The effect of the bill before the House would have been only to repeal the Iowa daylight saving time law. Then, the legislature would have had to pass a second bill exempting Iowa from observing the federal uniform "fast time" law.

TRUCK BILL TO HUGHES—
There's been a running debate in the Iowa legislature as to whether the length of double-bottom trucks should be extended from 60 to 65 feet. The House took action on the bill first, passing it 70 to 50. Then the Senate approved it 32 to 24.

Gov. Hughes said he has some concern over the measure but doesn't know whether his concern is great enough to send the bill back to the legislature by veto.

TO BAR OBSCENE CALLS—
The Iowa Commerce Commission reports that each month there are several thousand obscene and threatening telephone calls made in Iowa. This fact was revealed as the House debated a bill dealing with obscene telephone calls.

The lower chamber, by a vote of 106 to 8, passed the measure which sets a fine of $500 and a jail sentence of up to one year for anyone convicted of using a telephone to "terrify, intimidate, threaten, harrass, and annoy or offend" another person.

Representative Joan Lipsky, Cedar Rapids Republican, sought unsuccessfully to amend the bill to require telephone companies to install equipment to trace obscene calls.

WHEEL TAX PROPOSED—
The Iowa Good Roads association is plugging for a $5 tax on all motor vehicles registered in the state. This tax would be in addition to registration fees. The money would be collected each year by county treasurers and turned in to the state treasurer, who would reallocate the money to cities and counties on the basis of the number of vehicles registered.

DIAGONAL ROAD DEBATE—
The House committee on roads and highways has voted out a bill, for debate on the house floor, which would limit the length of diagonal highways to distances of no more than five miles at angles less than 45 degrees on rural level land areas. The bill stems from a dispute in north central Iowa over the diagonal portion of Interstate 35 near the Clear Lake-Mason City area.

BUS BILL TO DIE?—
It appears doubtful that a House committee will approve a bill to allow private school pupils to ride on public school buses. The measure, which passed the Senate 35 to 26, has been assigned to the schools committee in the House. The chairman of that committee, Keith Vetter, Washington Republican, has predicted that the bill will die in committee.

WOI-TV TARGET OF BILL—
State Senator William Reichardt, Des Moines Democrat, has introduced a bill which would prohibit any state university from operating any bookstore or commercial television station.

Reichardt admitted the bill was aimed at WOI-TV at Ames, which is operated by Iowa State university. The university's financial reports for 1966 list a book store profit of $177,000 and a profit on WOI-TV of $191,000.

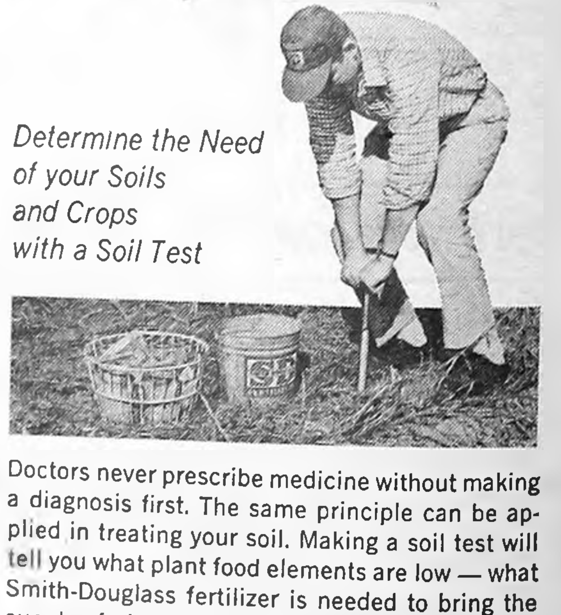
SERVICE

Determine the Need of your Soils and Crops with a Soil Test



Doctors never prescribe medicine without making a diagnosis first. The same principle can be applied in treating your soil. Making a soil test will tell you what plant food elements are low — what Smith-Douglass fertilizer is needed to bring the supply of plant food into proper balance for high crop yields.

We are ready to assist you with a soil test, and make recommendations which will enable you to apply Smith-Douglass fertilizer economically, to produce more profitable crops.

For pregnant school girls—

Fort Dodge school answers need

A facility has been established at Fort Dodge which local school authorities hope will not be extensively needed by Belmond High school girls, but which they are gratified to have available. It is a special school for pregnant school girls, either married or unmarried, who might otherwise fail to complete their high school educations.

At this special school, the young mothers-to-be are also provided medical care, hospitalization and skilled counseling. Federal funds granted the Iowa Children's Home Society made possible the project's establishment and it is supervised by the state department of public instruction.

Located at 216 North 15th street in Fort Dodge, the "school" has no regular classrooms as studies are carried on by means of correspondence courses offered by the University of Nebraska. But the students have an opportunity to associate together and thereby come to realize that their predicament is far from unique and need not be the ruination of their lives.

Since the facility opened in September of 1965, it has had an average of a dozen girls in attendance. More than two dozen have utilized its services.

The school was established because such a large majority of Iowa high school girls have, in the past, found an unwanted pregnancy signalling the end of their education.

Even though they are ordinarily allowed to return to their high schools after birth of the baby, a large per cent were discouraged by the time missed from classes and other factors and simply quit school permanently.

In all of the state during 1963-64, there were 562 girls who dropped out of school after becoming pregnant. A considerable number became permanent drop-outs for lack of opportunity to continue their educational programs during pregnancy. That is where the Fort Dodge school is considered to fill such a very great need.

Students enter the program through referrals by school counselors, parents, social agencies, physicians, or others performing educational, social or medical services to young people. Referrals cannot, under any circumstances, be made except with the student's knowledge and consent.

A full-time teacher-coordinator supervises all course work. In addition to academic courses, a non-credit course in pre-natal and infant care is provided.

Educators throughout Iowa are watching the Fort Dodge program with great interest, hoping it will point the way to the solution to one of the most delicate and difficult problems in education today. The school mainly serves the immediate area around Fort Dodge, including Wright county.

Contacts with the school are made through Mrs. Beth Woods, director of family and children's services for the Iowa Children's Home Society, 604 State Bank Bldg., Fort Dodge.

It is planned that establishment of a number of schools similar to that at Fort Dodge be undertaken in the not distant future. At such time as one may be set up at Mason City, as is now tentatively planned, it would provide services for girls of the Belmond area.

Eight-year composite shows—

Broncos continue NIC domination

SPORTS

Although Belmond High's basketeers experienced one of their poorer seasons in North Iowa conference cage play during the 1966-67 campaign, BHS athletes easily maintained their position of predominance as an NIC sports power.

Athletic Director Jack Steinberg has come up with his annual composite won-lost records for loop schools since Osage joined the conference with the start of the 1959-60 basketball season, showing Belmond far in the van where margin of victories over defeats is concerned.

The current year saw the Broncs add seven football wins and nine victories against five defeats in basketball to bring their over-all record for "the Osage era" in the NIC up to 138 wins, 42 losses and two ties.

Of the other seven teams in the league, only Buffalo Center is on the plus side for the same period of time. The Bison — with a 6-1 gridiron mark and 12-2 in basketball — boosted their over-all record to 99-81,2. Forest City, gaining a five-victory margin on a 3-4 football campaign followed by a 10-4 cage season, pulled its composite record up to the break-even point at 89-89-3.

A year ago, Garner stood 2nd in the conference for the seven years of Osage's membership with an 84-75-2 record. But the Cardinals were blanked 0-7 in football and won only four out of 14 basketball games and now are on the losing end, 88-92-2.

Here are the eight-year comparisons for all of the NIC schools:

Forest City	89	89	3
Garner	88	92	2
Northwood	86	92	4
Britt	79	100	2
Lake Mills	76	105	1
Osage	63	117	2

Lake Mills made the biggest improvement in its standing during the '66-67 year, except for Buffalo Center — and the BHS athletes' 16-5 gain, with a 5-2 gridiron season and 10-4 cage mark, but was unable to pull out of its next-to-last position.

Belmond tops the conference in both football and basketball composites. Only Buffalo Center, besides the Broncos, has an upper-division position in both sports. The Bison rank 3rd as to basketball wins and losses and 4th in football.

Records in these sports since the conference became a eight-team league are (football and basketball in that order):

	W	L	T	W	L
Belmond	46	8	2	92	34
B. C.	27	27	2	72	54
F. C.	25	28	3	64	61
Garner	15	39	2	73	53
Northwood	15	37	4	86	92
Britt	40	14	2	39	86
L. M.	19	36	1	57	69
Osage	28	26	2	35	91

In the eight-season span, Belmond has won four outright football titles and Britt three, while the Broncs and Eagles shared the other one with Osage. Basketball honors have been only a little better divided. Belmond, Buffalo Center and Garner have each claimed two exclusive championships and Northwood one, while the 8th crown was shared by Northwood and Buffalo Center. Where the Broncos have gained an over-all edge here lies in the fact that the Broncos in this time have never had a losing season. Seven-seven splits in '58-59 and '61-62 were the worst Belmond has finished.

In track, Belmond superiority has been even greater than in the other two major sports. The Broncos have won six of the eight loop crowns since Osage has been a contender and have never finished worse than second. Osage took the '59 title and Garner was winner in '64. It is noteworthy that since the Imps' first year in the NIC, when they shared the football championship and took the track title, Osage has been unable to come out first in any of the three sports.

Five times, Osage has finished as runner-up in the NIC track meet and has never placed worse than fourth. Garner has been runner-up once and four times finished third.

Belmond's aggregate score for the eight track meets comes to 629 points, Osage's to 467 and Garner's, 393. From there on, the school totals fall off abruptly. Britt has chalked up 236 points in the eight meets, Buffalo Center 230, Forest City 214, Northwood 154 and Lake Mills 128.

Last season's track meet was the most hotly contested of any in the series, Belmond edging Osage by only five points — 70-65 — while the other teams were relatively well bunched, as follows: Garner 46, Lake Mills 34, Forest City 26, Britt 22, Buffalo Center 22 and Northwood 12.

Point hopes dim for state indoor

In last year's Class A state indoor track meet at Iowa City, Paul Laaveg kept alive the long string of indoor state events in which Belmond High has escaped a blanking. Coach Chuck Stalker is not optimistic, though, about the Broncos breaking into the scoring column when the '67 Class A indoor meet is held at Iowa City tonight (Thursday).

It was a third place in the 60-yard high hurdles that brought Belmond its three points last spring. No present member of the Bronco squad appears, however, to match Laaveg's competence as a runner.

Belmond's best chance of avoiding a goose egg perhaps lies with Bob Rise in the 50-yard dash, if he can come close to a peak performance.

Coach Stalker will enter either Tim Roberts or Terry Nelson in the high jump; Roberts probably in the broad jump; and either Nelson or Mike Klinefelter in the high hurdles. He also plans an entry in the low hurdles but trials this week were to determine who.

Dallas Steenblock is the likely Bronco representative in the 880 and Stalker thought possibly Klinefelter, Nelson or Rise may be the 440 entry. Either Gary Meyers or Don Havens will carry the BHS colors in the mile run.

Belmond will probably have quartets in both the mile and two-mile relays, but Stalker was uncertain who might comprise the personnel of each until having a chance to judge trial performances this week.

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 43 NO. 27 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Orval Thayer and his wife recently returned from a week's holiday at Sweetwater, Tex., with some Mason City friends (the Bernard McMurrays) which was highlighted by participation in Sweetwater's annual rattlesnake hunt. Orval and Bernard got 16 one day — none the second. Orval says about 3,000 people took part in the rattler festival, the 9th annual.

He and Bernard hired a guide to direct them in their snake search. They nabbed one "lunker" that measured 57 inches, only four shorter than the biggest one captured. Orval brought home four skins and is thinking of making a belt of one of them.

Rattler steaks, deep-fried, were served to the public during the festival. Orval says he partook, but didn't seem to show any particular enthusiasm for the delicacy. The rattlers caught were also milked for their venom, to produce anti-snakebite serum. Forceps were issued to the hunters to grasp their prey, when driven out of caves with raw gasoline fumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Lieuwen last week received a gift package from H. J. Heinz company and a letter of congratulation on attainment of their 57th wedding anniversary on March 27. Heinz uses this "gimmick" to publicize its "57 Varieties" but has, itself, far outstripped in longevity the anniversary celebrants it honors. Heinz has been been in the pickle business (etc.) ever since 1869.

Received a welcome letter from Airman 2/c and Mrs. David Earp, over in England, inspired by the recent story on the Jaycees' Tornado Album. Mrs. Earp is the former Leola Hill, daughter of the Clair Hills of Rowan. She is a 1963 graduate of BHS. Her husband is stationed at Woodbridge AFB and they read regularly the edition of the newspaper for men in uniform, "The Stars and Stripes," that is published in Germany.

The Earps were interested to learn that the album will contain a couple of pages of headlines from papers thither and yon that broke the news of the October disaster. They say the story not only got a big play in "The Stars and Stripes," but was accompanied by pictures.

Though dismayed by the scenes of destruction, David was delighted to recognize Leola's father and brother Cecil among the volunteers who were at work rebuilding the roof on the Methodist parsonage. As The Independent reported at the time, the armed forces newspaper literally carried the story of the tornado around the world. No clipping of any of "The Stars and Stripes" headlines was turned in to the Jaycees, though.

Since the headlines page is the last in the album that will be going to press (today or tomorrow), if anyone local has a copy of the Stars and Stripes headline on the storm it might still be gotten into the album. If you have same, give Don Bancroft a ring at Jobco Printing and let him know — immediately.

If you see somebody toting around a 40-inch golf ball (that's right, three feet and four inches in diameter), it probably doesn't belong to 'em. Clark Holthaus, Clarion peddler of golf supplies, is looking for the Paul Bunyon-sized pellet.

He was parked outside of Ken's supper club at Eagle Grove Saturday before last and had the giant golf ball attached to a carrier a-top his car. When he came out, he found he was the victim of a "lost ball."

Should you spot anyone in possession of a 40-inch ball, you can determine if he's the culprit by asking it it's got his initials on. If it has an inscription reading "All Star Pro Golf Co." — be suspicious. Clark says it cost $80-85.

"Coffee Day" last Friday, sponsored by the Iowa Restaurant association, brought the helpful sum of $55.95 in for the benefit of the Iowa Association for Retarded Children. Four businesses here gave their support to the annual project, the largest return ($27.14) coming from Chapman's cafe. The Mello Maid, Kessler's Pharmacy and the Candy Kitchen also gave a helping hand. This money serves a variety of good purposes in helping unfortunate children and is a very welcome source of annual revenue for the IARC. Of course, the coins come from the restaurants' customers; but the eating places surrender their coffee earnings for the day — which in these coffee-break days is a generous thing to do.

Despite the squishy conditions that prevailed, an estimated 125 tots turned out Sunday morning for Beta Sigma Phi's annual Easter egg hunt. There were a few unfortunate plops into the mud as the tykes raced about the swimming pool grounds, but that didn't seem to dampen the general enthusiasm any.

Finders of the prize eggs among the younger set (kindergarteners and pre-schoolers) were Laurie Kelly, the Omer Kelleys' sprout; Jerry Rath, son of Betty Rath; and Mitch Summers, son of the Bob Summers.

One "lucky" egg planted for the younguns from 1st grade through age eight was found, but not turned in for the prize. It was foil-covered and tied with ribbon; and the prize still awaits its finder. Pat Dorr, son of the Larry Dorrs, and Jay Gabrielson, the Ed Gabrielsons' son, found the other bonus eggs.

20 YEARS' SERVICE on the part of Loran Hadley of Rowan to the Wright county ASC committee was recognized when he received a certificate last week from Hi Vanderlip of Dows, committee chairman. That's James White of Clarion (right), county committee member, looking on at the presentation.

ASC pays honor to Loren Hadley

Loran Hadley of Rowan was honored last week for 20 years of service as a committeeman for the Agricultural Stablization and Conservation service. He has served on the Wright county ASC committee for the past 10 years and first served as a committeeman for Iowa township in 1945.

Mr. Hadley was alternate member on the county committee for many years and assisted in many organizational meetings prior to serving on the county committee. He is currently the vice chairman of the Wright county committee.

Hi Vanderlip of Dows, chairman of the county committee, presented Hadley with his service certificate and a pin during the luncheon held last week in Clarion with county ASC employees in attendance.

Chest council will elect new officers Wednesday

Thanks to the pride the Belmond Lions club and Jaycees showed in the past performances of the Belmond Community Chest, that organization was once again able to meet all of its pledged appropriations this year. If the record of success is to be continued, though, greater communitywide interest in the Chest is going to be needed, predicts President Bruce Schroeder

He reports that very great difficulty has been experienced in finding persons willing to fill offices in the Chest Council, administrative body of the organization. Likewise, scant interest is shown by the general public in the organizational aspects of the Chest.

Next Wednesday at 8:00 p. m. at the city hall the Chest Council will hold its annual election meeting. All council members will be notified in advance by postcard. But Mr. Schroeder hopes that other persons with an interest in the Chest's continuation will also be present. He says:

"We need the cooperation of the entire community if the Chest is to carry on its important function successfully. A few simply cannot carry everyone in fulfilling this civic responsibility."

He adds that the current officers are keenly concerned that the Chest be kept going and will continue to serve, if need be. Nevertheless, they feel that serving in these offices is a responsibility that should be shared.

When the Lions and Jaycees made up a $900 deficit left by the tornado-blighted 1966 fund campaign, the Chest was able to meet its appropriations in full for the 16th consecutive year, an achievement matched by extremely few Community Chests in the state.

"This is a record in which the community should take pride," Mr. Schroeder declares, "and that pride could properly take the form of willingness to take a hand in seeing the record is maintained."

Pair picked up for truck theft

A pair of teenagers giving their home address as Minneapolis were picked up Sunday on suspicion of car theft after a truck they were driving ran out of gas below the south junction of Highways 69 and 3 about 2:00 a. m.

Steven M. Barlow, 18, was taken in custody by Officers Henry and Elmer Gerdes after the youth had made a fruitless trek back to Belmond in an effort to get some gas.

Left in the pickup truck was Allen C. Miles, 17. Both were taken in custody by Deputy Sheriff Bob Shaw. Under questioning, they said they were hitch-hiking to Texas when they found the truck with a key in its ignition at Northwood and decided riding would beat walking.

Sunday afternoon they were taken in charge by the Worth county sheriff to be jailed awaiting hearing on charges of car theft.

MINNESOTA VISITORS

Mr. and Mrs. Junior Kaduce, Carol, Kenny and Kathy of Amboy, Minn., spent Wednesday of last week at the Elwin Wolters home.

Road employees' wages increased

Wright county's board of supervisors last week voted to put a pay raise in affect for all county road employees as of April 1, involving a 30-cent increase in hourly wages.

In addition, the board voted to discontinue the 50-hour week that road workers have been putting in and reduce weekly work to 45 hours. This will eliminate Saturday work, except on such occasions as emergency overtime must be put in.

Regular maintenance men after the first of next month will receive $2.25 an hour, dragline operators (when engaged on that duty) $2.35, 1st mechanics $2.35 and 2nd mechanics $2.30.

All new road maintenance help will start at $2.10 an hour, instead of $180, with an increase to the above wages after six months.

The supervisors also approved 10 days' annual vacation for all employees who have been on the payroll for five years or more, instead of six days. Only work days will be counted as vacation time.

There are 30 county road employees who will benefit by the pay raises. Due to the reduction in weekly hours, the base pay will be only about $3.75 per month over the previous base wages.

Also at this week's meeting, the supervisors designated that the courthouse is to be closed on Saturday mornings, starting the first week in April.

Corporation directors re-elected—

BIDC ends 1st year with $75,000 assets

Second annual meeting of the Belmond Industrial Development corporation was held Tuesday night at the city hall council chambers with 57 of the 84 stockholders either present or represented by proxies. All of the incumbent directors were returned to the board by unanimous vote.

They are Don Bancroft, Phyllis Pals, Larry Flanangan, Duane Anderson, R. W. Courson, Hugh Clarke, Leland Jenison and A. P. Thompsen. Dana Howell was nominated to fill the position left vacant after Dr. A. M. Nelson, one of the original directors, resigned, and was elected with the rest of the slate.

Mr. Flanagan, the secretary, presented a financial statement on the corporation's condition as of March 15. It showed assets amounting to $74,889.21. This included a $23,334.88 representing the balance due under the real estate contract with Triggs Manufacturing company (Triggs had paid two installments during the year, coming to a total of $4,048.46); $18,844.33 cash on deposit; $10 cash on hand; $400 in uncollected pledges; $2,500 as value of real estate owned by BIDC for industrial development; and $29,800 in real estate owned for city development.

Liabilities came to $38,524.92 consisting of: $15,200 real estate mortgage at First State bank for Triggs Manufacturing company; $524.92 in outstanding checks; and $22,800 purchase balance due on real estate.

Surplus covering the difference between assets and liabilities came to $36,364.29, made up as follows: total cash on hand and on deposit $18,329.41; equity in Triggs Manufacturing company site $8,134.88; uncollected pledges $400; real estate owned by BIDC $2,500; equity in real estate for city development $7,000.

Mr. Flanagan's report showed the following income received in storm contributions following the tornado; Central National Bank of Des Moines $1,000; Fort Dodge Town and Country chorus, Lancers and Civic Glee club $873.06; A. Y. McDonald Manufacturing company $250; First State bank of Belmond $15,000; Square Deal Hail Insurance company $100; Merle Morgan, Square Deal president, $25; Darwin Ferguson, Webster City, $25; Mary Lou Everson $25; Bucks for Belmond from peace officers and their associations $7,500; Audubon County American Legion $5; Exira American Legion $5.

Duane Anderson reported that $1,500 was paid to Wright county for approximately 16 acres of land adjoining the former shed location north of town as a potential site of an industrial park. After the shed was destroyed, the land it and its grounds had occupied was received in exchange for an equivalent parcel of land in south Belmond, which was bought for $1,000 from Nelson Gravel company as a new shed site.

Fire Chief R. C. "Bud" Packard told what was being done with a $3,500 contribution pledged by the BIDC from tornado donations toward establishment of a fire departments radio network base station at Clarion. He said the amount was being used as matching funds behind an application for $11,887 in civil defense funds, which — when received — will make possible complete establishment of the proposed network.

He commented that the BIDC grant will also cover equipping the local fire station and trucks to link into the network. Other departments over the county will fiance their own local radio equipment.

R. W. Courson made a report on the trip the directors of BIDC made last year to Central Soya headquarters at Fort Wayne, Ind., as a good will gesture to this industry that in June will be purchasing the former General Mills plant and facilities here. He said the trip cost $661 for the chartering of two planes and entertaining Central Soya executives, but that the board regarded it as a most worthwhile expenditure.

Mrs. Pals told of the negotiations that have taken place with National By-Products for location of a collection station here.

Mr. Flanagan told of land purchases that BIDC has either made or obtained options on with a view to city development. The properties would be used for municipal parking lots or other purposes allied to city development.

The Fred Allison property in the 200 block of First street SE was bought at a price of $4,650. In addition, payments have been made as follows on purchase agreements:

For the Hal Nourse property formerly occupied by Skarr's Cafe, $100 on a $2,000 total; Sena Ziska property south of Kinseth Plumbing and Heating, $535 paid on $5,350; Ethel Papousek property on corner opposite city hall, $500 paid on $6,000; Ward Martin property adjoining Papousek's on south, $500 paid on $4,650; Masonic lodge property between Kinseth's and Ziska's, $465 paid on $4,650; Belmond township hall property, $250 paid on $2,500.

Mr. Anderson explained that the BIDC has been employing Ellis Elliott as an executive secretary and paying part of the salary he receives from the Chamber of Commerce. This arrangement will continue to July 1 and then be subject to review.

When the meeting was thrown open to comments, the only person taking the floor was Clarence Triggs, proprietor of Triggs Manufacturing company. He has expressed himself as unalterably opposed to location of the National By-Products station approximately one mile east of his plant.

"Ingenuity" was the key word at the month meeting of Belmond's Cub Scout Pack held Monday night at the junior high auditorium as models were placed on display that the fathers and sons had created from "genius kits."

All using specified materials only put their orginality to work as a March dad-and-lad project to comply with the month's theme of 'Handy Man." Two, and in a few instances three, winners were chosen from each den by Ernest Stadtlander, head custodian of the junior high building.

Examples of the "genius kit" creations are being placed on display at the city library, and Cubmaster Roger Johnson promises they are well worth inspection.

Present were the Cubs from a new den that began meeting only last week, its 10 members bringing to 54 the number of young Scouts now enrolled in Pack 16. The Den Mothers are Mrs. Ted Besch and Mrs. O'Larry Dorr.

Den 7, whose Den Mother is Mrs. Bob Berns, put on a nail-driving contest as a skit. This group also was the Honor Den for having the most parents in attendance.

Bear badges were awarded to Tim Keleher, Brian Bonte and Joe Larson, a Lion badge to Gary Pals and Denner Bar to Craig Patterson. Arrows for achievements went to: Gary Pals, gold and silver (3); Scott Wilson, gold and silver; Joe Larson, gold and silver; Ricky Kinseth, silver; Steve Been, gold.

First-year service stars were presented to Scott Wilson and Randy Dougherty.

Cubmaster Johnson notes that the Cubs' annual penny carnival will be held on Friday, April 21, at the junior high gymnasium starting at 7:00 p. m. This is the Pack's yearly fund-raising event and the boys hope a good crowd will be present to join in the fun.

Some of the prizes to be given will be purchased with funds on hand and others will be solicited.

Bidding on fuels slated April 27

A notice is published in this issue calling to the attention of suppliers of motor fuels that Wright county will let contract on April 27 for a year's supplies of gasoline and diesel fuel for the road department. Bids to be opened at 9:00 a. m. on that date are to be based on an estimated 90,000 gallons of gasoline and 45,000 gallons of diesel fuel.

When bids were received in April of last year, the lowest aggregate bids on the two fuels were submitted by Franklin-Wright Farm Service, which had also had the winning bids the year before

The co-op's bid on gasoline was 5.73 cents off of Clarion tank wagon price on gasoline and 5.27 on diesel fuel. Equivalent bids by Standard Oil had been 5.76 on gasoline and 5.20 on diesel fuel, figuring out to only $4.50 higher cost for the year than the low combination of bids.

Three other oil companies also submitted bids a year ago.

Total paid out here, $158,000—

Red Cross pays final claims here

"The End" was written to a five-month story of assistance rendered the Belmond community by the American Red Cross when the last of a host of tornado relief checks were delivered here by Marvin Hersey of Des Moines, state relations representatives for the ARC.

They totalled $2,437.31 and brought the final sum expended in Belmond's behalf to $158,171.31. In the last group of claims were several that stretched Red Cross policy to the nth degree, Mr. Hersey admits.

One, if fact, was rejected by the regional office at St. Louis for want of authority and it was not until a national vice president gave the order. "Pay it," that the claim was approved.

Final settlement took in the following expenses: $1,146.40 reimbursed to the city of Belmond for emergency tree service that cleared streets for traffic immediately following the tornado; $484.72 reimbursed to the city for payment that had been made for a generator that was stolen by a looter after it had been brought in for emergency use.

Another $401.49 was approved for tire repairs on volunteer vehicles that helped to clean up rubble left by the storm; $170 paid the owner for a radiant heater and some generator cable that had been stolen from the fire hall; $125 for clean-up of the city park; $106.33 for phone calls from the city hall while it was an emergency headquarters; and $3.37 for meals charged the day after the Red Cross food line closed down.

All of the $2,437.31 would have been left to the city to pay, had the ARC not seen fit to absorb the expenses. Mayor Robert Misner says, "It is clear that the Red Cross 'leaned over backwards' in meeting its obligations here. Certainly Belmond has good reason to be forever grateful to this wonderful organization."

Mr. Hersey noted that the Red Cross drew on its national emergency budget for close to $45,000 in order to meet claims that were related to the Belmond tornado. Of the final total of $113,667 contributed to the official Belmond Disaster Fund by sympathizers from far and wide after the tornado, $110,574 was deposited in the First State bank, which served as the local collection center. Another $3,093 was received at the area office, designated for Belmond use.

Kanawhan getting combat training

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (FHTNC) — Marine Pvt. Robert Eden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Eden of Route 1, Kanawha, was graduated in mid-March from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here. He will now undergo about three weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-calibre pistol are equally stressed.

A thorough study of basic military subjects and the customs, courtesies, history and mission of the Marine Corps serve to polish the new Marine's recruit education and prepare him to join Marine combat forces.

Kanawha girls among winners in hairstyling

Janet Johnson was awarded a trophy for devising the hairstyle judged third best in the competition and Doris Asche, also of Kanawha, was winner of the 5th-place trophy.

First place in the contest was awarded to Selma Winfield of LeRoy, Minn.

Reseal announced for '66 soybeans

A reseal loan program has been announced for 1966-crop soybeans which are now stored on farms under price-support loans. The Wright County Agricultural Stablization and Conservation committee reminds interested farmers to make arrangements for resealing to extend the loans before the original loans mature on July 31.

The reseal program offers soybean producers an opportunity to hold their crop for a longer period to stablize market prices and take advantage of any increase in demand. The last reseal program was for the 1963 crop. Practically all soybeans placed under loan in previous years were redeemed by producers.

With the reseal program available, farmers have three choices in handling their 1966-crop soybeans which are under farm-stored loans.

They may: (1) redeem their loans; (2) deliver the soybeans to the Commodity Credit Corporation in satisfaction of their loans; or (3) reseal the soybeans and earn storage payments.

"Loans on resealed soybeans may be called by CCC at any time, but not later than Aug. 1, 1968.

The producer's storage payment rate for resealed soybeans will be announced later. If a farmer delivers or redeems his resealed soybeans prior to July 31, 1968, his storage payment will be based on the number of months they are in storage after Aug. 1, of this year. On last Jan. 31, farmers throughout the country had price-support loans on 60 million bushels of farm-stored 1966-crop soybeans.

Letters to legislators DO serve real purpose

You hear it said that there's no "citizens' lobby" that speaks primarily for the meek, confused looking guy whom the cartoonists label "John Q. Public". And it does seem, at times, that in Congress and the state legislature the voice of John Q. gets lost in the hubbub created by special interest groups bidding for favors.

To some extent, this is undoubtedly true. But if you too readily accept this assumption, you do yourself a disfavor. For John Q has at his command an instrument of influence that is a lot more potent than he might think.

That is the personal letter. We do not wish to imply that a single letter on a legislative subject is going to reverse a legislator's line of thinking. But one, thoughtful communication on a subject in which he is not too well versed or to which he has not had the opportunity to devote much thought can be a definite factor in helping him decide what his stand should be.

Matters on which a lawmaker is expected to form an objective opinion are so numerous that it is beyond human limits to make a deliberate study of each one. That is why lobbyists, with facts soldiered to substantiate their case, serve a useful — if one-sided — purpose. They give the legislator some specific reasons for taking the stand that they want him to take.

"The other side," which in some cases may best favor the public's interests, may occasionally get slight attention from a legislator unless opposing facts are brought to his attention by a constituent with enough initiative to write a letter.

Steered campaigns that are calculated to bludgeon a lawmaker into a course of action with a flood of form letters, all voicing essentially the same message, are less likely to influence him than a letter expressing strictly personal reasoning. Such mail campaigns are almost always inspired by a highly controversial issue in which "the general welfare" may receive scant consideration. And they are a "pressure" proposition, with a skilled lobbyist usually pulling the strings.

Both Senator Hugh Clarke and Representative Ray Bailey, who are our own spokesmen in the Iowa General Assembly, agree that the letters they receive from their constituents are both helpful and welcome.

Of course, to write a purposeful letter, one must keep aware of the topics of discussion before the legislature. THAT cuts down on correspondence a lot.

But if you have a well-considered opinion on a legislative matter that you view with personal concern, the investment in a five-cent stamp might make you a more influential person than you ever dreamed.

What happened to Red Cross money? It was spent!

What happened to the money? That's a question Belmond people are accustomed to hearing from time to time since the outpouring of generous help to this community following the unpleasantness of last Oct. 14.

It is understandable that some curiosity should exist — particularly where the Belmond Disaster Fund is concerned. It is less understandable that any local people should still have questions as to what became of "the Red Cross money".

From time to time, The Independent has published stories to keep the public as well informed as possible regarding administration of the funds that were funneled through the Red Cross. What is perhaps the next-to-last story of this series appears in this issue.

We say next-to-last, because a final story relating by categories — home rebuilding, home repairs, house furnishings, clothing, emergency relief and the like — how the official disaster funds were spent has been promised us by the Red Cross.

In the meantime, what are presumably the final figures as to disaster fund receipts and expenditures have been fixed at $113,667 and $158,171, respectively.

It makes us a little ill, personally, to hear local weisenheimers says, with a knowing nod of the head, "Somebody must have padded his pants with all that relief money that came in!" Baloney! The Red Cross figures speak for themselves.

Contributions to the amount of $110,574 were received at the First State bank — and were spent here. Another $3,093 for Belmond disaster relief purposes went to the area office — and was spent here. And an additional $44,504 that came out of national Red Cross disaster fund was spent here. Whose pants got padded? . . . How?

All other funds coming to Belmond because of the tornado were bestowed on churches and organizations — or in an instance or two, the city or a trustworthy individual, for specific purposes. Administration of the money received by the various and sundry groups was a responsibility of those groups and really need be of no concern to those with wagging tongues.

How such funds have been put to good use by the Lions club, the Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes from time to time has been publicized. They are strictly service organization and are painstakingly endeavoring to reap communitywide benefits from the money's use. Some other organizations, like the VFW, have done likewise.

It is a more private matter how the churches and similar groups put their "disaster funds" to work, and The Independent has seen no justification for making inquiries.

We do, though, regard that all whose generosity was expressed by donations to the "official distaster fund," which Mayor Robert Misner promptly designated should be handled by the Red Cross, deserve to know to what purposes their money was put. The story there, is, it ALL went directly for disaster relief uses — and then some!

Compliment's a compliment; even with dodge in it

Since we haven't been too much on the plus side in the Letters to the Editor department of late, it was kinda nice to get the complimentary letter from Keith Wiggins that appears in this week's Open Forum column.

There was just one thing that bothered us a bit. Keith starts out, "Many, many times I have heard you criticized for doing your job of writing editorials as you see a particular situation." That SECOND "many" sort of got. us. Gee whiz! We didn't realize we wrote on controversial topics THAT often.

Of course, anybody who finds it necessary to express opinions publicly some 100 time a year, which is the fate of an editorial writer on a weekly newspaper, is likely to find himself disagreed with fairly regularly.

There just aren't very many "safe" editorial topics; and, the truth to tell, they're not worth bothering with. So we'll just continue to plow our furrow. If what we turn up invites "many" — or even "many, many" criticisms . . . well, that's how it's gotta be.

County schools merge for economy

Almost lost in all of the statewide talk about the new Area community college and vocational-technical schools, has been a rash of activity on multi-county school mergers.

Black Hawk and Buchanan counties have agreed to merge as have Cerro Gordo, Floyd, Mitchell and Worth counties. Franklin joined its county school system with Butler and Bremer a couple of years ago.

AND EVEN MORE COUNTIES may be expected to merge after a study on qualifications for such mergers is completed July 1. The mergers make a great deal of sense.

In the days of the one-room schools which dotted the landscape of every county, the county school system was big business. Today, however, most county school offices have only routine duties. In that Hardin is still far behind most Iowa counties in school reorganization, the office here may have somewhat more importance.

THE ADVANTAGES OF MERGING the county systems is that together these counties can offer far more auxiliary educational services than most can on their own. School psychologists, guidance counselors, speech therapists can be used far more efficiently and can demand better salaries.

Regardless of present conditions in Hardin county, it is time that we started to give serious thought to merging with one or more counties. —Iowa Falls Citizen

Out of the past

One of the major tobacco companies has brought back to the scene another old-time big name. It is the return of Bull Durham cigarettes. But you wouldn't recognize them from the days of old. old.

The young folks won't remember Bull Durham, but there's hardly an oldtimer around, dating back to the pre-World War II days, who doesn't recall the bag of roll-your-own, especially if he was smoking in the depression days.

BULL DURHAM WAS A PROduct of the era when folks had the time to roll 'em and money wasn't so plentiful. A nickel, as memory recalls, was the price of a cotton bag full of Bull Durham tobacco. Maybe it was a dime. For the nickel, or dime, you also got for the asking, a free package of cigarette papers.

The cloth bag was white and there was a yellow draw string around the top which served as a pouring spout.

FOR THOSE WHO WANTED something fancier there were some put up in cans. To name just a few, Prince Albert, Velvet and Briggs.

Who is the old timer who doesn't remember the barn-side signs extolling the virtues of Bull Durham? Ever so often a crew of sign painters came around to paint the big bull on the side of the building and the rental paid the farmer was a part of his luxury spending money each year. — Fairfield Ledger

TAXES TO THE FORE—

The legislature has reached the midway point and the lawmakers are starting to talk about taxes. Just before the legislators adjourned for their spring recess, Senate Majority Leader Andrew Fromelt outlined a tax program.

It's a unique plan and undoubtedly more will be heard about it in the weeks ahead. The Dubuque Democrat's proposal, which has been adopted in principle by the the Senate ways and means committee, is to consider broadening instead of cutting back the property tax base; put a ceiling on the share of the cost of local government it can finance; and find another source of revenue, such as a local income tax, to produce local government funds.

THIS MEANS, FROMMELT COMmented, that cities and towns, counties and school boards, which rely almost entirely on the property tax for their revenue, would be given more latitude as to what they can tax, and would be restricted in the degree to which their needs could be met by property tax.

To make up for the revenue lost by restricting the property tax, they would be given the power to levy a new tax, such as a local income tax. This means, Frommelt explained, that if a municipality decided it needed $1 million to operate next year, it could get only a certain portion of it — say 75 per cent — from the property tax.

THIS WOULD MEAN THAT only $750,000 of the proposed $1 million spending would come from real and personal property, the extra $250,000 from a levy on the income of residents.

At the same time that the Senate committee was working out its guidelines, the House was hearing a proposal by Rep. LeRoy Petersen of Dallas, the chairman of its tax revision committee, to raise the sales tax from two to three per cent and increase the income tax about one-third, to raise $144 million for support of Iowa's public schools. Both versions will be covered more thoroughly later. They'll be much in the news from here on.

NEEDLES REAPPOINTED—

Legislators were preparing to leave for a week's recess when Attorney Genral Richard Turner issued an opinion that the state did not have a safety commissioner. State Representative Harold Fischer, Wellsburg Republican, had asked Turner to rule on the question.

The problem: Gene Needles, Des Moines attorney, was not confirmed by the Senate. Needles was serving an interim appointment filling the vacancy created by the resignation of William Sueppel of Iowa City. Sueppel's four-year term was to end July 1.

IOWA LAW PROVIDES THAT interim appointments end 30 days after the legislature convenes. The Needles appointment ended Feb. 8, Turner ruled.

Governor Harold Hughes was enroute to Washington, D. C. for a governors' conference with the President. Hughes promptly appointed Needles acting commissioner; Turner agreed that the appointment of Needles as acting commissioner was proper.

REMAP—

The legislature came oh-so-close to resolving the knotty problems of reapportionment, but an 11th hour attempt went awry. Leaders of both parties had hoped the legislature would: (1) pass the 1965 'permanent' plan providing for a House of not more than 100 members and a Senate of not more than 50 members; (2) adopt a new amendment requiring mandatory single member districts.

(3) Pass a resolution to set up a 10-member citizens' commission to recommend to the legislature by May 1 a sub-districting plan, and (4) adopt a resolution stating it is the legislature's intent to work for passage of the permanent plan amendment and for a reduction in the size of the legislature in time for the 1970 election of the 1971 legislature.

But the plan bogged down and the House adjourned without taking up a single reapportionment item, even as the Senate was in the process of adopting the conference committee report, setting out the four-point plan, and passing the resolution of intent.

IT WASN'T "GRUMPY"—

State Representative Harold Fischer of Grundy County is known in the legislative chambers as "Grumpy from Grundy." It started, as we recall it, some years ago when a Speaker of the House addressed him as "the gentleman from Grumpy", probably not inadvertently. However, the title is an affectionate one.

Mr. Fischer rates high on his sense of humor. One reason his nickname endures is because Mr. Fischer is frequently very critical of the highway commission.

SO IMAGINE FISCHER'S REACtion when he received a delegation from the highway commission; they had come to pick him up for a trip to Ames where he was "scheduled" to address highway commission employees on civil service bills now pending in the legislature! Posters, to this effect, had been printed and distributed throughout the state.

It developed that State Representative Raymond Fischer of Greene county was the speaker, not Fischer of Grundy. No problem, except there were some mighty red faces.

BINGO ON THE SHELF—

House committees have voted to indefinitely postpone 18 bills. One of these bills was a proposed amendment to the constitution to legalize bingo. The measure was killed by the House committee on constitutional amendments.

WAGES WATERED DOWN—

The Senate has passed and sent in the House a bill that would set a state minimum wage of $1 an hour. The bill covers part-time workers. It applies to persons 18 years and older, but there are a number of exemptions. For instance, the minimum wage would not have to be met by employers having gross receipts of less than $100,000 a year.

The bill calls for a minimum wage of $1 an hour effective in July and $1.25 an hour starting on Jan. 1, 1969.

Senator Gene Condon of Black Hawk, who was one of the chief advocates of the bill, waited in good humor as amendment after amendment was adopted to "water down" the bill, then convulsed the Senate by asking them to support the bill in honor of "seven employees who are still covered by it."

Custom work, on demand—

Needing odd jobs done? Shop boys'll do 'em

• • •

Allen Suby, BHS instructor in industrial arts, suspects that one little-known adjunct of the courses he teaches is the custom work that boys in his classes have been called on to do with increasing frequency. Actually, such services are being provided in almost every area of industrial arts.

With the disappearance of the "odd jobs man," that jack-of-all-trakes who once made a livelihood in almost every community of any size by doing a wide variety of repairs with technical competence, it's become difficult to get such services rendered.

Some of the services just aren't available in every town; and others call for the time of a busy serviceman who is so pushed that customers must patiently wait their turn.

That's where the shop students fit into the picture — most conveniently. In woodworking, for example, they have repaired a number of pieces of furniture for people of the community. In sheet metal, planter boxes have been made to order.

Most of the custom work, though, has been done in the motor rewind and power mechancis areas. In the past five years, says Mr. Suby, about 25 motors have been rewound by the boys for plumbers, farmers, or simply homeowners in need.

Approximately $330 worth of outside work has been done in power mechanics. This has included repair of small mowers, riding mowers and automobile engines.

Last fall, students in basic house wiring completely wired the home of a Belmond resident — with inspections by a skilled electrician to see that all was done right.

Numerous jobs in welding have been done for farmers and school janitors. And with recent acquisition of a $2,500 metal lathe by the industrial arts shop, some much needed metal turning is occasionally done on a custom basis by the students.

There has been little outside call for drafting. And the course in electroncis being somewhat new, repair in this field has been limited largely to tube replacement.

Each student, says Mr. Suby, keeps a bill of material for presentation to the customer. On completion of the work, the bill is totalled and signed by the instructor; and the customer must pay his "shop bill" before obtaining his merchandise.

As word gets around that odd repair jobs can be competently done by the industrial arts students, the demand for their services is gradually increasing. Mr. Suby looks upon this as a break for the boys, who are learning thereby; and a break for the community in having a place where odd jobs can be satisfactorily done and without a long wait for completion.

TO THE EDITOR

Some seventeen months ago Belmond began actively to seek new industry by formation of a non-profit organization known as the Belmond Industrial Development Corporation. The expressed purposes were twofold, each of equal importance; one was to seek, encourage and promote establishment of new industrial enterprise in our community, the other to support, encourage and promate expansion of existing industry.

The first new industry to locate in Belmond was Triggs Mfg. Co. In a short time it became evident that this was a most fortunate circumstance. The Triggs concern has grown and prospered in our community and our area is well aware of its value to us.

The BIDC, through its board, has consistently sought to fulfill the purposes of the organization. We worked long and carefully to help Triggs Mfg. Co. become established here and will work equally hard to help and encourage its continued growth and expansion here.

Although we have been in contact and have been contacted by several industrial prospects in the past year, most have proven to be unfruitful. There is one noticeable exception, that being National By-Products.

Belmond is centrally located for the area they wish to serve and the representatives of that firm have found, as Mr. Triggs did, that Belmond is a community which its employees would proudly call "home."

The board in its investigations found National By-Products to be solid in every respect. We found their plans for the Belmond plant to be obviously aimed at making it the most modern, efficient and progressive installation their engineers could design. We are convinced that National By-Products will be another welcome asset to our city.

It is our sincere hope that growth and expanision of all our industries will continue. The BIDC will work actively to that end. We need all of our industries. We need all of our businesses. We need all of our farmers. We need the thoughtful understanding and cooperation of all our citizens.

We have pledged ourselves to serve this community, this we are doing and will continued to do.

Mr. Editor:

Many, many times I have heard you criticized for doing your job of writing editorials as you see a particular situation. I, too, have been a critic of some of these. However, your editorial in the March 16 issue entitled "It's no time to tuck that Belmond spirit away!" was so outstanding that I feel you should be complimented for doing such an excellent job on this editorial. In a most eloquent manner you really hit the nail on the head and made it obvious that we hardly dare sit back and do nothing. Congratualtions on a job well done.

Half dozen pass assessor's exam

Only one Wright countian was among six who have been certified as qualified to fill the Wright county assessorship that was left vacant by the death of F. Ross Henry late last year. Ten applicants took the state test at Clarion on March 15, in which a grade of 70 was required for certification.

Ballard Tipton, director of the property tax division of the Iowa tax commission, reports that Vernon E. Lester of Galt was the only Wright county applicant passing.

The others were: Eldon Dilocker of Fort Dodge, Orin L. Nelson and Val D. Buss of Humboldt, Raymond Swalve of Garner and Harold Boekelman of Britt.

These names have been sent ot the Wright county examining board for its consideration. A. L. Saylor of Clarion is the board's chairman and the other members are Marc Ihm of Belmond and Moine Yanney of Eagle Grove.

This group will examine the applications and conduct interviews and then submit recommendations to the county conference board, which will make the appointment.

Not all who took and passed the state examination are necessarily bona fide applicants for the Wright county job. Such tests are sometimes taken simply for the purpose of certification against the possibility the person taking it may at some time be interested in applying for another opening rather than the one currently to be filled.

RANDOX KILLS FOXTAIL BEFORE IT SPROUTS

CONTROLS OTHER GRASSES, SOME WEEDS, TOO

IF YOU PLAN TO PLANT SOYBEANS THIS YEAR . . .

You need RANDOX to keep foxtail and other grasses out of your fields. You'll enjoy control of some broadleaf weeds, too.

This unwanted growth in your soybean fields costs you money by reducing yields, causing extra field work and by making harvests take longer.

RANDOX pre-emergent herbicide ends your problem the low-cost way. Apply it as you plant and forget about grasses and weeds. They don't have a chance. As they sprout, they die, and you won't even see them.

Clean fields yield up to 7 extra bushels of soybeans. Tests prove it.

Lots of 600's in pin meet—

Team crown to Meservey keglers

—SPORTS—

Meservey bowlers, who picked off a generous share of the top places in last year's men's city pin gave warning that they may turn out to be hard to handle again by picking off first place in the 1967 team tournament at Bowl-Mor Lanes, competition last week.

Woodford-Wheeler Lumber of Meservey was paced by a 635-72—707 rolled by Don Meints as that quintet took team honors with a gross of 3,118. The Meservey team garnered 2,755 actual pins and carried a 363-pin handicap. Merlin Ruiter contributed a 565-22—631, Vic Nordman 517-96—613, Jake Koenen 530-57—587 and Carroll Morris 508-72—580.

Meints' fine series came on games of 244-197-194. Ruiter helped out with a 221 game. Second place was claimed by the Belmond Independent with 2,664-402—3,066 as Vern Dippel posted a scratch 578 and Glen Losen 577.

Other teams in the money were: Belmond Creamery 3,037, Henning Construction 3,032, Tomco Genetic Giane 3,017, McLaughlin Chevrolet 2,997, Farmers Grain 2,996, Schulte Insurance 2,974 and Fullerton Lumber 2,934.

Action in the tournament singles and double got underway last week and will continue through the next two weekends. Defending singles champion is Don Ruiter of Meservey, whose 702 was tops a year ago; and defending titleholder in the all-events is Ferd Lemke of Meservey, who had a nine-game gross of 1,968.

Last year's doubles title went to Don Mathiason of Rowan and Dr. A. M. Larson, who rolled a 1,318.

Red-hot scoring characterized the first weekend of singles and doubles action, all of last year's highs but that in the doubles being surpassed.

Anson Avery of Goodell took over first place in the singles with a 648-78—720 when Fred Loats got a 10-pin "tap" in his final frame to wind up with a 650-60—710. Three other 600 series were posted; George Sharp was in third place with 644-57—701, Don Mathiason in fourth with 631-54—685, and Arlo Stoltenberg in 6th with 602-66—668.

Best doubles score was 1,315 by Rex Fetrow and Harold Nelson on 554-72—626 and 614-75—689 respectively. John Schulte and Elmer Hopkey of Alexander were close behind with 1,308.

Loats, who had a 609 in the doubles and a 522 team score, led the all-events with a scratch 1,781 and a gross of 1,961 with his 180 handicap pins. Right on his heels was Lloyd Suntken with 1,960.

Wessels gets 2nd team IDPA berth

Pete Wessels, the slick-operating Buffalo Center guard who led the Bison to two North Iowa conference cage championships, was the only NIC player to receive all-state team honors from the Iowa Daily Press association for the past season. In the IDPA selections announced last Friday, Coach Bill Prochaska's ace was awarded a 2nd-team berth — as was another of the Broncos' adversaries, Ken Grabinski of Clear Lake.

No other NIC cager so much as finished among thme top 15 nominees for his position, but seven rated honorable mention. Two of these were Belmond boys, Terry Nelson at center and Gary Meyers at guard.

Steve Pederson of Lake Mills, "Dusty" Thompson of Forest City and Pat Orthel of Buffalo Center, who like Wessels were all-NIC 1st team choices, rated the honor roll at forward. Bill Engstler, also on the NIC 1st team, won mention at guard, as did Danny Schmidt of Forest City.

Tom McDermott of Britt, who was named to the utility spot by the NIC sports scribes, failed to win any attention from the IDPA.

Area cagers who were placed on the honor roll included: Mike Kalkbrenner, Clarion, forward; Bill Huisman of Goldfield, Ken Pals of Meservey-Thornton and Jon Jetmund, Dows, as guards. Huisman ranked 12th in the state among the guard nominees.

D. M. REGISTER PLACES WESSELS ON THIRD TEAM

The Des Moines Sunday Register's all-state basketball selections published last weekend placed Pete Wessels of Buffalo Center on the 3rd team — also another BHS opponent, Ken Grabinski of Clear Lake. Wessels was placed at guard and Grabinski at center.

No Belmond Bronco rated mention on the honor roll, but six players from other North Iowa conference teams did. Wessels' teammate, Pat Orthel, along with "Dusty" Thompson of Forest City and Steve Pederson of Lake Mills, got recognition as forwards.

NIC guards on the honor roll were Bill Engstler of Garner, Tom McDermott of Britt and Tom Nelson of Northwood.

Area cagers winning Register attention included Bill Brauman of Eagle Grove and Mike Klakbrenner of Clarion as forwards, Bill Huisman of Goldfield and Ken Pals of Meservey-Thornton as guards.

Some fair performances by Broncs at Iowa City

Blmond High was in quite a throng of Class A schools that failed to chalk up any points at the state indoor track meet last Thursday at Iowa City. Coach Chuck Stalker found some consolation in the fact no other North Iowa conference school managed to score any points, either.

Despite his team's failure to hit the point list, Coach Stalker was encouraged by several of the Bronco performances. Dallas Steenblock nicked the BHS indoor record for the 880 with a time of 2:10, one tenth of a second under the mark he himself held.

Also, the two-mile relay team betterd the school indoor mark for the event with a 9:09.9 timing that was 3.1 under the Broncos' previous best. Omitting fractional times, Greg Steenblock covered his half mile in 2:20, Don Havens posted a 2:17, Don Goeman and Mike Klinefelter each 2:16.

Tim Roberts cleared 5-8 in the high jump, but it took 5-10 to get in the money. His best in the broad jump was 17-3, after he scratched on a better leap of a bit over 20 feet.

Bob Rise had a :06-flat time in the 50-yard dash that gave him third in his heat; only 1st and 2nd place winners advanced. He also was third in his 440 heat with a :56.3.

Wayne Smith made it to the semi-finals with an :08.1 time in the 60-yard low hurdles. The same time in the second race got him only a third place, one shy of making the finals. Terry Nelson was well back in the field with an :08.9 time in the 60-yard highs.

Doug Mennenga got off a toss of 41 feet, 10 inches in the shot put. This was far short of the point-making category but was about as good as his best a year ago.

Because the mile relay was so late in being run off, the Belmond entry was scratched from that event.

Proper Hybrid or Variety Selection

Don't let seed selection be the weakest link in your crop production chain. Hybrids and varieties differ in quality as well as in yield. What is the best hybrid or variety? What must you know to choose the right seed for your crops in 1967?

There is no simple answer to these questions.

Hybrids and varieties have their own personalities and capabilities, much like people. Since they have different parents and ancestors, they differ in their ability to do a specific job.

The choice of a hybrid or a variety for your farm is an individual and specialized matter. Ultimately, you should make your own choice, using all the information at hand. This means you have to choose a hybrid that fits your specific needs.

Custom Farm Services can help you in proper hybrid and variety selection without any cost to you. The biggest profits come from combining highest practical yields with lowest practical costs.

Here are a few points which you must consider for proper selection of a hybrid or a variety:

a. Do not plant all your acreage to one hybrid. Over a period of years and under a variety of conditions, it is unlikely that the same hybrid will always be at or near the top.
b. Consider right maturity, because either late or early maturity may not pay your bill. You may get yield losses from early frost or will be unable to store your crop without serious spoilage.
c. High yield can only be determined by performance tests. Consider number of ears, size of ear, number of kernel rows, length of ear and kernel size.
d. Select a hybrid or a variety with a proven standability. Unwise selection may cause yield loss and inconvenience to the picker operator.
e. Adaptability must be considered, since performance of a hybrid or variety is not the same under all conditions.
f. Consider percentage of moisture at harvest for better picking performance. High moisture at harvest will be deducted from your per-acre profit.
g. Select a disease-resistant hybrid or variety, since there is a genetic difference in stalk quality and reaction to biological and mechanical injury.

We have ready access to official test information on trials of more than one year in several locations with somewhat similar soil types and climatic conditions. This is considerably more valuable than sketchy information based on no trials at all, or on trials of only one year or in one loaction.

All these services are free to you at CFS. Also depend upon us for your fertilizer and farm chemical needs. Do yourself a favor; drop in or give us a call, You will be glad we got together.

Chiropractic for the HEART

Despite its great importance in the maintenance of life, the HEART is the great muscular pump whose sole job is to propel blood throughout the body.

The HEART when normal, beats from 65 to 80 beats per minute, pumping a total of 500 gallons of blood a day. During a lifetime the heart beats 2,500,000,000 times and pumps a total of nearly 15,000,000 gallons.

The HEART must function continually and consistantly 24 hours a day in order for the body to enjoy the maximum of health. Of all the organs in the body, the heart does the most actual physical work. It is the great pump of the circulatory system that forces the blood to the smallest parts of the body where oxygen and life giving food are delivered to every cell and tissue of every organ so that they may function properly.

The brain power sends this vital nerve energy through the Spinal Column to the organ creating movement. The same process is also true of the heart. Though we are not aware if its existence, the brain power and nerve energy must precede the contraction of the heart muscles. Deprived of this vital nerve energy from the brain to the heart by pressure of impingements to the nerve fiber in the Spinal Cord, the muscular action is reduced and the heart suffers.

Not only the action of the heart, but its condition is dependent upon the ability of the nervous system to carry it the proper supply of nerve energy from the brain. Whether the obnormality be enlargement of the heart, leakage, irregularity in the heart action, it is all produced by the same common cause. Only by restoring brain power and nerve energy to the heart can it function properly and thereby render 100 percent efficient circulation to all parts of the body.

Thousands of individuals embracing various types of "Heart Conditions" have regained vigorous health by receiving gentle chiropractic adjustments from competent Chiropractors. Give yourself a chance to unlock the door to health and happiness, see your Chiropractor today.

VOL. 43 NO. 28 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Did you know that a Belmond boy — or at least, an EX-Belmond boy — was among the players chosen when the American Football League "divvied up" the '66 crop of college football stars recently? The gridder, who was an 11th round choice of the Oakland Raiders, is Duane Benson. His father, the late Dale Benson, Sr., was tenant on what is now the "Hospital Farm" before it was given to Belmond Community hospital by Chester Luick. His mother is the former Hazel Arends, a BHS graduate.

Duane, a 6-2, 210-pounder, played tackle for the Hamline university Pipers at St. Paul on both offense and defense and captained the team last fall. After the '66 season, he was voted the "most valuable player" in the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic conference.

Since he's also captain of the Hamline track team (he high jumps!) he's signing no contract until after graduation this June. Several other pro teams were interested in Duane. He was among 26 possible recruits provided plane tickets to fly down to Houston for interviews with the Oilers. He was a bit nonplused to find that 23 of the 26 were colored boys. Last week he flew out to Oakland to talk terms with the Raiders. He's hopeful of making the grade with the pros, but realizes it'll be a tough job.

Archie Rierson, ex-Belmondite who for many years has been proprietor of a drug store at River Forest, Ill., sends a renewal check for his subscription along with a note that he's sold his business and proposes to concentrate in the immediate future on catching up on his fishing and doing some traveling. He plans a jaunt to Canada — and an even more ambitious one, which will take him to the Orient to see his son Jerry, who on military duty there. Sounds as if Archie prospered as a druggist.

Little by little, things are returning to a normal state after the disturbance of last October. One more evidence of return to normalcy was to be seen this week at the Central Soya plant. A "bigger and better than ever" sign by the office identifying the operation.

Something new has been added to the wording in the way of a slogan lately adopted by the Central Soya folks.

Under the Central Soya heading appears, "The Food Power People." Then appears the familiar C-S emblem, under which are printed "Master Mix Feeds" and "Soybean Processing." With its new water tower now up, also, Central Soya is getting pretty well put back together.

We wouldn't want the county to miss an extra-low bid on its road fuel supplies for the coming year, so we'd like to call attention of petroleum product suppliers to a booboo we committed last week. Letting of contract for the next 12 months' supply of gasoline and diesel fuel is to take place on April 17 — NOT the 27th, as in our story. . . . Don't know how we do these things; but the way we go about it, it's easy.

In response to a question from us, Manager Curt Rise says that the NFO milk-holding action has had little affect on the Belmond Co-op Creamery's milk purchases of the past couple of weeks or so.

He reported that only a very small handful of the co-op's patrons have ostensibly been dumping milk.

Loss to the creamery's regular volume he estimated at not more than three or four per cent. One young dairy farmer with a growing family told us that HE was dumping HIS . . . "right in the tank!"

Ihm will address hospital meeting

DES MOINES (Special) — Marc Ihm of Belmond, administrator of the Belmond Community hospital, will speak at the annual meeting of the Iowa Hospital Association Division of Hospital Auxiliaries in Des Moines on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Mrs. R. H. Gowdy of Belmond, who will preside at the meeting, is state chairman.

Mr. Ihm will talk at 9:35 a. m. on Thursday about last fall's tornado disaster and the services provided after the storm by the Belmond Community hospital.

The auxiliaries will convene in conjunction with the Iowa Hospital Association's 38th annual meeting. About a thousand Iowa hospital personnel are expected to attend.

Other affiliated groups meeting with the Iowa Hospital association will be the Iowa Chapter, American Association of Hospital Accountants; Iowa Association of Nurse Anesthetists; Iowa Association of Medical Record Librarians; Iowa Conference of Catholic Hospital and Related Health Facilities; and Iowa Hospital Association's Nurses Section.

BIDC offering price of $2,000—

2nd hearing on dump property sale Monday

Next Monday at 8:00 p. m. at the city hall council chambers a hearing will be conducted on the proposal of the city to sell to Belmond Industrial Development corporation the approximately 11 acres comprising the former city dump and land adjoining to the north for $2,000.

This will be a repetition of a hearing held a week ago last Monday, when what was declared to be an illegal offer of one dollar for the the same property was the cash consideration for sale of the land.

It remains the intention of the BIDC to sell a portion of the property to National By-Products, Inc., of Des Moines as the site of a collection station for dead stock and commercial livestock scrap.

DeWayne Ehler, Des Moines district manager for National By-Products, has supplied The Independent with an artist's drawing of the plant which the firm proposes to erect on the property, if it succeeds in buying the land.

In regard to the opposition to the BIDC transaction that has arisen in some quarters, Mr. Ehlers says, "When you see people demonstrate such an interest in their city and their government, it makes you stop and think.

"This, along with the reputation you have gained since the tornado and the people I have met in your city, has made quite an impression on us of National By-Products who have visited Belmond. It gives an added reason for wanting to become a part of your community."

He said, "We propose to construct a totally enclosed collection or reload station to replace three obsolete stations located at old plant sites. We feel we can more efficiently and economically serve north-central Iowa through this new facility."

Mr. Ehler continued, "Based on the design of the facilities and the location, we do not believe we will create a nuisance for the citizens of Belmond by the nature of our business. Any problem that might arise can be controlled. Moreover, the facility will have to be licensed by the state department of agriculture and will be subject to state inspections."

He notes that Belmond's geographic location was the reason for its selection as site of the collection station, this community being in the center of the area the facility will serve.

Mr. Ehler expressed the hope that, after Monday's hearing, the Belmond city council will be favorably disposed to permit the proposed sale of land to BIDC, with the understanding of the intended repurchase of a portion of it by National By-Products.

He commented that the local payroll and the company's local service and supply requirements should make it an economic asset to Belmond -- without the drawbacks that have been "needlessly feared."

In private conversation with directors of the BIDC, Mr. Ehler pointed out that the collection station National By-Products has for some time operated at Waterloo is the only facility at all comparable with the one that would be located here.

It is wholly enclosed and, though situated close to both commercial and residential districts in Waterloo, has not been a subject of complaints from its neighbors. It is the plan of the BIDC to send an inquiry party to Waterloo to obtain on-the-site observations from city authorities and others as to how well National By-Products has lived up to its pledge to keep that facility a nuisance-free operation.

Title: "Show Time '67"—

Grades to give spring musicale

It will be "Show Time '67" when Shirley Malek's grade school singers present their annual spring program Wednesday evening of next week at 8:00 o'clock at Luick Memorial Auditorium. Precisely who will be appearing in the program was a bit problematical, as at Rowan it is also "Mumps Time '67."

Last weekend, more than a dozen pupils at the Rowan school were absent due to affliction with the unpleasant ailment — plus one teacher, Genevieve Bohning.

Miss Malek, the elementary music teacher, is crossing her fingers in hope that Belmond and Goodell grade-schoolers may escape the disease — or a good share of her cast might be home "having a swell time" when the performance is given.

Four shows will be featured in the program, "Music Man," "Sound of Music," "My Fair Lady" and "Mary Poppins."

Gary Larkin will appear as freckle-faced, sputtering Winthrop whose juicy rendition of "Gary, Indiana" was a regular show-stopper in "Music Man." Lu Ann Freese, recovery from the mumps permitting, will be featured as Marian the Librarian.

Kris Kintzi will represent the lead character, Maria, from "Sound of Music" and the following will appear as the seven children in the Trapp family: Diana Larkin, Robert Pasquariello, Debbie Armour, Larry Elphic, Pam Wilhelm, Lynne Thompson and Diane Cooke.

Bobbi Bunnell will sing the role of the frowsy "lady" of "My Fair Lady." Other youngsters who will take the spotlight in this portion of the program are: Kevin Jones, Gary Pals, Harlan Tulp, Leslie Berhow, Kevin Braner, Robert Bateson, Jerry Bemrich, Perry Stockseth, Mark Havens and Jamie Johnson.

Teresa Swenson will be "Mary Poppins." Other soloists in presenting music from this popular movie will be Mike Laake, Harold Roelofson and Steven Been.

Belmond 6th graders specially chosen by Miss Malek for the number will blend voices in singing "The Lonely Goathered" from "Sound of Music." In this chorus will be:

3 BHS alumni on concert tour

BHS graduates in the group are Deb Boller, Jane Hill and Ed Olson. Also in the choir is Julene Nelson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Nelson, missionaries to Africa currently in the States on leave. Her father is son of the Nick Nelsons.

Starting at Easter time, the Forest City group is making appearances in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska. The singers return to Iowa this Sunday and will present their home concert at Forest City at 8:00 o'clock that evening.

SALES CITATIONS TO TWO

Two members of Belmond Motors' sales staff will be among Ford's Des Moines district salesmen being honored this Saturday at the Savery Hotel with 300-500 Club membership awards. John Ubben and Tom Hill will both be recognized for "excellent retail sales performances."

Commission OK's highway widening

Members of the Iowa State Highway commission at a meeting Wednesday of last week at Ames approved the transcript of the hearing held here on Feb. 2 relative to the proposed widening of Highway 69 through Belmond.

In approving the transcript, the commissioners instructed Director of Highways Joseph R. Coupal to send the transcript to the U. S. Bureau of Roads for study. Approval of the bureau will give the highway commission engineers the go-ahead for design work.

Wallace Richmond of Armstrong, a retired right-of-way buyer for the highway commission, was recently retained by the city council to purchase the additional right-of-way that will be required for the highway widening. Two and a half feet on each side of River avenue will be needed for the project.

At the same time, Robin Shoop, who is associated with Beck Brothers Realty at Mason City, was retained to appraise the strips of property that will be needed.

He is well enough along with his work that Mr. Richmond was expected to start the actual buying of property on Thursday of this week. In such cases as property-owners disagree with the appraised value or refuse to sell for any other reason, condemnation proceedings would have to be entered into.

SBA loans here pass $600,000

Don Albertson, field representative from the Small Business Administration office at Des Moines, says that Francis Emory of his office staff will be in Belmond Friday of next week to confer with persons interested in SBA loans. He may be seen at the First State bank at any time during regular banking hours.

During a visit here Friday of last week, Mr. Albertson informed The Independent that a requested six-month extension of the deadline for securing disaster loans here was turned down by SBA headquarters. A 90-day extension was granted, though, which will permit consideration of disaster loans through next July 31st.

More than $600,000 in total loans have thus far been approved by the SBA, which were necessitated by the tornado. Of this amount, $293,500 went to 31 home-owners. The other $312,100 was in business loans.

Mr. Albertson said that only one loan — a home loan for $15,000 — was pending approval at that time. Only 46 applications have been actually made out for loans, out of 104 issued. It is Mr. Albertson's guess that there will probably not be more than another 20 loans made, based on disaster need.

Jaycee Tornado Albums out today!

Those long-awaited Jaycee tornado albums are now off the press and will be available to buyers today (Thursday) for $2.00. It is anticipated by Dick Bloemke and Jerry McLaughlin, co-chairmen of the album committee, that the first printing of 2,500 copies will be gobbled up in very short order.

Jobco Printing is already launching on the printing of a second 2,500, with the expectation that the total of 5,000 will probably not meet the demand.

Any business place wishing a supply of the albums to sell may make arrangements with Dick Bloemke at Kessler's this morning to pick up the number they wish. The Jaycees suspect that a majority of local stores may want some on hand for the convenience of their customers.

Early buyers will find the albums already available at Jobco, the Belmond Independent, P & G Super Market, We 3 Market, Kessler's Pharmacy, Redder's Rexall Drug and the First State bank.

Bruce Schroeder was managing editor in charge of the album preparation. It contains more than 100 pages plentifully illustrated with pictures taken directly after the tornado, plus personal highlights, headlines from newspapers coast to coast, and a fold-out map showing the major path of the storm for the purpose of pin-pointing damage depicted in the photos.

Ex-resident dies over in Viet Nam

News was recently received of the first U. S. serviceman with a Belmond background to pay with his life for service in the Viet Nam conflict. He was 2nd Lt. Roger William Rabey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rabey. His parents now live in Commanche, but were Belmond residents for some years and made their home here for a time when Roger was a young boy.

Mrs. Peter Bohning, sister of the officer's father, has learned that Roger was killed when a plane on which he was a passenger was destroyed by enemy action. He was reported missing on March 10 and his death later confirmed.

Lieutenant Rabey was a career soldier and last July had been commissioned after attending Officer Candidate School at Fort Lee, Va. He was assigned to duty in Viet Nam in August.

Funeral services were held Monday of this week at Paris, Tenn., where his wife and two young children have been living while he was overseas. In addition to his widow and children, he is survived by both his parents, a brother and sister.

HOME FROM COLLEGE

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DETTMAN

• • • • • •

Dettmans will celebrate "60th"

Mr. and Mrs. John Dettman on Monday of next week will be celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary. It is a particularly significant occasion for them, because Mrs. Dettman was badly injured when she was in the We 3 Market at the time the tornado struck last October and spent about 10 weeks in the hospital.

They do not plan any formal observance of their anniversary, because John was just lately released from the hospital and is recuperating from the sickness that made him bedfast for a while. In general, though, both are in reasonably good health and find much enjoyment in life.

John Dettman, who was the son of the John Dettmans of Roselle, Ill., and Rosanna Brennan, daughter of the Jerry Brennans of Wright county, were married April 10, 1907, at St. Francis church by Father McInerny. Their attendants were her sister, Katherine Brennan, and his brother, William. They farmed near Belmond until retiring 30 years ago and moving to Belmond.

It was an "active" retirement. John spent years working for General Mills, for Tomco, and for a period of time was a school janitor here. Rose cooked for various local cafes and for six years was a hot-lunch cook at the school. They now just "look after each other" at their comfortable home at 712 Sixth street NE.

This coming week will bring two anniversaries for John, as his 84th birthday is Friday, the 14th. Mrs. Dettman is 77.

The Dettmans have five children, all daughters: Evelyn Beavers and Agnes Gabrielson, Belmond; Nellie (Mrs. J. C.) Didio, Fort Dodge; Edna (Mrs. Ernie) Pickering, Des Moines; and Ardaleen (Mrs. Claude) Johnson, who lives on Lake Cornelia.

They have 13 grandchildren and 28 great grandchildren.

St. Olaf church plans dedication of new additions

St. Olaf Lutheran church this Sunday will hold a special service at 9:30 a. m. to dedicate a new Sunday school unit and narthex (entryway) that have just been completed as additions to the church. A major portion of the funds for the contruction came from a gift left in the estates of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herman Johnson.

Delivering the sermon will be Rev. Alvon Nelson of Des Moines, assistant to the district president, who will also be in charge of the dedication.

An open house will be held from 2:00 to 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon to permit the public to inspect the new facilities. Refreshments will be served during this period.

Work on the narthex and educational unit had been started last June and had been progressing satisfactorily, until the tornado last fall brought building to an abrupt halt. Continuation of the construction was then delayed, due to emergency rebuilding and repair work in town.

Cancer Crusade kickoff set for Monday morning

Next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock at Town House cafe, a "kickoff coffee" will be held to launch the 1967 Cancer Crusade in Belmond. At that time the local co-chairmen, Mrs. Jack Steinberg and Mrs. Jerry Kintzi, will pass out to their area chairmen and to individual solicitors who are present the supplies they will need for conduct of the fund-raising campaign.

Mrs. Steinberg says a brief program of some nature will be held to help familiarize the workers with their responsibilities. She and Mrs. Kintzi note that Belmond has played an important part in making Wright county outstanding in all the state in support of the Cancer Crusade and both hope that the usual generous response will greet local canvassers.

They have named the following area chairmen, who are selecting workers for their respective parts of town: Mrs. Ernest Doeringsfeld, Mrs. Dale Bemrich, Mrs. Steve McLaughlin, Mrs. Merle Bonte, Mrs. Dick Bloemke, Mrs. A. W. Johnson, Mrs. Sandy Chandler and Mrs. Airell Clark.

The Crusade co-chairmen will urge the solicitors to complete their assignments as promptly as possible. Dwight Tyrrell, who is chairman of the county ACS chapter, has asked that canvassing for the Crusade be completed — as nearly as possible — by April 21, so an early report of the results can be made to the Iowa division office at Mason City.

• • •

Conference board makes choice—

Vernon Lester, Galt, named county assessor

Vernon Lester, 41, of Galt was chosen Tuesday night by the Wright county conference board over five out-of-county candidates to fill the office of county assessor left vacant the first of this year by the death of F. Ross Henry.

Five of the six applicants who passed the qualifying examination given by the state tax commission had been interviewed by the examining board appointed to make recommendations to the conference board. All five were labelled by the examiners — A. L. Saylor of Clarion, Marc Ihm of Belmond and Moine Yanney of Eagle Grove — as "qualified."

All 18 members of the county conference board were present Tuesday night when the appointment was made. In voting on the applicants, the five supervisors cast one ballot as a unit as did the five members of the county board of education and the eight mayors of the county. It was unanimous for the Wright county candidate.

Mr. Lester had had the lowest grade on the qualifying examination of the six who passed. The candidates, their ages and grades were: Eldon Dilocker, Fort Dodge realtor, age 58, grade of 89; Oren Nelson, 31, Humboldt county auditor, 88.

Raymond Swalve, 45, Garner, employee of an appraisal firm, 75; Valdean Buss (no age mentioned), Humboldt, who did not show up for interview, 74; Harold Boelkelman, 28, Britt, farmer and fieldman for assessor's office, 72; and Mr. Lester, 70.

A graduate of Clarion High school in 1943, Vernon for 11 years was proprietor of a garage and welding shop at Galt before accepting employment as a Wright county road maintenance man on April 15, 1961.

He is a member of the Galt town council; he was on the Galt school board for 11½ years, before it was put out of existence by the Clarion school reorganization, and for 2½ years was its secretary; and he is a member of the Galt fire department and its secretary.

Vernon is married and he and his wife Lois have four children: Paulette, 19, is a bookkeeper for the Wright County State bank at Clarion; Rebecca, 17, is a Clarion High school senior; Roxanne, 13, is an 8th-grader; and their only son, Tom, is age six.

Mr. Lester spent several days in the Hancock county assessor's office getting advice and counsel before taking the state examination. It was regarded by the conference board that he had done remarkably well in acquiring knowledge of the office in so short a time and that he should make Wright county a well-liked, fair and competent assessor.

Bronc tracksters will meet Lions

Coach Chuck Stalker's track and field hopefuls will get their first full-scale outing of the season next Wednesday afternoon at Clear Lake when they take Coach Dave Lang's Lions on in a dual meet. It will get underway at 4:00 o'clock.

With relay meet activity starting the following Friday at Eagle Grove, the Clear Lake affair will provide an opportunity to see what individual performers can do.

There will be a full slate of individual events — plus most, if not all, of the conventional relays.

Belmond will likely have two or three contestants in each event, so almost all of the squad members will have a chance to compete.

Goldfield star dash champion

Four schools of this area were among the point winners in the Class C state track meet Saturday at University of Iowa fieldhouse, Iowa City. Top placer was Bill Huisman, Goldfield's basketball ace, who won the 50-yard dash in :05.6 This tied a record first set in 1954 and since matched four times.

Jerry Letzring of CAL Community took 4th place in the high hurdles and 5th place in the shot put. Ken Pals of Meservey-Thornton picked off a 3rd place in the 60-yard high hurdles. Norm Baker of Kanawha tied for 5th place in the 440-yard dash.

Goldfield tied for 10th place in the meet with Huisman's six points. CAL and Meservey-Thornton each chalked up three and Kanawha one-half.

Sharp-R. Kinseth take over fifth in state doubles

Belmond bowlers experienced good success in the state bowling tournament at Waterloo last Saturday and Sunday. They rolled their singles and doubles at Cadillac Lanes and team event at Maple Lanes and found both easy to score on.

Best performance was that of George Sharp and Roger Kinseth in the doubles, their 1,250 putting them in 5th place to date. Sharp posted a fine 655 and Kinseth helped out with a very respectable 595.

Roger finished well up in all events with 1,757 — adding a 597 in the singles and 565 in the team event to his 655 doubles effort. He was only four pins ahead of his brother Larry, who had the top singles score for the Belmond contingent with a 624 Larry picked up 575 pins in the doubles and had a 554 in the team event.

Paul Tegland earned a good money spot in the singles with a 593. Larry Kinseth and Larry Schimp (583) posted an 1,158 in the doubles. Also bettering 1,100 in the doubles were Don Busick and Arlo Stoltenberg with 1,120 and Don Busick and Jack Lobdell with 1,113.

RANDOX KILLS FOXTAIL BEFORE IT SPROUTS

IF YOU PLAN TO PLANT SOYBEANS THIS YEAR . . .

You need RANDOX to keep foxtail and other grasses out of your fields. You'll enjoy control of some broadleaf weeds, too.

This unwanted growth in your soybean fields costs you money by reducing yields, causing extra field work and by making harvests take longer.

RANDOX pre-emergent herbicide ends your problem the low-cost way. Apply it as you plant and forget about grasses and weeds. They don't have a chance. As they sprout, they die, and you won't even see them.

Clean fields yield up to 7 extra bushels of soybeans. Tests prove it.

CLAIMS PUBLISHED PREVIOUSLY

Be It Remembered on this, the 30th day of December 1966, the Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa, met in session for the purpose of hearing on an amendment to the current operating budget adopted August 16, 1965. There were present a quorum as required by law. Thereupon, the Board found that the notice of time and place of hearing was published in the official newspapers on December 15, 1966 and that affidavits of publication thereof are on file with the County Auditor, according to law. Thereafter, and on said date the amendment was taken up and considered and taxpayers heard for or against the amendment as follows: None.

Thereafter, and after hearing all taxpayers to be heard, the Board took up the amendment to the budget for final consideration and determined that said budget be corrected by changing the proposed expenditures as listed in the original budget, in the Court Expense Fund from $22,000.00 to $37,000.00, to be paid from additional receipts other than taxation and cash balances at the close of the preceding fiscal year. The amendment does not increase the taxes to be collected in 1966.

Motion by Nelson, seconded by Christopher, to adopt the foregoing amendment. Upon roll call the vote was as follows: Ayes, Duitscher, Christopher, Kennedy and Nelson. Nays, None. Thereupon the Chairman declared the motion carried and the Amendment duly adopted.

Mr. Chet Hansen, State Examiner here for an audit of Wright County for the year 1965, visited with the Board. Among other things he discussed certain Funds, no longer needed, which have balances remaining in them and he recommended that a permanent transfer to the County General Fund be made.

The following Resolution was introduced and read:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, there is now in the hands of the treasurer the sum of $789.22, credited to the Jail Bond Fund: the sum of $31.81 credited to the Voting Machines Fund: the sum of $3,217.97 credited to the IPERS Fund and $44.90 credited to the FICA Fund, and

WHEREAS, it is desired to transfer $789.22 from the Jail Bond Fund; $31.81 from the Voting Machines Fund; $3,217.97 from the IPERS Funds and $44.90 from the FICA Fund, to the County General Fund for the following reason: The necessity for maintaining these funds has ceased to exist and it is advisable to close out said Funds, and

WHEREAS, said transfers are to be permanent in accordance with Section 24.21 of the Code of Iowa; and

WHEREAS, all laws relating to municipalities have been complied with,

At E. G. Memorial hall—

Beefmen's dinner next Wednesday

Kenneth Fulk, executive secretary of the Iowa State Fair board, will be the guest speaker at the Wright County Beef Producers' association banquet and annual meeting to be held on Wednesday of next week at the Eagle Grove Memorial building. The traditional standing rib roast dinner, cooked and served by George A. Hormel and company chefs, will be served starting at 6:30 p. m.

Mr. Fulk started early in the "fair business" by showing stock as a 4-H club member in Iowa. His farm youth activities included being Iowa president of FFA, member of top Iowa livestock judging teams in vocational agriculture and 4-H.

At Iowa State college he was a trackman and captain of the cross country team, business manager of the Iowa Agriculturist, top national collegiate judge at the American Royal in Kansas City, and scholarship winner to the American Youth Foundation Camp in Shelby, Mich.

After serving with the Marine Corps in World War II, Ken worked as a county extension director, farmed for a short time, and then worked with the Iowa Beef Producers' association, where his research work on beef carcasses spurred interest in beef promotion.

Mr. Fulk also was secretary of the American Shorthorn association and worked with the Iowa Agricultural Marketing division before he became State Fair secretary in 1962.

Gail Danilson, field representative of the Iowa Beef Producers' association, and Jim Stevenson, Goldfield, a director in the Iowa Beef Producers' association, will give reports at next week's meeting.

Winners of the guessing contest for last year will be announced and another contest will be held to give the banqueters a chance to guess the top price of beef at Chicago for the week of October 2-7, 1967.

Directors will be elected at this year's banquet from the northwest district, including Liberty, Boone, and Norway townships, where the present director is Loren Schipull; and the southeast district of Blaine, Vernon, and Wall Lake, now represented by Gene Sturgeon.

● ● ●

ROYAL GUEST

A special guest at next Wednesday's banquet of the Wright County Beef Producers' association will be Jeanne Strathe of Hubbard, reigning Iowa Beef Queen. She is a sophomore at Iowa State university, Ames. Jeanne was named Iowa Beef Queen at the Iowa Beef Festival last fall at Carroll.

Mason Citian offers "free trees" to replace those tornado wrecked

An offer to supply people of Belmond with some fine, young shade trees was made in the form of a letter read at the city council meeting Monday night. It was received from Mrs. George Holt of 971 S. Virginia avenue, Mason City.

She wrote to Mayor Robert Misner that she has on her property some well started ash trees of two varieties, hackberries and maples: also some honeysuckle hedge that could be transplanted. The trees, she said, range from small saplings to older specimens up to 15 or 16 feet high.

Mrs. Holt stated that trees planted not long ago on the new North Iowa Fairgrounds at Mason City came from this lot and that those left are "equally nice ones."

She plans to clear all the trees and honeysuckles shrubs from the property the first of May, but will wait the remainder of the month to see if any Belmond people would like to take advantage of her offer. She asks no payment, requesting only that those wanting them dig up the trees, that holes from which they are taken be filled and that she be notified when anyone plans to come so she can be at home. Her phone number is 423-3094.

There are several hundred of the trees to choose from, she adds. Such sturdy saplings would be fairly expensive, if obtained from a nursery.

Also at Monday night's meeting, the council received a report from Soil Solidifers, Inc., the concern that made a recent television inspection of the sewer on the 100 block of Main street and under Highway 69 on River avenue.

The city fathers were pleased to learn that very few broken tile were discovered and that little repair will be required to put the sewers in A-1 condition.

BETROTHAL of their daughter Sharion to marry Steve Hinman, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Hinman, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Donal Sparks of Chariton. Miss Sparks is employed by the Atomic Energy Commission laboratory at Ames. Her fiance is attending Iowa State university at Ames, where he is a junior in mechanical engineering. May 28 has been chosen as date of the wedding.

ENGAGEMENT of their daughter Diana is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Ryle Andrews. She will marry Wyatt Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoover of Rembrandt, an August wedding being planned. Miss Andrews is a senior at State College of Iowa. She will graduate in June. Her fiance is also attending SCI at Cedar Falls and will get his degree in August.

Soloists to sing in studio recital

A studio recital will be presented Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the BHS vocal music room to give young soloists scheduled to compete in the state contest the following weekend an opportunity to gain some experience performing before an audience.

Stanley Norson, vocal music instructor, says that 16 boys and girls will sing numbers that will be contest selections this year. He says the recital will last slightly over an hour.

Mrs. Roger Kinseth, Mrs. R. W. Courson and Mrs. Don Bunnell will serve as piano accompanists.

EXTENSION OFFICE HOURS

New year-around office hours for the Wright county extension office have been established by the Extension Council, which had been temporarily in force since last December. Week days the office will be open from 7:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., including the noon hour. The office will be closed on Saturdays.

CAP election meeting slated for this evening

Annual election meeting of the Wright County Community Action Program, Inc., will be held this (Thursday) evening at 7:30 o'clock at the community room of the First National bank in Clarion.

V. E. Hanson of Belmond, retiring president, says, "Any dedicated person willing and able to 'help others help themselves' is cordially invited to attend and participate in the meeting."

Two present county CAP members are to be replaced by election of successors — George Hinman of Belmond and Dean Luke of Eagle Grove. In addition, two Wright representatives on the area governing board of YOUR, Inc., are to be elected, plus a completely new slate of Wright county CAP officers.

The two carry-over representatives of this county on the board of YOUR, Inc., are Mr. Hanson and DeWayne Knoshaug of Clarion.

David Bappe, assistant director of YOUR, Inc., whose area Economic Opportunities office is located at Fort Dodge, has advised Mr. Hanson that all Iowa counties not presently having OEO projects in force may at this time resubmit previously unapproved projects.

Wright county's CAP board plans to again seek approval of a county homemakers project which was rejected last winter for lack of funds. It was resubmitted to the Kansas City OEO office this week for reconsideration. A federal grant of approximately $25,000 for one year's operation was requested.

This homemaker service would employ women capable of assuming responsibility for household management, child and adult care, and for maintaining a wholesome atmosphere in the home. They would be given special training and then assigned to homes where help beyond the capacity of a daily household worker is needed.

Mr. Hanson explains that homes that would be considered for homemaker service would include: where aging, disabled or ill adults live alone or with one other elderly person; where the mother is ill or incapacitated, whether in or out of the home, and children need care.

Also, homes of families whose economic or emotional instability results in health problems, strained relations, poor work records, and frequent economic crises; and homes where housekeeping and child care standards are low and result in neglect of children.

Irvin Meier heads 64 students on honor roll

Only one of the three Belmond Community High school students who managed to achieve straight A grade averages for the first semester was able to extend the accomplishment through the third quarter. That was Irvin Meier.

Eighteen of these were from the senior class: Ted Berns, Gail Bierman, Barbara Burt, Charles Christenson, Glenda Cunningham, Ed Dana, Neil Kalkwarf, Marcia Kelley, Pam Meints, Barbara Pals, Ann Reasoner, Roxanne Slining, Linda Suntken, Doug Thompsen, Linda Thompson, Susan Thompson, Bob Vander Schaaf and Larry Zeiger.

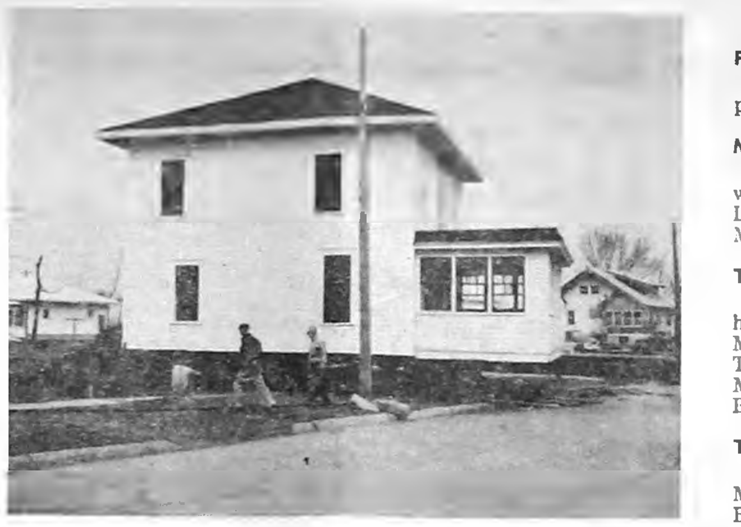
Twelve other freshmen in addition to the Meier boys earned recognition: Rebecca Bell, Vicki Boelman, Geraldine Didio, Allen Halfpop, Martha Jones, Kathryn Kelley, Kirk Lieberknecht, Lois Pals, Gloria Porter, Peggy Schroder, Diane Tracy and Bill Wagner.



A QUICK SWITCH Thursday of last week saw the large frame dwelling above moved from the Mrs. Laura Waltzing property at 512 Third avenue NE directly across the street to a lot which Larry Dorr purchased from Leslie Smith after it was "cleared" by the tornado. Having been unable to get anyone to tear down the house pictured, Mrs. Waltzing gave it to Mr. Dorr in exchange for getting it off her premises so she can build a house more fitting to her needs. Starting at 7:00 a. m., the Dorr moving gang had the 60-to-70-ton structure over the basement across the street by noon. Entailed was lowering and then rehoisting phone and electric lines on both sides of the street, and reloading the house with the rollers reversed after arriving at the middle of the street. Larry plans to fix the house up in A-1 shape, and says he already has three parties eager to buy the refinished product.

IEL&P in joint study regarding nuclear station

Initial studies on the need for generating capacity that may be required to serve customers in central Iowa have been launched by the Iowa Electric Light and Power company in colaboration with three other utilities organizations, reports Duane Arnold, president of Iowa Electric.

Commonwealth Associates, Inc., of Jackson, Mich., has been retained by the group to investigate the feasibility of a new generating station under contemplation being fired by nuclear energy instead of conventional fossil fuels such as coal.

Commonwealth is a well-established consulting engineering firm with considerable experience in nuclear power generation development. Its study will include a topographical review of the geographical area to determine practical sites for generating plans.

Efficiency and economy will be the determining factors in a decision as to wether a nuclear plant would be the best choice.

"This phase of the study," says Mr Arnold, "is the initial step in a series that may lead to construction of what would probably be the largest generating station in Iowa."

He adds that present generating capacity in Iowa is adequate to take care of immediate needs of the state's electric and power users, but that the study is intended to look ahead and anticipate power requirements in the next five to 20 years.

Joining with Iowa Electric in authorizing the study are Central Iowa Power Cooperative of Marion, Iowa Power and Light of Des Moines and South-western Federated Power Cooperative of Creston.

DAVE BACHMAN

Bachman having part in making "biggest" plane

As an assembly worker at Lockheed-Georgia company, Marietta, Ga., a Goodellian is presently having a hand in construction of the largest airplane ever made. He is Dave Bachman, son of Mrs. Zelma Bachman and the late Roy Bachman and a 1961 graduate of Belmond Community High school.

An employee of Lockheed-Georgia since last July, Dave has served in various construction departments and a variety of jobs. His present assignment is as an assemblyman on the C-54, an air-going giant that will be the hugest craft in the skies upon its completion.

Violinist giving Clarion concert

General admission tickets will be available at the door for the performance of David Abel, violinist, who will appear at the Clarion school auditorium next Wednesday at 8:00 p. m. as an attraction of the Wright County Concert series.

Although a young man of only 30 years, Mr. Abel has a professional career of 13 years behind him. He first appeared as a solist with the San Francisco Symphony when he was only 17 years old.

In the years since, he has appeared with such major orchestras as those of Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles and Minneapolis. He made his recital debut at New York's Town Hall in 1954.

Quarter million paid in Wright

The Wright County Stabilization and Conservation committee has announced that advance payments totaling over $750.000 have been made to farmers and landowners in Wright county who have enrolled in the 1967 feed grain program.

A total of 1,313 Wright county farms have been enrolled in the 1967 feed grain program. This represents 67 per cent of all of the feed grain farms in the county. Operators on the enrolled farms indicate that 26,500 acres will be diverted from feed grain production in 1967

The committee reminds all producers enrolled in the feed grain program that grazing of diverted acres is not permitted from April 1 through October 1. And as in the past, no crop may be taken from the diverted land at any time during the year.

Vets' exemption dates extended

A bill has been signed by Gov. Harold Hughes which liberalizes servicemen's tax exemption requirements and adds veterans of the Viet Nam conflict to those eligible for such exemptions on property and personal taxes.

Florence Breckenridge, assistant Wright county assessor, notes that Viet Nam veterans are now eligible for the service exemptions if they saw duty there any time from Aug. 4, 1964, until such time as hostilities cease.

The service period affecting Korean veterans as to exemptions has been extended to Jan. 31, 1955. The initial date for those in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines is June 27, 1950.

Anyone having served in a branch of the armed forces during the periods designated may sign application for exemptions any time from Jan. 1 to July 1. It is required that they have their official military discharge recorded at the recorder's office to substantiate their eligibility.

Let not the sun go down upon your wrath. — Eph. 4:26

What's good for Belmond is ALSO good for YOU!

Perspective is a wonderful thing — when it's broad enough to view BOTH sides of a matter.

Belmond is having a little perspective trouble these days. It could be the death of us. . . . Oh, that's probably putting it a bit too strong. But it is not stretching things a speck to say that our town's future is being measured these days by the breadth of perspective that we can apply to our common problems.

Just as a farmer is steward of his land, and must bear in mind his responsibility to future generations, we who live in Belmond today owe an obligation to the generations that will follow us.

What kind of a community they will have to live in, we are determining right now. This is particularly true in light of the devastation dealt us by the tornado. Under ordinary circumstances, the influence that would be within our power to exert would be much less than happens now to be the case.

We can set our standards for the Belmond of tomorrow by our own strictly personal concerns — a penny saved is a penny earned . . . what's in it for ME? . . . that sort of thing. Or we can cast our lot with the future of our town, the LONG-RANGE future, and join with fellow citizens in making that future as bright as possible.

Main street is getting pretty well dotted with business establishments that have "let the tail go with the hide" in repairing the ravages of the tornado. Their confidence in Belmond has been such that just "fixing up" wasn't good enough. They were determined to be BETTER than ever before.

It rests heavily upon the whole of the business community to follow their pattern.

It isn't difficult to foretell the fate of Belmond if it is satisfied to present the gap-toothed appearance of a punch-drunk pugilist who's gone down for the count one time too many. Nor should it take much imagination to envision the much brighter future to be expected if Main street dons a new face that bespeaks a hearty constitution and a resolve to go after business on an aggressively competitive basis.

It behooves every businessman to map his plans with the welfare of his town in mind, as well as his own individual situation.

When a certain gentleman once said, "What's good for General Motors is good for the country," the remark brought grins from readers because of the less than objective perspective that it revealed. The even greater truth that "What's good for the country is good for General Motors" appeared to be forgotten.

In our case, what's good for Belmond is good for the individual business. It's going to be mighty important that those who make their livelihood here appreciate that THIS must have a bearing on their perspective.

Lax training "manly"? Nope! It's just kid stuff

Something new was added to the Belmond High school track workouts last week. Little Larry "Butch" Kramer was out there in spikes, pacing the distance candidates.

In the seven years since he and three teammates brought BHS the state indoor Class A championship and accounted for all but six of 41 points that later won Belmond the outdoor title, we presume some of the spring steel has gone from those bandy legs. But we're willing to bet the old, fiery spirit is still there.

If he can inoculate the current crop of athletes with that spirit, he'll be doing BHS and its sports program a tremendous service. For, the truth to tell, the sharp edge of competitive resolve has seemed to be losing some of its keenness among some of the Broncos.

Our wrestlers and basketball players gave close attention at last week's winter sports banquet put on by the Belmond Lions as Jim Duncan of Drake told some of his experiences with truly "dedicated" athletes. They were impressed by the achievements that Duncan recounted in his tales of athletes who were willing to pay the price demanded of a winner.

We couldn't help but wonder if they applied to themselves the lesson to be learned. Or if they fully understood it. Duncan told, for example, of Gary Lindgren — a high school distance star, himself, at the time — running 30 miles a day in preparation for the 1964 Olympics in order that he could bring international laurels to his country and himself.

Dedication can exact varying prices, according to its degree. There are few athletes who perform 100 per cent up to their ability with regularity. They are the ones who have, by determination and effort, found out just how good they CAN BE; and they're mighty unhappy fellows any time they suspect they've turned in a performance that's less than their best.

Larry Kramer and his title-winning teammates — Dave Suntken, Lynn Jenison and Mike Long — would have thought it laughable if an evening's companion suggested that puffing on a fag is any proof of hair on the chest. Their idea of establishing their manhood was to run into the ground a bigger, stronger or — on more than a few occasions — a potentially superior foe, thanks to better conditioning.

There's no disgrace to losing. But losing due to inability to perform up to one's best is a different matter. And an indifferent attitude toward training sooner or later brings unnecessary defeats; that's as certain as anything can be.

It would be doing the current crop of Bronco athletes a rank disfavor to imply that anything like a majority of them are taking an indifferent attitude toward training. But those who ARE, know it. And Larry Kramer can tell them they are proving nothing beyond the fact that they're too wet behind the ears to pay a man's price for a man's accomplishments.

Success simply doesn't come without a DETERMINATION TO SUCCEED. And although casual training may to a relatively slight degree hamper a young fellow in the prime of his life, it's a lead-pipe guarantee that he'll do LESS than his BEST.

You can bet that cavities here are decreasing

Without any particular fooferaw, the Belmond city council three-plus years ago started to fluoridate the local water supply as a dental health benefit for the Belmond younger generation — and generations to come.

Insofar as we know, no survey has been conducted here to ascertain the effect that fluoridation has had in reducing the number of cavities afflicting our school children. Actually, it's a little soon to be expecting really widespread results — for the greatest affect is on youngsters who have been drinking fluoridated water since birth.

Des Moines introduced fluoridation seven years ago; and a study was recently completed there to ascertain what the benefits have been. The results should be a matter of interest here.

It was discovered that since 1960 tooth decay in school-age children at the capital city has been reduced by 41.9 per cent — ranging from 60.8 among six-year-olds to 20 per cent among 13-year-olds. The clear indication is that children "raised" on fluoridated water can confidently expect to have less than half as many cavities as those residing in less farsighted communities.

It was duly noted by Des Moines officials that in 1960, only 15 per cent of the school children examined had teeth wholly free of cavities. After seven years of fluoridation, the figure stood at 26 per cent.

In dwelling on this evidence from Des Moines, last week's Iowa Falls Citizen observed, "Iowa Falls parents who read the results of this study on the benefits of fluoridation should be fighting mad . . . mad at themselves for not demanding that fluoridation be started here."

We might say that Belmond parents should be correspondingly grateful to the progressive municipal administration here that simply went ahead and fluoridated our water — ready to accept what criticism as might result. It was a good deed done.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

With reapportionment taken care of, at least for the time being, the legislature began action on a number of other problems.

One of the more important and controversial issues came up in the Senate. This involved a series of seven bills which would greatly alter the state's present court system from the justice of peace courts to the district court. One aim of the court reform plan is to place the lower court under the supervision of the district court and this plan was considered.

The bill originally provided that all justices of the peace be replaced by district commissioners, who would be selected by district court judges. The bill provided that these district commissioners be law-trained.

THIS WAS CONSIDERED BY the Senate to be too drastic a departure from the present system and the bill was amended so that the district judge could appoint laymen.

Good justices of peace will probably still have their job and most thought this was necessary because of the unavailability of personnel and the expense inherent in the provision that they be all law-trained.

I believe this was good legislation and represents progress because of the elimination of the major fault of the justice of the peace system, in which fees were contingent upon finding the defendant guilty.

THIS MAY BE THE LAST COLumn in which I make reference to reapportionment. Iowa's press was unusually complimentary to the Iowa legislature for arriving at the solution through various bills and resolutions which:

1. Establish a 10-member state commission to recommend single-member districts in those counties electing more than one Senator and Representative. The commission must submit its findings to the legislature, which will then make the final determination of the districts. The state chairman of each political party will select five members to the commission.

2. GIVE FINAL LEGISLATURE approval to a permanent reapportionment constitutional amendment. This plan, which was passed by both houses in the 1965 session, now goes to the voters for approval in the 1968 elections. The proposal, if approved, would require the 1969 session to reduce the size of the House to 100 members and the Senate to 50, to take effect in the 1970 elections.

3. Give first legislative approval to a proposed constitutional amendment to require that every Senator and Representative be elected from a single-member district. This mandatory subdistricting proposal must be approved by a vote of the people. Contained in the compromise plan was a pledge that both parties would support the proposal in the 1969 session and urge its passage at a special election in 1969.

THIS WEEK THE SENATE gave approval to many Governor appointments. It is an additional responsibility of the Senate over the duties of the House. All of the appointments confirmed this week were non-controversial and took very little time.

The hearings of the permanent sub-committee on Government Reorganization ended prior to the Easter recess. I was a member of that committee. The chairman of the Governmental Affairs committee, recognizing that I might be able to handle an additional assignment, put me on a sub-committee of three which is to make recommendations to the full Governmental Affairs committee on educational television.

This is a gigantic undertaking to start on this late in the legislative session. I have already participated in three hearings and we are hopeful that we can get some legislation drafted which would implement an embryonic plan.

Many of my constituents have asked me personally why it is that the legislature delays decisions on important matters to the final day of the week. The answer is relatively simple.

Important issues are usually very controversial issues and these take time to draft and to compromise. We have been working hard on the tax reform matter but they have not yet agreed on the details.

They have, as I explained in previous columns, agreed on the principles.

RECESS OVER—
Legislators are back at the Statehouse, after a 10-day recess. All are agreed that the so-called "vacation" was more work than play, partly due to catching up on their own affairs but primarily to meeting with their constituents, both singly and in groups, to discuss not only the work of the session so far but its probable course in the days ahead.

Sen. Robert Burns of Johnson drew a laugh from the Senate when he suggested that the legislators ought to get "combat pay" when they go home for a recess.

HOWARD REPPERT OF POLK had found another solution: he and Mrs. Reppert spent the recess in Florida and the Senator came back so tanned that the Chair addressed him as the "Senator from Florida."

All seem to be agreed that, for one reason or another, the recess is a valuable part of the session, both to contact voters at home or to gather strength for the remaining half of the session—admittedly the toughest part.

SUB-DISTRICTING PLAN—
It seems that reapportionment is a never-ending battle. A milestone was reached, however, when the legislators agreed on a compromise plan. The salient features of this plan include:

(1) Keeping the legislature at its present size (61 member Senate and 124 member House) for the 1969 session; (2) setting up mandatory subdistricting; (3) sending to a vote of the people the so-called permanent reapportionment plan, which calls for a House of 100 and a Senate of 50.

PART OF THE COMPROMISE was to create a 10-member bi-partisan commission to subdistrict the larger counties for the 1968 elections. The commission, to be named by the two central committees, has until May 1 to come up with a sub-districting plan. Even though a commission is doing the sub-districting, it still must be approved by the legislature.

So the reapportionment spotlight will now turn to sub-districting and the work of this special commission.

FULTON FOR NEEDLES—
In rapid-fire order, the name of Gene Needles was withdrawn for further consideration as state safety commissioner and a new name, Jack Fulton, was submitted for the post. Needles, who had been interim safety commissioner since January of 1966, had been rejected earlier by the Senate.

After Needles' rejection, Democrats filed a motion to reconsider the appointment in the hopes of finding additional support for the Des Moines Democrat.

But the efforts were for naught, and shortly after the legislators returned for their 10-day spring recess, Gov. Harold Hughes submitted Fulton's name. Fulton, 35, has been Linn county attorney since 1963. His confirmation seems assured.

TEACHER SALARIES—
A record pay boost may put Iowa educators above the national average teaching salary next year for the first time in history. Figures compiled by the National Education Association (NEA) show that Iowa now ranks 29th in the nation with an average teaching salary of $6,531.

This is more than $600 below the U. S. average of $7,119 for the 1966-67 school year. But a survey by the Iowa State Education Association of salary actions approved in 284 public school districts indicates both beginning and experienced Iowa teachers will receive a sizeable increase next year.

Top starting salary for B. A. degree holders with no teaching experience will be $6,000. More schools are following ISEA guidelines, which recommended that salaries for present faculty members be increased an average of 15 per cent. The ISEA research study shows that teachers in at least 70 school districts will receive an average salary increase of 15 per cent or more.

DOUBLE-TROUBLE—
The most controversial subject facing the 62nd General Assembly is the question of 65-foot "double-bottom" trucks. A bill increasing the maximum length of double-bottom trucks from 60 to 65 feet passed both houses. While awaiting action from the governor, whether to sign or veto it, the proposal was attacked by various groups which received widespread publicity.

Finally Governor Hughes, a former truck driver, threatened to veto the bill in its original form. So the bill was called back. Hughes said he wants the highway commission to have blanket authority to restrict the 65-foot trucks from using certain highways. Another stipulation he set down was to restrict the double-bottom trucks, those with two or more trailers, so that no single trailer could be more than 40 feet long.

In guiding Belmond's future—

City planning commission plays vital role

One of the most active municipal bodies since last October's tornado has been the Belmond planning commission, which is headed by C. C. Christie as chairman. About two weeks ago, at one of the numerous meetings it has held since the disaster, the group gathered at the city hall to receive the fourth in a series of preliminary planning reports it has requested of Wallace Holland Kastler and Schmitz, Mason City engineering firm.

This report was presented by Paul Jensen, planner on the Wallace-Holland staff. It was concerned with "Goals and Objectives, and Transportation Plan for the City of Belmond," plus an addendum to a "Community Facilities" report made earlier.

The latest planning study was one of three initiated as a result of conferences between the city council and representatives of the Planning Division of the Iowa Development Commission subsequent to the tornado.

Funds for the data prepared by Wallace-Holland for the planning commission came from the $15,000 grant received from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, to which the Iowa Development Commission added $4,400 and the city of Belmond $600.

These same funds financed the initial planning for central business district development, which was done by Leo A. Daily company of Omaha; and the preparation of a set of ordinances setting building, plumbing and electrical standards, which a Des Moines engineering firm, Veenstra and Kimm, prepared for the city.

No council action has as yet been taken on the proposed building regulations; and Gjelten and Schellberg, Forest City architectural firm, has replaced Daily as planner of the proposed business district development.

Originally, the local planning commission was looking into Belmond's future by holding monthly meetings and ordering such studies as seemed pertinent.

Present members of the commission, besides Mr. Christie, are: Dr. A. M. Larson, vice chairman; Mrs. A. C. Lieuwen, secretary; Clarence Hildebrand, Don Faris, R. H. Gowdy, Ellis Elliott, Mrs. Russell Schaal, Russell Reasoner, O'Larry Dorr, Larry Flanagan, A. W. Loats and Gene Griffin.

Set up as an advisory body, the commission has no authority in its own right but serves as an important investigative agency in the council's behalf. It has representatives on the New Belmond Action committee, a companion agency set up to deal more specifically with municipal problems originating with the tornado.

First of the planning studies initiated by the commission pertained to the economic reasons for Belmond's existence, the industries which support the community, the trends in these industries and projections for industrial development to the year 1975.

A second report was entitled "Neighborhood Analysis" and dealt with the quality of housing within Belmond. This was submitted quite some time prior to the tornado and dealt with the necessity of restoring deteriorated dwellings to a standard of safe and adequate housing. Goals of this particular study were, of course, radically altered by the destruction caused by the tornado.

Third of the pre-tornado reports secured from Wallace-Holland was entitled "Community Facilities." Some of the recommendations in the report relative to expanded industry have already been implemented to some degree by the Belmond Industrial Development corporation.

A major proposal was the establishment of a municipal airport, an undertaking that has for the time being become impractical until post-tornado problems have been dealt with.

A park and recreation plan incorporated in this report is being given serious consideration by the BIDC in its tentative proposal to create a riverside park west of Highway 69 and to the south of the Iowa river bridge.

In the light of conditions that exist since the October disaster, some specific goals have been suggested by Wallace-Holland for implementation as promptly as feasible. These, the planning commission is concerning itself with to the end of relieving the city council, BIDC and New Belmond Action committee of investigative details to the maximum degree possible.

These were included in the report submitted last week and are as follows:

1. Restoration of facilities and amenities destroyed by the storm; 2. an industrial park; 3. improved administrative organization for plan implementation; 4. an active program to improve the quality of the business district.

5. An active program to improve the quality of housing; 6. the adoption of a park and recreation plan; 7. amendments to the zoning and sub-division regulations; 8. a study of corporate limits.

9. The positive steps toward the preparation of a capital improvements program; 10. recommendations regarding post office and retirement home sites; 11. the adoption of a major streets plan.

In the transportation section of the latest report the need for traffic signals at the intersection of Highway 69 and Main street is stressed; also, the proposed relocation of the bridge over the Iowa river at Main street and a generalized major street plan.

The "Addendum to the Community Facilities" report discusses the types of trees that might be used to replace those destroyed by the tornado. It lists their general characteristics including size, adaptability, shape, growth rate and general locations suggested for planting the trees.

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 43 NO. 29 — OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER — WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, APRIL 13, 1967 — OFFICIAL CITY PAPER — 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Larry McLaughlin, Belmond's peripatetic ex-soldier whose European travels were the topic of occasional Independent items over a period of three years, has settled down for the time being, A note lately received from him advises that he is now assistant manager of the Arizona Flower Shop, Inc., in balmy Phoenix, Ariz.

As might be expected, before he settled entirely down to the business of being a civilian, he had to get a bit of travel out of his system. That took in Mexico, California and Arizona. Readers of his travelogues may recall that he toured 17 countries abroad, while the opportunity was at hand.

Now, Larry's already thinking in terms of the travel opportunities that will be presented when he gets a three-week vacation in August. He's missed six continental states and Alaska and plans to get those omissions rectified. He writes that his address is SAKS "5" 1308 N. 5th st. Apt, D, Phoenix 85004. (If you can find him home!)

Every now and then we get a tip on an item that is so good we fear to check it out lest it be denied and lose a story. In this category is the tale we overheard regarding Hank Stokke and a recent visit he made to the Minneapolis airport. As it was told to us, Hank found the parking facilities remarkably commodious and could hardly make up his mind WHERE to park — until an excited gentleman in a pursing car told him to get the heck off the runway. If Hank mildly denies the story, it probably didn't happen. If he VEHEMENTLY denies it . . . you're entitled to wonder.

Explorer Scouts of Post 16 have a real deal for local folks needing to get spring work done. A two-for-the-price-of-one bargain, in fact (if you figure minimum wage at $1.25 an hour).

This Saturday and Saturday of next week (April 15-22), the Explorers are conducting Work Days and offer their services in four-man crews at $2.50 an hour for the bunch. You can hardly beat that!

They have strong backs, and are willing. They're available on the days specified from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. If you want to reserve some Explorer manpower, just phone 2920.

Light was shed on something we've been wondering about when a leading Belmond citizen (whose initials are the same as the third tone of the diatonic scale) handed us this poem written by that busy author, A. Nony Mous: "The bumble bee is a simple soul; He don't believe in birth control; That's why in trying days like these, We have so many sons of b's."

Quite a good-sized handful of Belmondites over the past weekend took advantage of the kind offer of Mrs. George Holt of Mason City to provide local residents with free trees and honeysuckle shrubs to compensate for greenery lost to the tornado. They found the Holt home at 971 S. Virginia avenue located on nine acres of ground quite densely overgrown with trees and shrubbery.

Mrs. Holt not too long ago lost her husband; and then had the misfortune to break her hip. She's resolved to "get the place cleaned up," and before she has someone come in to do the job thoroughly she's happy to have any from here who can use them come in and help themselves to the available trees and shrubbery.

On the grounds in quantity are two varieties of ash trees, plus hackberries, maples and a plethora of honeysuckle. Mrs. Holt, whose phone number is 423-3094, appreciates an advance phone call so she can be home when someone arrives to take up her offer. Otherwise, her only requirement is that holes dug be filled and smoothed as well as possible. That makes the price decidedly "right".

Knowing how empty are the promises of disaster aid offered by some federal agencies, Senator Hugh Clarke this week introduced a bill in the Iowa legislature that would permit the state to step into the picture in time of calamity. He is finding his fellow legislators quite receptive to the idea, too.

It would not be retroactive, so it would be of no benefit to Belmond. But Hugh would like to see other disaster-striken Iowa communities escape the cruel bind that Belmond has found itself in these wearisome days of recovery.

Senator Clarke's bill would permit outright grants-in-aid by the state, not to exceed $100,000, or immediate loans without interest to help city governments in declared disaster area. The state executive council would administer the program. Communities in flood areas find a lot they like in the bill.

Including new construction, repairs—

Rebuilding to date estimated at $1,885,000

City building permits issued since the first of the year have brought up to an estimated $1,235,000 the residential and commercial building that was in very major degree made necessary by destruction caused by last October's tornado. Permits issued from the time of the storm up to last Thursday numbered 136.

In cases where no structural change was made in the repair of damaged buildings, no building permit was required.

An experienced local builder estimates that repairs requiring no permit could be conservatively figured at 50 per cent of the reconstruction cost covered by permits. This would add approximately $618.000 to repairs completed or underway and push the total investment in rebuilding to something over $1,850,000.

Permits applied for since Jan. 1 (or previously unreported) were for the construction of nine new dwellings, for moving in and major remodelling of two houses, for the repair and remodelling of four damaged homes and for an addition to another; and for the building of 11 new garages.

Also the construction of three new commercial buildings, repair and remodelling of two others and installation of additional storage facilities at Armour Agricultural Chemical company.

Estimated cost of five of the new dwellings was not itemized on the permits obtained. These permits were issued as follows:

Mrs. Harold Rierson, 704 Fourth ave. NE, no cost estimate; Wayne Pals, 203 Sunset Drive, no estimate; George Roskamp, 904 Fourth ave. NE, $9,000; Russell Beenken, 912 Fourth ave. NE, $14,000; Joe Dana, 920 Fourth ave. NE, no estimate.

Gordon Sandman, 311 Fourth ave. NE, $13,050; Dick Dirks, 216 Second ave. NE, no estimate; Duan Thompson, 812 Sixth ave. NE, $15,000; Clarence Johnson, 412 Seventh st. NE, $20,000; Titcia Boelman, 412 Third ave. NE, no estimate.

Permits for major repair, remodelling or additions went to: Dr. A. M. Nelson, 408 Seventh st. NE, home repair and rebuilding garage, no estimate; Ben Heginger, 315 River ave. S, remodelling and addition; George Crawford, 312 Fifth st. NE, remodelling and addition; Doug Walrod, 308 Third st. NE, addition, $1,100; John Kriens, 415 Sixth st. NE, house moved in and remodelled $6,000; O'Larry Dorr, 511 Third ave. NE, house moved in and remodelled, $10,000.

Obtaining permits to build garages were: C. K. Hildebrand, 815 Fourth ave. NE, $1,425; Ernest Basener, 215 Third ave. NE, no estimate; Christal Friesleben, 307 First ave. NE, no estimate; William Dirks, 403 Sixth ave. SE, $1,000; Henry Nuehring, 303 Fourth st. NE, $1,725; Donald Dirks, 415 Second ave. NE, no estimate.

Harry Sorenson, 304 Third ave. SE, $1,000; James O'Connor, 511 Sixth st. NE, $1,000; Robert Hinman, 307 Third st. SE, $1,200; David Dorr, 712 Second ave. NE, $1,200; Bert Kalfwarf, 308 Third st. NE, $1,100; Leslie Smith, 316 Fourth av. SE, addition to garage, $175.

Business building permits were as follows: Followwill Implment company, steel building, no estimate; M. L. Followwill, shoe store, $6,000; M. L. Followwill, repair and build addition to former liquor store and adjoining storage building, $15,000; Fullerton Lumber company, brick and frame lumber building, $20,000; Belmond Publishing company, repair and remodeling, $10,000; Armour's, ammonia storage, $15,000.

By The Independent's nearest count, 55 new houses have been completed, are in progress of construction or are planned and have been issued permits. Major repairs and remodelling has been done on eight homes; and 48 new garages have been built.

Commercial building permits have called for about $380,000 worth of construction, leaving the difference of $855,000 accounted for by residential construction.

At ceremonies Sunday—

St. Olaf dedicates new additions

A considerable number of friends joined with members of the St. Olaf Lutheran church Sunday afternoon to inspect the new Sunday school unit and narthex (entryway) that had been dedicated at the morning service.

Particular honor was paid to the late Herman Johnson and his wife Nora, from whose estates came a major portion of the funds for the two improvements.

Also acknowledged were the gifts of glass entrance doors from the Tendall and Lonning families; sacristy desk from Thomas Tendall family; chalkboards and religious pictures from Nick Nelson and family; guest register desk from Jackson Brothers, Kanawha, building contractors.

Among the founders of the St. Olaf church in May of 1872 were C. M. Johnson and Ales Hanson Johnson, who were the parents of Herman Johnson.

St. Olaf's history goes back to 19 years before its actual organization. It was in June of 1869 that a small party of Norwegian families came from LaCrosse, Wis., to farm northwest of Belmond.

In the group were Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hanson with their three sons, Hans, Ole and John, and their daughter Ales; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simerson and son Simon; and C. M. Johnson. In the early 1870's the Norwegian settlement was enlarged with the coming of other families.

After the people of the area had for three years met in various of their homes to worship, they organized in May of 1872 the Ringsaker Norwegian Lutheran church and Rev. O. A. Sauer of Story county was called to serve as their pastor.

HERMAN AND NORA JOHNSON

After the first schoolhouses were built in that rural vicinity in 1875, the congregation obtained permission to use one of these as their house of worship. It was in the James Johnson schoolhouse in Norway township that the St. Olaf Congregation was organized on Sept. 29, 1888.

All its members were former Ringsaker members. Rev. H. C. Holm was called to be the pastor and served until 1900. The new congregation was incorporated on Dec. 4, 1888, and construction of a church was started, the $3,000 edifice being dedicated in June of the following year.

The first constitution was officially adopted on Jan. 5, 1894. Growth of the congregation necessitated the construction of two additions to the building in 1898. At the same time, the altar was built and the altar painting completed, these improvements being dedicated on Nov. 18, 1899.

Anniversaries that have been duly observed during the years were the 40th in October of 1929, the 50th in June of 1938, the 60th in November of 1948 and the 75th in June of 1963.

Rev. Oscar Laaveg is only the seventh pastor to have served the congregation during the lifetime of the church. Following H. C. Holm were J. J. Akre, John Hetland, H. M. Jenson, B. O. Guldseth and O. M. Severseike.

Four sign thefts represent loss of nearly $200

Four signs erected by and belonging to the state conservation commission were torn down at East and West Twin Lakes in Hancock county and Morse Lake in Wright county weekend before last. The signs had a total value of between $170 and $200, which removes their theft from the status of vandalism and makes the crime a felony.

Larry Book, conservation staff member at Clarion, says he will be very grateful for any information that can be given him that would lead to identification of the culprits or recovery of the signs. His Clarion phone number is 532-2950, and he may be called collect.

Two of the signs were brown-painted wooden maps of Iowa, one with the "East Twin Lake" carved on it and other, "West Twin Lake." The other two signs were fabricated of green fiberglass and were inscribed "Public Hunting — East Twin Lake" and "Public Fishing — Morse Lake," respectively.

Mr. Brooks says that the conservation commission wages and endless fight against vandalism in the state parks, which respresents heavy expense to the taxpayer. The public's assistance in combatting the senseless damage could help materially in reducing the extensive vandalism, he believes.

CUB SCOUTS VISIT KRIT-FM

Den 5 of the Cub Scouts took a tour of radio station KRIT-FM at Clarion Monday afternoon. The eight Cubs were accompanied by their Den Mother, Mrs. Cleo Wilson, the assistant Den Mother, Mrs. Frank Patterson, and Mrs. Robert Summers.

Funeral services held on Tuesday for E. G. Miller

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Immanuel Reformed church for Ernest F. Miller, 45, who died very suddenly early Saturday morning at his home northeast of Belmond. His death was attributed to a heart attack.

Rev. Robert Vander Schaaf officiated over the rites and Johnston Funeral Home was in charge. Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Four sons of the deceased served as pallbearers: Dwight, Earl, Dwayne and Ernest.

Ernest Frank Miller was born at Fletcher, Okla., on Sept. 21, 1921, son of Earl G. and Vergie Lovett Miller. He was married on June 5, 1945, at Estherville to Vernice Cummins. During their first five years of marriage they lived in Oklahoma.

In 1950 the family moved to South Dakota, then coming to Iowa. The Millers lived for a period of time near Rowan, before moving several years ago near Belmond. Mr. Miller was employed as a farm worker.

Survivors besides his widow are: Dwight, of Belmond; Earl, of Ringstead; Dwayne and Ernest, with the U. S. Navy in Florida; Betty, Byrtul, Virgil, Michael and Renee, living at home; and one grandchild.

Mr. Miller also leaves two brothers, Warren Miller of Sioux Falls, S. D., and Leland of Colton, Calif.; and a sister, Mrs. Betty Ellis of Vermillion, S. D.

His parents and one brother preceded him in death.

WALDORF CHOIR TO SING SUNDAY EVE AT CLARION

Sunday evening the Waldorf College Chapel choir from Forest City will present a concert in the First Lutheran church at Clarion, beginning at 8:00 o'clock.

An invitation is extended to the general public to hear the 48-voice choral group, which is under the direction of Prof. Adrian Johnson. There is no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken.

ATTENDS HAGEN RITES

Sue Hill of LaCrosse, Wis., spent Friday night with Jane Hill at Waldorf college, Forest City. She came to attend the funeral of Odvin Hagen on Saturday morning with the student body.

Coming up—Operation "Big Sweep"

Plans are being completed by the Belmond Chamber of Commerce for a operation "Big Sweep," a communitywide clean-up to take place in Belmond during the week of April 24-29.

With debris left by the tornado still in plentiful evidence around town, Chamber President Ed Gabrielson says that the Clean-up Week should pose a greater challenge this year than any such event has in the past.

As a special feature of the promotion, a before-and-after photo contest will be conducted to catch in picture form the improvements made in residential, commercial, farm or industrial premises. The half dozen best sets of before-and-after photos will earn a Jaycee tornado album as a prize.

Not to be overlooked are the customary spring clean-up, fix-up, paint-up projects but special emphasis will be placed on erasing evidences of the tornado in the form of rubbish still lying in alleys and elsewhere

New plantings of shrubs and trees to make up for tornado destruction in the landscaping department will also be encouraged during operation "Big Sweep.

On Saturday, April 29, an auction of unwanted home items will be conducted to help clean out attics, closets and garages. These are to be delivered north of the First state bank by noon, selling to start at 2:00 p. m. Unsold items MUST be taken away by their owners, the Chamber emphasizes.

• • •

Schroeder again will head Chest

Bruce Schroeder consented to continue as president of the Belmond Community Chest Council for another year when a meeting of that group was held Wednesday night of last week at the conference room of the First State bank.

Efforts to obtain a new president for 1967-68 had proved fruitless, and Mr. Schroeder declared himself willing to continue as head of the Chest Council rather than see it left without leadership.

A new vice president was elected, the position going to Jack Steinberg. The retiring vice president was G. E. "Ed" Banning, who resigned from the council. Luin Cox will continue as Chest treasurer.

Payment in full of all 1967 appropriations to Chest affiliates was approved by the council, this having been made possible when a $900 deficit left by the campaign last fall was made up by the Belmond Lions club and Jaycees.

Wiggins resigns post on council

Keith Wiggins, who has served on the Belmond city council by appointment since March of last year, submitted his resignation from that body Monday night, effective May 1.

He has been given a promotion by Central Soya, Inc., which will involve his transfer to the company's headquarters at Fort Wayne, Ind., where he will be employed in the grain department.

Keith has been a Belmond resident since April 1 of 1956, coming here as a member of the General Mills staff and continuing his duties with Central Soya since the GM facilities were leased by that firm.

When he joined the council, he filled a position that had been left vacant by the transfer of another C-S employee away from Belmond, Robert Hein.

Mr. Wiggins expects to start his new work at Fort Wayne within the next week or two. Since two of the Wiggins' four children are in school, his wife Sarah and the youngsters will remain here until school closes.

Council OK's land sale at Monday hearing

Belmond's city council Monday night listened to a variety of objections to the proposition that a parcel of property at the north edge of the city limits be made available to National By-Products company for a collection station, received a petition of complaint that bore 121 signatures — then passed a resolution for sale of the controversial industrial site.

After the objectors had been heard, Mayor Robert Misner summed up his own opinion in the matter by advising the council members that it was up to them to base their decision on their own best judgment. He suggested that if the people of Belmond had not wanted them to run the city government — to the best of their ability — the Belmond voters would not have elected them to office.

The action of the council brought to a close a rather stormy period that had intervened between the time that sale of the land to the Belmond Industrial Development commission for resale to National By-Products of Des Moines was broached until a second hearing on the matter was held Monday. An initial hearing on March 21 found the proposed sale of the land for a token dollar declared illegal. The price involved in the second proposal to sell was $2,000.

As matters now stand, the north end of the former city dump property will be sold to National By-Products as site for a collection station for the dead stock and commercial meat scraps in which it deals; and National By-Products will erect a building on the property for that purpose as quickly as arrangements can be made.

Though the council chamber was filled for Monday's hearing, there were few standees. The proceedings opened with reading of objections that had been received by mail from two absentee owners of local property, Helen Dorr of Mason City and Aurelia Kernan of Marshalltown.

Bill Shirer offered a suggestion that the local ordinance pertaining to the maintenance of a public nuisance be read for the information of those present. He also submitted a study of prevailing winds in central Iowa, as supplied by the weather bureau station at the Des Moines airport, which indicated that the wind is from the north and/or northwest about 28 per cent of the year.

City Attorney Roy Henderson proceeded to read the nuisance ordinance, which covers offensive smells and spells out the penalties assessable if such a nuisance is permitted to exist.

Then Ralph McDougle read and presented the petition of objections, which stated, "We contend that (the proposed land sale and resale) will be a detriment to our city and that any gain in tax revenue from said land will be counteracted by the decreased value of other property."

Clarence Triggs, who has been irrevocably opposed to the proposition and has declared he'd move Triggs Manufacturing company out of Belmont if it went through, restated some of the compaints he had registered at the earlier hearing.

He in company with his son Harley, A. P. Thompsen, Larry Flanagan, Duane Anderson and Don Olson last Friday had visited the old but similar-purposed collection station at Waterloo that National By-Products had had in use for some time. Mr. Thompsen, Mr. Flanagan and Mr. Anderson stated on their return that they were convinced that there was no need to fear that the entirely new building that would be erected here should give rise to a public nuisance.

O'Larry Dorr, who is a member of the city planning committee, expressed personal objections to the proposed location of the National By-Products facility and suggested that several other sites in town might better serve the purpose, in his opinion.

Mrs. Russell Schaal, another planning commission member, made point of the fact that the city would not be required to extend sewer and water facilities to the plant location, so any undue expense was being avoided in that regard.

C. C. Christie, chairman of the planning commission, identified himself "as at least one" spectator in favor of the proposal. He expressed his personal confidence that the plant would not be of any detriment to the city; and commented that, since Belmond was the ideal spot for its location, National By-Products should be accommodated in the matter.

When all who wished to speak had been given an opportunity to do so and Mayor Misner had reviewed his estimate of the council's proper role, a voice vote of the council members was taken on the resolution to sell the property to BIDC for resale. The tally was unanimous in favor of the resolution.

With spring plowing time close at hand, efforts were afoot last weekend and this to help farmers in the path of last fall's tornado to get littered or corn-strewn fields cleared and ready for the plow.

Belmond Lions tried to help the cause of offering to buy the athletic department some needed new hurdles if members of the BHS track squad would turn out last Saturday to assist with farm clean-up.

While more than 40 students signed up to help, only a dozen showed up — and then the weather forbade going ahead with the proposed project. There was also a bid for workers on Monday, but only four appeared.

Better luck was had by the Methodist Youth Fellowship, which was given the opportunity of gleaning corn on the Carroll Bamford farm "on shares" as a fund-raising project.

Vance Jenison, Mike Klinefelter, Jim Jacobmeyer, Peggy Jones, Phyllis Mosiman Yvonne Wiedemann, Kent Korthas, Deb Bloemke, Sharon Bamford — and Rev. M. L. Jones.

Further pick-up at the Bamford place is planned this Saturday, as no more than a good start was made on the 20 acres needing to be gleaned.

A come-one-come-all opportunity for junior and senior high school students is offered by the Lions club this Saturday to make $1.25 an hour for their own pockets.

The Lions want to see if this will attract enough help to do the farm clean-up that was intended last weekend. Boys and girls who would like to be in one of the work parties should make it known to Principals Owen Bateson at the junior high building or Ernest Doeringsfeld at the high school before the close of school on Friday.

Workers will gather at the high school student center at 8:30 a. m. Saturday to be transported to the work sites.

Hit on 7 of 8 money chances—

—SPORTS—

It turned out to be something of a Fetrow benefit affair as the men's city bowling tournament was brought to a close last weekend. Rex Fetrow and his son Jim made good on seven out of eight possibilities to figure in the money, the only blank being attributable to Rex's failure to win a place in the singles. Between them, they picked off $74.10 in prize money.

Rolling on the final shift of the tournament last Sunday night, Jim came through with a 591-84—675 in the doubles and 587-84—671 in the singles. He'd earlier posted a 540-84—624 in the team event and the composite gave him a 1,970 all-events total that nosed Louis Mennenga out of first by two pins.

His singles performance put him in 7th place and with his partner Bill Shirer notching a 506-96—602 his doubles contribution brought the pair 6th place in the duo event.

Rex, helped by a 614-75—689 from his doubles partner, shared first place on his effort of 554-72—626 that gave the combination 1,315 total pins. Rex also figured in the all-events money with an 1,881 that was good for 10th place.

The 642-78—720 that Anson Avery rolled early in the tournament stood up for first place in the singles. Jim Fetrow was the only bowler in the final ship who was able to work his way into the pay list in either the all-events or singles and he and Shirer were the only pair cracking the doubles list.

The special $10 cash prize offered by Bowl-Mor lanes for the best scratch all-events score was won easily by Fred Loats with 1,781 actual pins.

Louie Mennenga had chalked up a 524 scratch series in the team event, 590 in the doubles and 512 in the singles — with a 114-pin handicap in each case — to get second in all-events with a 1,968.

Following him and Jim Fetrow in this division were: Fred Loats 1,961, Lloyd Suntken 1,960, Vern Schmale 1,932, Anson Avery 1,926, Rich McMurray 1,903, Ervin Halverson 1,898, Arlo Stoltenberg 1,896, Rex Fetrow 1,881, Gary Gabrielson 1,878, Allen Boyington 1,874, Don Sandry 1,861, Jerry Christians 1,855, Don Meints 1,853 and Marlin Daniels 1,844.

After Rex Fetrow and Harold Nelson in the doubles money came: John Schulte (514-135—649) and Elmer Hopkey (554-105—659), 1,308; Marlin Daniels (434-144—578) and Louie Mennenga (590-114—704), 1,282; Lloyd Suntken (575-135—710) and Alvin Smit (487-84—571), 1,281.

Clarion, April 18 and 25—

Two-day laundry show scheduled

"Waltzing Through Washday" is the theme of a laundry show scheduled for Clarion on Tuesday of next week and the following Tuesday, April 25, by the Wright county extension home economics committee.

Margaret Royer, who is staff home economist with the Maytag company, Newton, will demonstrate six recipes for a happy washday during the first shortcourse session. She travels to all parts of the United States as she works with appliance dealers, utility companies, educational groups and the laundry industry.

Persons attending the program will see garments modeled that show the difference that good and bad laundry procedures make on an item of clothing, including methods of pre-treating soil and effective stain-removal procedures.

Miss Royer will give information on new fabrics, fabric treatments and finishes, and new detergents. These tips are designed to enable the homemaker to do a much more satisfactory job of keeping washable fabrics really attractive.

Ted L. Willrich, extension agricultural engineering specialist in soil and water from Iowa State university, Ames, will also be one of the speakers on next week's laundry shortcourse program.

MARGARET ROYER

He is well qualified to give information on "Our Iowa Water". Water for laundry and general cleaning should be free of selected impurities (hardness, silt, etc.), he notes, but need not necessarily be palatable or drinkable.

All water is not alike, Mr. Willrich emphasizes. Each source of water has different hardness content due to its contact with surface soil and underground minerals.

Soft water can be within the range of 0 to 5 grams of hardness. Hard water containing 5 to 15 grams of hardness is moderately hard. Water with 15 to 25 grams is definitely quite hard.

The information Mr. Willrich gives will be of help in understanding Wright county water.

Anyone interested in learning about their water or about new fabrics and the latest laundering procedures will find valuable the two one-day programs at the old high school gymnasium in Clarion next Tuesday and at the grade school gymnasium the Tuesday following. The programs are open to all homemakers.

Guided by Census Bureau—

Home fallout survey in progress

Nine local residents are among the approximate 921 Iowans hired by the U. S. Bureau of the Census as interviewers for a Home Fallout Protection Survey which the Bureau is conducting throughout the state for the Iowa Civil Defense office.

Guy A. Lutz, director of the Census Bureau Regional office in St. Paul, Minnesota, announces that the following persons have been selected to call at homes in Wright county:

Mrs. Leo Feeley and Mrs. Gerald Boland, Eagle Grove; Mrs. Lawrence Maxon, Mrs. Jack Brooks and Mrs. George Dean, Clarion; Mrs. W. J. Christians and Mrs. John Frohling, Woolstock; Valerie Larson, Dows; and Mrs. Lynn Sorenson, Goldfield. Supervisor of the group is Mrs. Delbert Christenson of Eagle Grove.

All interviewers wear official red, white, and blue badges identifying them as U. S. Census Bureau officials. Each has taken an oath to keep confidential all information he or she obtains.

Householders, both renters and home owners, are asked a few easy-to-answer questions about the way their houses are built. A computer at the Census Bureau takes the information a householder gives, analyzes it, and if the dwelling has a basement, calculates the degree of protection against fallout that the basement affords.

The computer's figures are mailed directly to the householder, so that only he and his family know the amount of protection their home basement offers. He receives, also, a booklet prepared by Civil Defense suggesting ways to improve the protection in basements.

Householders without basements fense another type of Civil Defense booklet with extensive information about ways they might protect themselves against fallout.

At the completion of the survey, totals will be provided for the state, each county, and each municipality. Together with similar figures for previously designated public fallout shelters, they will provide a complete picture of available shelter space, information needed by state and local officials to plan fallout protection for every resident.

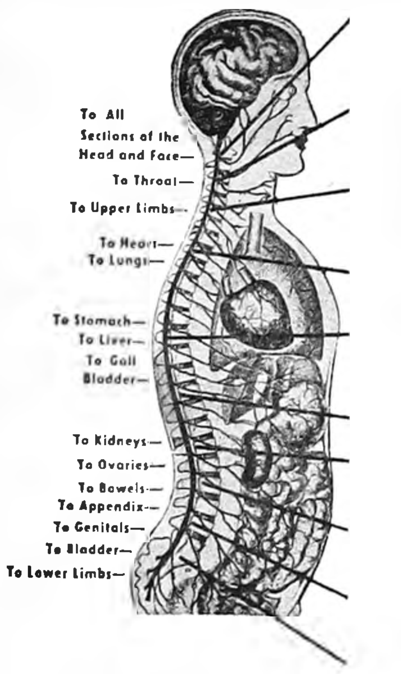
DEVOTED TO RESTORATION AND PRESERVATION OF YOUR HEALTH
Spinal Nerve Pressure Causes Many Diseases

The diseases mentioned on this chart are only a few caused by vertebrae "pinching" nerves as they enter or leave the spinal column, transmitting vital nerve energy from the brain to the organs of the body.



1. Slight "pinching" of nerves at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, insomnia, wry or stiff neck, facial paralysis, dizziness, polio, arthritis, abnormal blood pressure, anemia, colds, hay fever, sinus trouble, nervousness, etc.
2. A slight nerve difficulty in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, nose bleed, dis-order of gums, catarrh, etc.
3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein "pinched" nerves will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism and neuritis of the arms and shoulders, etc.
4. A blocked nerve at this point causes so-called heart disease, pneumonia, tuberculosis, asthma, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.
5. Stomach and liver trouble, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by pressure in this part of the spine, so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.
6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccoughs, diabetes, etc.
7. Bright's disease, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.
8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, constipation, etc., Chiropractic adjustments at this point.
9. Why have so-called kidney stones, rectal troubles, female troubles, many lower abdominal pains, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?
10. A slight slippage of both innominate bones, located here, will likewise produce so-called sciatica together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

STUDY THIS CHART CAREFULLY

See how the nerves go through the spinal openings? Nerve pressure at one or more of these points may be the EXACT CAUSE OF YOUR PARTICULAR CONDITION!

Take time to re-study this famous "Health Chart of Chiropractic," reproduced at the left, and you will see how simple it is to understand what an important part YOUR SPINE can play in the maintenance of your good "natural" health. Misaligned spinal bones can cause disease in ALL PARTS OF THE BODY. Notice how the nerves go to every organ, tissue and cell of your body — arms, legs, abdomen, head, etc. So provide your body with the fullest protection against disease with AT LEAST ONE ADJUSTMENT EACH MONTH.

MANY TIMES, EVEN AFTER ALL OTHER METHODS OF HEALING HAVE FAILED, CHIROPRACTIC SUCCEEDS.

YOUR SPINE IS YOUR LIFE-LINE . . . KEEP IT LINE . . . WITH REGULAR CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS

Monsanto

RANDOX KILLS FOXTAIL BEFORE IT SPROUTS

CONTROLS OTHER GRASSES, SOME WEEDS, TOO

You need RANDOX to keep foxtail and other grasses out of your fields. You'll enjoy control of some broadleaf weeds, too.

This unwanted growth in your soybean fields costs you money by reducing yields, causing extra field work and by making harvests take longer.

RANDOX pre-emergent herbicide ends your problem the low-cost way. Apply it as you plant and forget about grasses and weeds. They don't have a chance. As they sprout, they die, and you won't even see them.

Clean fields yield up to 7 extra bushels of soybeans. Tests prove it.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Grace Jenison, who passed away April 14, 1966.

THE MEANING OF FAITH

"Faith" is more than just a word—
It's a feeling, deep and true
That with every passing hour
HOPE is born anew . . .
Faith means having COURAGE
To know, as days go by
That just as long as FAITH lives on Then HOPE can never die.

LeRoy Jenison and family 29t1*

Cards Of Thanks

KHS counselor conducting study of value of courses, activities

Charles Valley, guidance counsellor for the Kanawha Community schools, last Saturday launched a 10-year curriculum study of Kanawha High school graduates. Questionnaires were mailed to 295 graduates of the years 1955-1964.

The graduates were asked, among other things, to indicate the value in terms of their present occupations of each of the subjects they took while in high school. They were also asked to indicate the extra-curricular activities they participated in and the personal value of each.

Included in the questionnaire were items which were aimed at finding out the graduates' opinions as to the emphasis placed upon activities and achievements while they attended school.

The response to this survey will serve as a guide to planning a local educational program designed to best meet the district's specific needs.

This project was undertaken with the approval of the vocational education division of the state department of public instruction. The replies will be computed by the research bureau of the State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls.

There will be no attempt to identify any of the graduate with their responses. A coded list will be used to check off those who reply so that every effort can be made to get a 100 per cent response.

Mrs. Elaine Prail and Linda Eckhoff are helping with the clerical work on this project. Mrs. Abner Toffey of the Kanawha Alumni association has helped in supplying the addresses of many of the graduates.

Any patron interested in details of this study may contact Mr. Valley.

Bank-Care plan announced here

Belmond's First State bank is one of three banking institutions in Wright county that are now making available to their customers a Bank-Care health plan designed to supplement existing hospital-medical insurance programs.

Bank officials point out that hospital-medical costs are rising so fast that most personal hospital insurance programs have become inadequate. Bank-Care is intended to fill this gap and help pay other incidental costs connected with hospitalization.

Bank-Care payments are made in addition to any other insurance and go directly to the policy holder. An advertisement in this issue given details of the plan offered by the First State bank, the Goldfield State bank and Farmers State bank of Dows.

Dino says: "You get more bushels per acre."

For higher yield, start your crops right. On corn, for example, 200 lbs. of Sinclair Dinofarm Premium 8-32-16 can produce a bonus of 2 bushels per acre over regular fertilizers. Sinclair's mono-ammonium phosphate makes the difference.

Dinofarm Premium Fertilizer has greater water solubility. This means crops get more nutrients from the start for higher yields.

Starting with E. G. Relays—

—SPORTS—

Belmond's track and field forces will be competing Friday afternoon and evening in the 12th annual Eagle Grove Relays at Eagle Grove in the six-team Class C division. The Broncos' opponents will be Clarion, Emmetsburg, Britt, Mansen and Twin Rivers. Strong favorite for the class title will be Manson, who recently won the Class B state indoor track title.

Class A contenders in the meet will be: Webster City, Boone, Spencer, Estherville, Eagle Grove and Storm Lake; Class B — Clear Lake, Humboldt, Jefferson, Garrigan of Algona, Algona High and Hampton.

With each team allowed only one entry per event, there will be no preliminaries. Field events will be held in the afternoon, starting at 4:00 o'clock and the track events beginning at 7:15.

Although a competitor in the meet ever since it was started, Belmond holds only one record. That was set by the Bronco 440-yard relay quartet in 1965 at :45.2.

However, if Terry Nelson matches the form he showed in the discus against Lake Mills last week, he should easily establish a new Class C mark. The present "best" is 139 ft. 9 in. by Winter of Meservey-Thornton in '65, whereas Terry got the platter out 146 ft. 6 in. against the Bulldogs.

A new event on the relays schedule this year is the mile run, in which Larry McAlpine will be the probable Bronco starter.

Coach Stalker names as the other likely Belmond entries: Terry Nelson in the high hurdles and discus; Bob Rise, 100; Wayne Smith, 180-yard low hurdles; Doug Mennenga, shot put; Tim Roberts, broad jump — and either he or Nelson in the high jump; Doug Thompsen, pole vault.

Probable personnel in the 440 and 880 relays will be Smith, Lance Campbell, Roberts and Rise; and in the two-mile, Don Havens, Mike Klinefelter, Dallas Steenblock and Gary Meyers. A pair not yet decided upon will join Meyers and Steenblock in the mile relay.

The 220 legs in the mile medley will probably be handled by Rick Hawley and Marc Middleton; but time trials will determine the 440 and 880 runners.

Coach Stalker will take only about a dozen of his performers to the tough Valley Relays at West Des Moines on Saturday. He plans to "load" his entries in the two-mile and mile medley events in hope of picking off a few points and figures Nelson as a possible placer in the open discus event.

Next Tuesday afternoon and evening the Broncos will compete in the second running of the Clear Lake Relays. When this meet was held for the first time last year, Belmond was nosed out for the championship in the final event and the host Lions took the team trophy, 64½ to 63½.

A full squad will be taken to Clear Lake, with entries about the same as at Eagle Grove except in such cases as changes are indicated to improve Bronco chances in a particular event.

Dual with Lake Mills won by Broncs, 82-51

Belmond High's tracksters opened their outdoor season with an unscheduled but full-scale dual meet here with Lake Mills on Wednesday afternoon of last week. With both squads needing some competition to sharpen up for meets coming up, the affair was arranged in impromptu fashion via a phone call. Belmond took the Bulldogs into camp, 82 to 51.

Eight of the individual events were won by the Broncos, but only two of the five relays. Lake Mills grabbed first in four individual events in addition to three baton events.

Dallas Steenblock was a double winner for Belmond in running events, while Tim Roberts claimed a couple of field event firsts. The Bulldogs' Steve Pederson won a pair of events and was second in another.

Best performance of the afternoon was in the discus, in which Terry Nelson sailed the platter 146 ft. 6 in., less than three feet short of Neal Waddington's BHS record of 149-2½. He would appear a cinch to post a new mark before long if he improves as Coach Chuck Stalker expects him to. Nelson also placed second in two events.

100-yard dash — 1. Maury Hope (LM), 2. Rick Hawley (B), 3. Bob Rise (B); time :10.7.

Much tornado clean-up still remains to be done

A certain air of "history" was given to the ill-famed happenings of last Oct. 14th with public distribution last week of the first printing of the Jaycees' tornado album. Contributing further to this changing perspective is the fact that tomorrow will find us looking back over a full half-year at the unhappy event that marked Belmond in the public mind as "the place where the tornado hit."

But we who are having to deal with the problems left behind by the disaster know only too well that we have a long, long way to go. While the occurence itself may be taking on an historical tinge, we are still living with the aftermath; and in some respects, some of the very hardest jobs lie ahead of us.

It was a completely insurmountable task that the community faced as shocked eyes peered unbelievingly at the ruins when the air cleared on that fateful day. We will never forget nor cease to be grateful for the helping hands extended in those days of greatest need that followed; for they made the seemingly impossible task of "digging out" bend to the weight of numbers. And in less time than seemed imaginable, the most arduous part of the physical work was dispatched.

Then . . . the hordes left — and we were on our own. Since then, each passing day has brought greater realization of how much still remains to be done before we lose the stamp of "the tornado town."

Debris still lies in innumerable corners. The Iowa river banks are strictly a mess and the rubbish strewn along them poses a constant threat of serious trouble downstream, should heavy rainfalls create flood conditions. The countryside that lay in the storm's path is liberally littered with tornado trash of every description. The city park is a sorrowful sight, battered and scarred and all but useless for the carefree purposes it used to fulfill.

What's been done to erase the ravages of the disaster has been primarily achieved on a private basis. Propertyowners, in the main, have done a remarkable job of facing their own problems. Considering the limited amount of construction labor available, both residential and commercial building have progressed at a rapid pace.

Where progress has been slowest, the tasks needing doing are of a general nature and are the immediate responsibility of no one in particular — but the responsibility of ALL OF US, in general.

An accusing finger cannot fairly be pointed at anyone. The city administration is only too painfully aware of the situation. So is the Chamber of Commerce. And such service groups as the Lions club have been looking at some of the problems with a studious eye to determine how they might help to meet them.

The stoppers, at every turn, are "Where do we start?" and "How do we go about it?" Nobody yet has ecome up with the answers.

The unglamorous, strenuous work of further clean-up, making the park look presentable once again, and in general erasing the blight that afflicts Belmond won't "do itself." Somebody's going to have to take charge.

What's desperately needed is a starting point . . . a beginning. A field day — or, if we're going to realistic, SEVERAL field days — with many hands turning to the task would seem the most practical solution. That would call for planning . . . and direction. Who will plan? Who will direct?

We've a notion that many willing hands might be available, if the necessary organization were supplied from some source.

Music world lost gifted leader in Odvin Hagen

Waldorf college, north Iowa — and, in fact, the world of music — lost a distinguished personality last week when death took Prof. Odvin Hagen, who was in his 40th year as director of Waldorf's rightly famed a cappella choir.

Belmond, with its strong force of Lutherans, possesses many people who were acquainted with — and even more who were sincere admirers of — this gifted gentleman. A goodly number of BHS alumni enjoyed the privilege of singing with Professor Hagen's choirs and coming under his excellent influence.

He and his singers were winding up the 38th annual Easter-time concert tour of the Waldorf choir when his untimely death occurred Wednesday afternoon of last week at St. Francis, Kans. Four appearances remained on the schedule when he was fatally stricken with a heart attack. Those four concerts were cancelled; but it is significant that his young singers went ahead with the traditional, concluding home concert on Sunday. They knew their leader . . . and they knew how he would have had it.

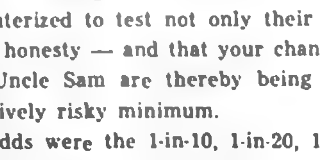
What marked Professor Hagen for the exceptional choral leader that he was lay not only in the extraordinary quality of his musical organizations but the handicaps under which he produced them. Waldorf being a two-year college, he regularly lost 60 per cent of his choir personnel annually by graduation or transfer. And at best, he had only two years in which to inculcate his young singers with love of music that ran so strongly through his veins and made him the gifted teacher that he was.

In the 68 years of his life were many achievements, which he viewed with innate modesty. Perhaps a crowning highlight was when in 1962 his group sang before an audience of 20,000 at the Hollywood Bowl's annual Easter sunrise service and was heard by a nationwide radio audience.

Professor Hagen earned an enviably high place in his profession; but more than that, he earned a place in the hearts of those who knew and admired him that will remain his despite his passing.

That computer'll get you, if you don't watch out!

Tomorrow is "T-Day," and it's seemed to us that there's a bit more seriousness of thought attached to the annual rite of getting in income tax returns this year than has customarily been the case.



Not but what there are the usual number who regard the April 15th deadline as the "time due," and that any earlier remittal is being in too much of a rush. The change has evolved from the warning that returns this year are to be computerized to test not only their accuracy but their honesty — and that your chances of out-slicking Uncle Sam are thereby being reduced to a positively risky minimum.

When the odds were the 1-in-10, 1-in-20, 1-in-100 or whatever the batch-testing ratio was when your calculations were subjected to the perusal of mere man, people didn't seem to worry so much. No matter how their consciences might twinge, they figured they had a gambler's chance that was worth taking.

But the average American has come to stand in awe of the computer. When this mechanical marvel can lock a satellite into orbit a pre-determined number of miles in space, solve at the flip of a switch arithmetical problems that it would take a battery of master mathematicians months to solve, and even do match-making that heaven itself could envy for built-in compatibility . . . well, it gives one to think.

When TJ, the office cat, was home from Des Moines during the recent legislative recess, we caught him doing battle with his 1040. By his best calculation, he owed the IRS three cans of sardines and seven mouseskins. Even as me and thee, he was wondering if a little generosity on his business mileage might save him one of those cans of sardines.

We reminded him, "Computers this year, buddy-boo!" With a reluctant sigh, he made out his chit for the full count. That was three weeks ago; but you can bet his return won't be going into the mail until Saturday night, the 15th. Why is this?

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

Nearly all legislators agree that the truck problem as reported by the papers has been slanted against the trucking industry. I have not found important misstatements by the press, but there have been so many omissions which reflect the desirable and needed aspects of trucks that the legislators have been pictured to many people as pawns of the trucking industry and downright ignorant.

This bias by many people will make any attempts to set the record straight difficult. However, I believe the public is entitled to more of the story so that they can better judge the fairness of most truckers and their lobbyist.

THE BILL WHICH PERMITS the 65-foot double-bottom trucks in Iowa is not all bad because:

1. Iowa is a barrier state for interstate commerce and we are losing substantial revenue because they are not permitted to travel through. Federal funds for construction of our highways will be made difficult if not impossible to get if we continue to insist on isolating ourselves.

2. The five feet of extra length for double-bottom trucks (which was the only type of vehicle under consideration) would not effect our roads any worse than shorter trucks.

3. PART, IF NOT ALL, OF THE danger of having five-foot longer double-bottom trucks would be offset by the reduction in the number of trucks on the road.

4. Where turning radius is a problem, the double-bottom trucks are far safer than ordinary semis because they track better.

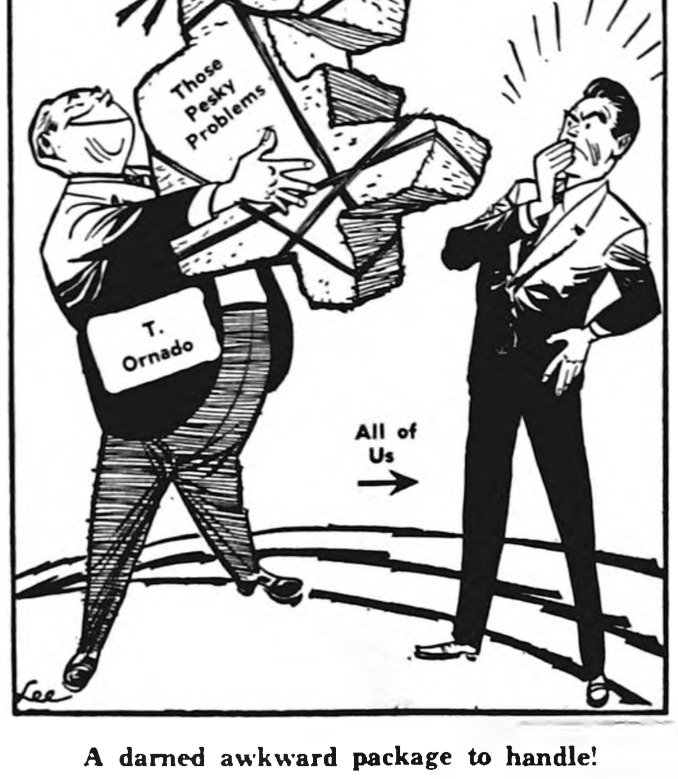
5. An amount equal to approximately 14 per cent of the cost of everything we buy is needed to pay the transportation costs. So the consumer must also be informed that to restrict advancements in the transportation industry will cause this already high cost to rise.

6. THE CITIES ON, OR IMmediately adjacent to, the interstate highway system are enjoying tremendous economic growth and one of the reasons for this is the inherent transportation advantage. The double-bottom transportation system could give rural Iowa, where the railroad service falls short of serving the needs, a more equal opportunity for participation in Iowa's potential economic and industrial growth.

Had these matters been reported in the press and had they been dramatized as have those matters which have been reported, most people would more nearly appreciate the fact that legislators are honest, well-meaning people who can have a difference of opinion.

AT THIS WRITING, HOUSE File 212 is eligible for reconsideration in the Senate. The sponsors of the bill believe it will receive favorable action when there is attached to the bill an amendment which will restrict the use of these 65-foot doublt-bottom units to the interstate highway system.

Time will tell whether their prediction on the effect of this restrictive amendment will be true.



A darned awkward package to handle!

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by

COURT MODERNIZATION—

There's been a running argument in Iowa for years about justice of the peace courts and mayors' courts. Four years ago the legislature created a study committee to make recommendations about modernizing Iowa's court structure. As expected, this study committee recommended abolishing all minor courts in the state, except municipal courts.

The Iowa Senate has passed a series of bills which, if enacted into law, would establish a unified court system. The key measure, which cleared the Senate 38 to 16, calls for shutting down by Jan. 1, 1969, all minor courts in the state except municipal courts, and replacing them with district court commissioners. This would close some 900 mayors' courts, 550 justice of the peace courts and 29 police courts.

THE DISTRICT COURT COMmissioners, who would work part-time and who would not have to be members of the bar, would receive maximum salaries ranging from $2,400 to $12,000, depending upon the population of the area they serve.

While the court reform bill sailed through the Senate, it may have a tough time in the House. Some members of the judiciary committee in the lower chamber, where the bill has been assigned for study, are opposed to abolishing these 1,500 lower courts. Rep. William Harbor (Rep., Henderson) said he's "dea-set" against it. Harbor feels the solution is to upgrade the justice of the peace courts, not to abolish them.

REMAP UNDERWAY—

The 10-member commission to subdistrict the state's 18 largest counties has been named. The commission, under the compromise adopted by the legislature, must submit a subdistricting plan to the general assembly no later than May 1.

Under terms of the compromise, the state chairmen of the two political parties were each to name five members of the commission. The five appointed by state GOP chairman Robert Ray are:

MRS. BARBARA OLERICH OF Rolfe, former member of the Republican state central committee; former state senators Jack Schroeder of Davenport and David Shaff of Clinton; Blackhawk county Republican chairman Jack Warren of Waterloo; and Ben Webster, past president of the National Council of Republican Workshops.

The Democrats named: James Denato, Des Moines and Robert Wilson, Cedar Rapids, both former legislators; Harry Smith, Sioux City labor union attorney who filed the original reapportionment suit in federal court; Charles Quirk, Cedar Falls, State College of Iowa professor; and Mrs. Ray Sheets, Iowa City, former president of the Johnson County League of Women Voters.

PAY RAISE PROPOSED—

A bill to raise the pay of future legislators $10 a day — from $40 to $50 — has been recommended for passage and sent to the Senate calendar by the Senate governmental affairs committee. The bill, if passed into law, would give legislators their second salary increase in four years. The 1965 general assembly, whose members received $30 a day, raised the pay to $40 a day starting with this year's session.

BOUNDARY SQUABBLE—

Gov. Harold Hughes says he plans to reassemble an Iowa-Nebraska boundary commission to work for a settlement of the border dispute between the two states. But, he emphasized he will not select a new comission until this summer, after the legislature has ended its session

Hughes reiterated that he favors the middle of the Missouri River channel as a boundary between the two states. But he would not close the door to some modifications of this view if necessary to get an agreement. One of the issues in the dispute is that a mid-channel boundary would place Carter Lake, on the west side of the Missouri river, in Nebraska. Carter Lake now is an Iowa community.

OTHER ITEMS—

Some Senate Republicans are objecting to Gov. Harold Hughes' appointment of West Des Moines Mayor Henry Gering to the state board of social welfare. Gering is registered as an "independent" and the Republicans feel that one of their number should be appointed to the three-member board . . .

The League of Municipalities has started its drive to get more road money for cities and towns. A bill has been introduced in the Senate to increase the portion of the road fund for cities and towns from the present 13 to 15 per cent . . .

It's estimated that approximately 90,000 signs along Iowa's primary road system, including interstate, will have to be taken down as part of the highway beautification program enacted by Congress. Estimated cost — $22.6 million. . .

Belmond folks can believe it—

Warning says: No place safe from tornadoes

There may again come a day a Belmond resident can see or hear the word "tornado" without a shiver running up his spine — as when one's grave is being walked upon, as they say. It's a fair guess, though, that the day is not imminent

With a hypochondriac's willingness to talk about her operation, we Belmondites find ourselves with an unwanted readiness to talk about, read about — even dream about — natural disaster from the skies.

Consequently, we presume readers of The Independent might find reluctant interest in a "special report" on tornadoes, written by UPI's Joseph L. Myler in Washington and handed to us by Jerry McLaughlin of the KRIT-FM staff. Here's what Reporter Myler has to say.

• • •

If you've been thinking your town is immune to tornadoes, look out! Another twister season is at hand and you could be in for a deadly surprise. That ominous thought comes from the Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA), which points out that some regions — notably the "Tornado Alley" states of the central plains — are more tornado-prone than others.

But every state in the union has been hit by a twister at one time or another, and no locality can consider itself safe.

The Weather Bureau, an ESSA agency, has been trying for years to persuade people everywhere that it is good common sense to have a tornado shelter . . . or at least know where the nearest one is.

Tornado's "pretty awful"

It has been a hard fight. The tornado is a pretty awful thing. Its fury "is almost unbelievable," declares ESSA in its latest report. You can't fight it. It is only human to want to believe, "It can't happen here." So myths of immunity are born.

Most Americans have lived in or known of communities whose inhabitants thought themselves proof against tornadoes because of some protective feature of the landscape, such as a nearby hill or mound.

Some states do, indeed, seem to have most of the luck. Last year, 579 tornadoes raked the nation. No month was tornado-free. More than 100 persons were killed. More than 225 million dollars worth of property was destroyed.

Seven states escaped

But not a single twister was reported in seven of the 50 states — Hawaii, Alaska, Nevada, Idaho, New Jersey, Delaware and Rhode Island. In 1967 the story might well be different.

It already has been, as a matter of fact, for one of the 1966 "immune" states — Delaware.

January normally is a slack month for tornadoes. This year, 26 tornadoes — the largest number ever reported for the month — smacked the eastern half of the nation in January, striking such "unlikely" eastern states as Delaware and Virginia.

"Bad year" coming up?

Does the record rash of tornadoes in January mean 1967 will be an extra bad year for the country as a whole? Not necessarily, Weather Bureau experts say. They know no correlation between the number of early tornadoes and the total for the year.

The Weather Bureau can't forecast just where tornadoes will strike. It can, and does, report conditions that might spawn these killer storms. And once one is located, its most likely path can be plotted.

But if people haven't prepared a safe refuge in advance, the warnings may not save them. And who, on a normal day, really believes a tornado will ever happen to him?

• • •

So sayeth Mr. Myler. We in "busted-up" Belmond could advise him on a point or two.

Like, "the southwest corner of the basement" being the supposedly best refuge from a twister. A good-sized handful of Belmond people are alive today thanks to their good fortune in NOT having sought safety in that particular quadrant of the cellar. It was a deadly location in a number of Belmond homes.

We can also assure those apprehensive of a twister's visit that they should not put TOO much confidence in an advance warning that tornado-brewing conditions exist and that one may have your address.

Jerry McLaughlin recalls only too vividly that the only prior comment the Weather Bureau made before news of the Belmond disaster flashed over news service wires was, "It looks as if a tornado could be hitting Belmond at this moment."

VOL. 43 NO. 30 | OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1967 | OFFICIAL CITY PAPER | 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Dick Bloemke can tell you the wheel magnet available through the Jaycees for next week's clean-up WORKS! He used it and collected more than 45 pounds of nails and other metal from his lawn. It's been loaned by Central Soya for use during Operation Big Sweep — and can be obtained through Spahn & Rose.

That interest in the Belmond tornado remains keen throughout Iowa, despite the six months that have passed since the disaster occurred last Oct. 14, is indicated by the talks still requested of persons who had close acquaintanceship with the calamity. Last Friday, Ye Ed covered the subject under the title, "My Biggest News Story of 1966 — or Any Year," at the state convention of the Iowa Press association.

Tuesday night of this week, R. G. "Bud" Packard spoke to the Polk County Firemen's association at Des Moines on the topic, "The Fire Chief's Role When Disaster Strikes." Probably nobody in the state could come close to having "Bud's" familiarity with that particular subject.

On Wednesday of last week, Sheriff Bob Blecker filled two speaking engagements that related to the tornado. In the morning he spoke before 350 students in the graduate school of the College of Osteopathic Medicine at Des Moines on "The Belmond Tornado: Anatomy of Disaster." In the evening, he addressed representatives of a number of public agencies at Creston on the roles of these agencies when disaster strikes.

Folks contemplating a trip will find posted weekly in the Independent's front window a detour and embargo map provided by the Iowa highway commission showing what stretches of highway are NOT open to travel. Might be worth a glance before you take off, as sometimes the information perhaps could save you from some back-tracking.

One of the more amusing stories to come to our attention lately concerns a cigar-smoking gentleman well known in the community, but whom we shall considerately permit to be nameless.

He called up a local builder recently, asked him to come over and see about getting his car out of a predicament, and admitted he was considerably embarrassed to find the call necessary.

Seems he had opened one of his garage's two overhead doors, then proceeded to back his car out of the slot which still had a closed door behind it. It didn't work out worth a lick.

PRIZE MONEY of $5.00 that accompanied the champion's pin which he won at last Saturday's Wright county spelling contest is happily displayed above by James McVey. His pleasure brings a smile from Myrtle Manders, who accompanied the local delegation of spellers of Clarion and is the champion's teacher.

Belmond spellers sweep 4 of 5 top places; McVey county champ

Belmond students very largely monopolized honors at the annual Wright county spelling contest last Saturday at Clarion as James McVey, an 8th-grader and son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. McVey, won the championship and four of the first five places went to Belmond entries.

Young McVey and Fred Erdman, son of the Harold Erdmans, tied for first place in the 100-word written examination, the ultimate champion winning the written honors on a 10-word "write-off."

These two boys and David Forslund, Eagle Grove 7th-grader, were then the last survivors of the oral spell-down. Fred was eliminated when he changed a correct spelling of "wrathful" on a bad second guess. Young Korslund won the oral contest by spelling "conduit" correctly after McVey had muffed it.

When the written and oral winners clashed for the championship, the Eagle Grove boy missed on "propensity," which Jim spelled correctly and followed with a correct spelling of "fictitious" to become over-all winner. Cash prizes of $5.00, $3.00 and $2.00 went to the top three place-winners, provided by the Clarion Lions club.

Michelle Roberts and Norine Andrews, both of Belmond, finished in 4th and 5th places respectively. Other Belmond spellers in the contest were Marilyn Triggs, Krista Boller, Charles Bell and David Swaroff.

Twenty-five girls and 10 boys, in all, competed in the contest from Dows, Clarion and Goldfield as well as Belmond and Eagle Grove.

County Supt. C. W. Sankey was the pronouncer of words for the 31st consecutive year.

AT MISSIONARY MEETING

A women's regional missionary meeting of the General Assembly of Regular Baptist Churches at Forest City on Monday of last week was attended by Mrs. Louis Miller, Mrs. Elwin Wolters, Mrs. Arthur Lumley and Mrs. Priscilla Bier as delegates from the Calvary Baptist church. Guest speaker was Mrs. John Abuhl, a missionary from Nigeria, Africa.

Slate open house at library Friday

Annual open house at the Belmond city library will be held this Friday, the public being invited to visit during the regular hours of 1:30 to 5:30 p. m. and between 7:00 and 9:00 o'clock in the evening.

Highlight of the evening program will be a one-hour concert by students from the Belmond Community High school music department who last weekend took part in the state music contest at Garner.

Dr. LeRoy Pogemmiller, associate ists and seven groups received top

Some dozen or 15 drawings and paintings by Lynn Thorpe's high school art students will be on display.

Mrs. Richard Woodin, librarian, says the number of new books being for the first time available to open house visitors will not be as large as in some years past.

Nevertheless, something over 100 books lately purchased by the library will be displayed for the first time. The quarterly exchange of books from the extension division of the Mason City library will not occur until several days after the open house. On Wednesday of next week, approximately 1,500 new titles from Mason City will be received and will be available to borrowers.

Inflation hits penny carnival; set for Friday

Inflation has dealt a death blow to an annual fund-raising fixture on the local entertainment calendar, advises Cubmaster Roger Johnson, whose Cub Pack 16 is holding its yearly carnival Friday to raise money for the year's activities.

For a period of years, the event has been called the Penny Carnival. Because a penny's purchasing power has diminished to just about nil, the title this year has been changed to Cub Scout Carnival.

Mr. Johnson says the event will be held this Friday starting at 7:00 p. m. in the usual location — the junior high gymnasium — but that tickets entitling the holder to have fun at one of the concessions will be a nickel.

A variety of prizes will be given to those who successfully try their luck or skill at any of the following concessions: dart throw, duck pond ring-toss, basketball throw, bell-ringer, bean bag toss.

There will also a cake walk at a dime per chance, plus a fortune telling booth and a spook house.

Lions lay down $1,300 challenge—

Operation Big Sweep calls for city clean-up

Belmond's Lions club with the collaboration of nearly 150 high school and junior high students, last Saturday threw down a challenge to the community as it looks ahead to Operation Big Sweep. The citywide clean-up week was declared by the Chamber of Commerce with the enthusastic blessing of Mayor Robert Misner and the city council.

At an outlay of $1,321 in wages paid at $1.25 per hour for all hands ("captains" who directed work and kept time got an extra dollar for the day), the Lions put to work 80 junior high pupils and 69 high school boys and girls in their own private clean-up project.

More than a dozen farmers had debris and downed corn removed from their fields by the young work crews to clear the way for spring work. In addition, many truckloads of trash was raked and stacked in the ditch along Highway 69 from Hill Motel to the A & W Drive-in, plus areas to the north of Tomco Genetic Giant.

Owen Bateson, elementary principal, as unofficial "straw boss" of the undertaking, reports that the kids in general each gave a good day's work to the job. On their own behalf, the youngsters were delighted to earn the good pay check that each received.

"Skinned arms, cuts and bruises and aching backs didn't seem to slow the boys and girls down a bit," says Mr. Bateson, "and as soon as one job was completed, they were johnny-on-the-spot to tie into another. Two dump trucks couldn't cart off the debris as fast as the kids piled it up."

An uncounted number of farm acres yielded truckloads of debris and many bushels of corn, winning the ardent appreciation of the farmers who'd accepted the Lions' offer of help.

Next week, it will be up to Belmond in general to match the example of the Lions and their young aides in cutting a big swathe through the rubble that still blights downtown alleys and many residential areas.

Mayor Misner has promised that the city will clean up the streets and grade the alleys. The firemen have offered to wash down Main street. Businessmen are urged to clean up their premises, inside and out, to give their places that after-spring-cleaning look.

Homeowners and renters are also expected to give their residential premises a thorough going over — to paint up, fix up, and invest in new plantings of trees, shrubs and flowers.

As announced earlier, a before-and-after photo contest will be conducted with prizes of a Jaycee Tornado Album going to the six entries that show the most noticeable improvement wrought of Operation Big Sweep efforts.

Since local boys and girls have already shown their willingness and ability to work, the Chamber urges the hiring of students to help with clean-up work if a businessman or homeowner needs assistance with the job.

On Saturday of next week, a public auction of unneeded articles removed from attics, closets and garages will be held at 1:00 p. m. on the vacant lot from which Hotel Belmond was removed. Items are to be brought there by noon — and if not sold, are to be picked up by their owners by 5:00 p. m. Any still there at that hour will be hauled to the dump.

Articles to be sold will be listed in an advertisement in next week's Independent if they are phoned by next Tuesday noon to several business firms (see C-of-C ad).

Ed Gabrielson, Chamber president, instructs, "All items should be tagged with their owner's name. It is requested that items be of some genuine usefulness to a buyer, and not just junk."

M. Ihm treasurer of Hospital assn.

Marc Ihm, administrator of Belmond Community hospital, on Tuesday of last week was elected treasurer of the Iowa Hospital association while the Iowa Medical Society and its related organizations were convening in Des Moines.

Election to the IHA board by the association's board of delegates in frequent instances has in due time escalated the office-holder ultimately to the presidency of the organization.

This year's convention of the Iowa Medical Society saw Dr. S. P. Leinbach relinquish the duties he has shouldered during the past year as president of the society.

It was not a "quiet year" that comprised Dr. Leinbach's term in office, what with the advent of Medicare, a controversial political nomination and other matters bidding for attention in addition to responsibilities routine to the office.

MINNEAPOLIS VISITORS

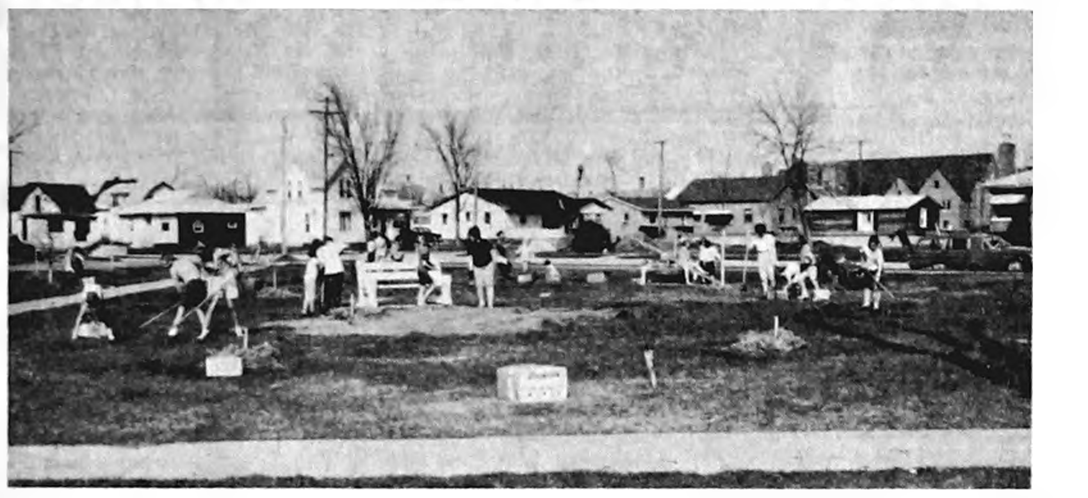
Nurses to attend six-week course

Mrs. Alice Alleman of Eagle Grove and Mrs. Miriam Vroman of Dows, Wright county public health nurses, will be attending a six-week course in community health and public health administration being given at Iowa Falls by the state health department.

First of the weekly four-hour sessions was held Thursday of last week under instructors provided by the department of health and the University of Iowa.

Topics of study will include: history of public health, organization and development of local health programs, maternal and child health programs, communicable disease control, environmental health, health education, chronic illness and public health nursing.



DOING "THEIR PART" last Saturday by cleaning up the city park were girls from seven different Camp Fire groups, some 25 to 30 lending a hand at the task. Work from 1:00 to 4:00 p. m. gave them a good start toward raking and digging out buried rocks and glass from the east part. They intend to do the entire park before they consider their job "done". Leaders of the girls taking part in the very worthwhile project are Mrs. Bernard Miller, Mrs. Ralph Turner, Mrs. George Hinman, Mrs. Ardell Kaduce, Mrs. Don Kusian, Mrs. Paul O'Brien and Mrs. Bob Ausborn.

National Honor Society admits 3 new members

Three new member were added to Chester P. Luick chapter of the National Honor Society at ceremonies held Tuesday evening of last week at Luick Memorial Auditorium. They were Luanne Paule, daughter of Mrs. Ardeth Paule; Kermit Bohning, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bohning, Jr.; and Neil Kalkwarf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kalkwarf.

Doug Thompsen, president of the BHS honor organization, was in charge of the program, which was attended by parents of the NHS members.

Addition of the three newcomers brings present membership in the society to 18.

Neil Kalkwarf is a senior and the other two initiates are juniors. Neil has participated in a wide range of activities. He was on the football squad four years, has played baseball the past three seasons, went out for track as a sophomore and junior and was basketball manager those same two years.

He's been a member of the B club for two years, was on the Student Council as a junior, in chorus the past two years and had a one-act play role this past winter.

Luanne has been in the concert chorus for three years and has also sung with small groups in contest competition. She has been very active in dramatics; and since entering BHS has belonged to the Future Homemakers of America and Girls Recreation association.

Kermit has limited his extra-curricular interests to participation in activities of the Future Farmers of America. All three had to have good academic records to be eligible for NHS membership.

GENE WENZEL ENGAGED IN VIETNAM OPERATION

U.S. ARMY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) — Army Private First Class Gene E. Wenzel, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wenzel of Meservey, is participating in "Operation Junction City," the largest military operation to date in Vietnam.

The operation was launched on the theory that national Viet Cong political and military headquarters might be located in the area along the Cambodian border.

The finding of the largest enemy encampments in the war tend to support the theory.

Meeting little VC resistance, the operation has been successful in the confiscation of large quantities of food and arms.

Pvt. Wenzel is a communications specialist in Company A, 1st Battalion of the 1st Infantry Division's 16th Infantry.

Hello, World

Loss in robbery at Followwill's more than $900

A break-in at Followwill Implement company sometime last Thursday night cost the firm more than $525 in cash and some $380 worth of merchandise, according to Deputy Sheriff Bob Shaw, who investigated the crime. He was joined in the investigation by Deputy Vern Elston and Chief of Police Ray Thompson.

M. L. "Pete" Followwill told the officers that the robbery came at distinctly the "wrong time," as regular bank deposits customarily leave only a small amount of petty cash in the cash drawer overnight.

In this particular instance, a deposit had been by-passed due to rush of business and $527 in currency and change was in the cash drawer. There was no insurance to cover the cash loss of the theft of merchandise which included 22 pairs of boots, four jackets, some wrench sets and screw drivers.

Entrance to Followwill's north building was gained by prying the rear door on the east open with a crowbar.

F-S co-op again has low fuel bid

When contract was let by the board of supervisors Monday for supply of road department fuels needed by Wright county for the coming year, low bid for the third time in a row was entered by Franklin-Wright Farm Service company. The winning bids were the lowest that have yet been received, as five petroleum product suppliers competed for the contract.

The co-op offered a discount of 5.88 cents from Clarion tank wagon price on an estimated requirement of 90,000 gallons of gasoline and 5.38 cents on 45,000 gallons of diesel fuel. The low bids a year ago were 5.73 and 5.27 respectively.

Aggregate savings on the discounts offered on the minimum amounts of the two fuels under the Farm Service bids would be $7,713. American Oil company (Standard) with bids of 5.78 and 5.22 as discounts was next with a figure of $7,551.

The other bidders and the aggregate savings their bids would have allowed were: Sunray D-X Oil, $7,164; Sinclair Refining, $6,772; and Mobil Oil, $5,962.

Melody Courson in singing role

Melody Courson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Courson, is among the singers who on May 6 will be heard at the University of Missouri at Kansas City in the presentation of a short mass composed by an 18th century Italian, Francesco Gasparini.

The mass, never before produced in modern times, was unearthed in Dresden, Germany by Dr. LeRoy Pogemiller, associate professor of theory at the university's Kansas City branch conservatory of music. It will be presented by a vocal chorus of 20 and the full complement of nine soloists and 18 instrumentalists called for by the score.

The May 6 presentation of the Gasparini mass will be its first anywhere since 1732.

Two state awards to Independent

Further laurels were added to those won in previous years when The Independent was awarded a second place and a third place in contests conducted in conjunction with the annual convention of the Iowa Press association last Thursday through Saturday at Des Moines.

The picture of a sparrow driven into the siding of a house by last October's tornado, taken by Editor Pat Gallagher, received second place in the Best News Picture contest.

Third place went to The Independent in the contest for Best Reporting of Local Government. It was the fourth award to the newspaper in this division, second place having gone to The Independent in 1963, an honorable mention in 1964 and third place a year ago.

This was the 15th time since 1952 that The Independent has submitted entries in state press competition and this year's citations brought to 15 the number earned by the newspaper over that period of time.

These awards have been achieved in five different categories of competition. It was in Community Service that recognition was first given The Independent, when it took first place among all Iowa weeklies in 1952. Other firsts in the same division were won in 1954 and 1958, a third place in 1960 and honorable mentions in 1956 and 1962.

First place in Editorial Excellence among Iowa's weekly editors went to Editor Gallagher in 1959 and honorable mentions in 1962 and 1964.

Last year "Conversations with the Office Cat," an editorial page fixture when the legislature is not in session, was judged best of the weekly newspaper personal columns in Iowa.

E. G. man "off" three cents—

Beef price guessers too optimistic

Albert Lempke of Eagle Grove was winner of a $10 hat for coming closest to guessing the top Chicago beef price for the week of Oct. 3-8 last fall as results of the annual guessing contest were announced Tuesday night of last week. This contest is a feature of the annual banquet of the Wright County Beef Producers association, which attracted a crowd of some 400 beefmen and guests to the Eagle Grove Memorial building.

Only three cents separated Lempke's guess ($26.97) from the actual price of $27 that was tops for the week in question. Three other men received $3.00 gift certificates for missing by only a dime with identical guesses of $27.10. They were Wavel Schaefer of Kanawha, R. T. Johnson of Dows and Keith Babcock of Galt.

Guesses were registered by 258 men at the beef banquet a year ago, ranging from $19.35 to $35.30 and averaging $3.12 over the actual price at $30.12. Another contest was conducted for the week of Oct. 2-7 this coming fall.

An election of directors from the northwest and southeast districts of the county saw Loren Schipull of Goldfield and Gene Sturgeon of Dows returned to places on the board that they were already filling.

Mr. Schipull, chairman of this year's membership drive of the county association, reported that Wright stands second in the state as to 1967 members with 257 already signed up.

Gail Danilson, field representative of the Iowa Beef Producers association, told of a trip that Iowa beefmen will take to Bangor, Me., this summer to publicize Iowa beef. They will take prize Hereford and Angus steers with them to exhibit along the way.

Kenneth Fulks, executive secretary of the Iowa State Fair, was the major speaker. He told of current efforts being made to up-date the fair and make it an event that "really serves the people of Iowa, and has something for everyone."

SHADES OF OCTOBER! The scene above reminded passers-by Monday afternoon of post-tornado demolition days last fall when Fullerton Lumber company's storm-battered office and shed were razed to make way for new construction. Nelson Gravel company's crane and demolition ball made short work of reducing the timbers into rubble that could be carted away to the dump. Fullerton's has obtained a city building permit for the replacement of the former shed and office with a $20,000 structure of brick and frame construction.

Not bad, but disappointing—

Musicians win "only" 15 Div. I's

Belmond Community High school musicians found Division I ratings harder than usual to achieve when they participated last Friday and Saturday in the Class B state music contest at Garner.

Only 15 "superior" ratings were awarded to the 56 Belmond soloists and small groups competing in the vocal and instrumental divisions of the contest. While this might be regarded a very satisfactory accomplishment under some circumstances, with 29 Division I's having been accumulated a year ago the harvest this time was somewhat disappointing.

From among Maurice Fahrney's 25 instrumental entries, one soloist and seven groups received top ratings. Stanley Norson had 31 vocal soloists and groups in the contest, of which only three soloists and four groups were judged "superior."

Lora Thompson, snare drum soloist, earned a Division I rating as did Glen Gabrielson and Tom Finn, baritone soloists, and Julie Kinseth, soprano soloist.

Most of the other BHS soloists were rated "excellent." From the instrumental department they were: Delores Hauge, bassoon; Rae Jean Willey, cornet; Barbara Olson, French horn; Janice Willey, trombone; Rachel Kalkwarf and Lois Pals, snare drum.

Instrumental groups accorded Division I ratings were: clarinet trio — Cathy Lowenberg, Geraldine Didio, Ronald Dougherty; clarinet quartet — Lowenberg, Didio, Dougherty, Kathy Slining; woodwind quartet — Didio, Dougherty, Susan Thompson, Debbie Misner.

Woodwind choir — Slining, Lowenberg, Dougherty, Didio, Mary Azeltine, Linda Trager, Linda Kennedy, Janell Fuller, Margaret Prince, Richard Thompson; brass quintet — Rae Jean Willey, Gloria Porter, Jean McLaughlin, Steve Courson, Jeanne Anderson.

Two girls' trios were judged "superior," one consisting of Barbara Olson, Barbara Finn and Marlene Suntken; the other including Carol Sharp, Gloria Porter and Nancy Barkema.

A top rating also went to the boys' quartet made up by Kent Korthas, Glen Gabrielson, Barbara Olson, Julie Kinseth, Gloria Porter, Doug Tyrrell, Glen Gabrielson, Joel Gabrielson and Tom Finn.

Division II ratings went to the following instrumental groups: mixed clarinet quartet (2), woodwind trio (2), brass quartet, brass quintet, brass sextet and French horn quartet.

"Excellent" ratings also were given the following vocal groups: girls quartet, eight-voice and 16-voice madrigals, mixed quartet and boys double quartet (2).

Prompting the BHS contestants to suspect that judging at Garner was more severe than at the state contest in which local entries competed last year was the fact that five vocal soloists who were top rated in '66 were able to earn no better that Division II ratings this time.

In the estimate of possibly prejudiced listeners, Carol Sharp, Linda Tomson, Barbara Olson, Mack Gabrielson and Steve Courson were thought to have sung just as competently as when their efforts earned them "superior" ratings a year ago.

Apply Sinclair Dinofarm Premium Fertilizer now!

For higher yield, start your crops right. On corn, for example, 200 lbs. of Sinclair Dinofarm Premium 8-32-18 can produce a bonus of 2 bushels per acre over regular fertilizers. Sinclair's mono-ammonium phosphate makes the difference. Dinofarm Premium Fertilizer has greater water solubility. This means crops get more nutrients from the start for higher yields.

For Sinclair Dinofarm Premium Fertilizer, visit or call your nearby Sinclair Farm Center today. Ask, too, about Sinclair's complete line of custom blends, anhydrous ammonia, and crop chemicals.

Crusade dollars have saved lives—will save more

We hope that a Cancer Crusade solicitor has already paid you a visit and that you've responded as the worthiness of the cause behooves.

If you have, you can take some genuine satisfaction in the good your donation will help achieve. In the past 15 years, research and education that the annual Crusades have underwritten reduced from one-in-four to one-in-three the number of American cancer victims who have been CURED — by prompt medical attention and/or advanced techniques of treatment. Thirty years ago, the ratio was one-in-five.

Based on present rates, 50 million persons in the U. S. now alive will eventually have cancer. That's why the American Cancer Society is working so determinedly to advance the cure ratio to one out of every two.

ACS estimates 580,000 cases of cancer will be diagnosed THIS YEAR. The difference between saving one-half rather than one-third is 86,667 lives! Isn't that an objective worth a few of your dollars? One of those lives COULD be YOURS!

No indication M. C. wants to gobble NIAD cohorts

Following are some excerpts from an editorial from the typewriter of Maurie Crabbe, editor of the Eagle Grove Eagle, which we reproduce because they deal with a common and very plaguing problem — and because they prompt some comments of our own, which will follow the borrowed observations.

● ● ●

The Area Nine extension division of the Iowa State Extension Service (writes Mr. Crabbe) has been holding a series of meetings, called the Forum 5, to acquaint the residents of the nine-county area around Fort Dodge with the social and economic problems arising in the area. . . .

Every thinking person is aware of the change (loss of total population, and particularly of the population in the production age groups, from our rural areas) that is taking place. And for years communities have been waging a fight to reverse this trend. The new concept or the idea of the program being put on by the Extension Service seems to be to get us to adopt a larger view of the problem and to get us to concentrate our efforts on an area basis instead of a community or county basis.

This is causing confusion in that we are also having to enlarge our educational concept to a 10-county area which is different from the Extension Service area. In Wright county we will also have to get used to Belmond being in a different area, NIAD, centered in Mason City, instead of Area Nine in which Clarion and Eagle Grove are located. In other words our county is split.

It also brings up the jealousies that smaller communities have for larger communities. The new maps of our nine counties being shown us picture the entire area with Fort Dodge located in the center.

This column has on several occasions talked about the shift of levels of government from the county seat at Fort Dodge and has asked the question how soon will our courthouse be moved to Fort Dodge.

A look at the statistics which picture the change that is going on show that farm population is dropping fast. That small towns (most of them 2,500 and under) are also losing population. Larger towns, Eagle Grove included, have been gaining population slowly and so far have been able to arrest the change if not to reverse it.

Eagle Grove has had some spectacular growth in certain industries already located here and has been attracting enough new industry to give us a substantial increase in job opportunities and economic valuation (for tax purposes).

That we will keep up the good fight and even extend our abilities in development is an established fact. It is a question of GROW or DIE and we have no intention of dying.

Whenever a new and larger area concept is accepted by the residents it means that we have to forget our own plans and fight to work for the development of the new areas. Because any efforts we expend to develop the bigger area is going to bring most immediate benefit to the largest center in the area, the center with the biggest labor supply and the "best community services."

Localizing it means that Eagle Grove, Webster City, Humboldt, et al, must combine their resources and desires for development of the entire area and that will bring the most immediate benefit to Fort Dodge, the area center. It is like asking Fort Dodge to expend its efforts and resources to the devolpment of Des Moines.

It of necessity requires that the trend for everything bigger must be going to continue. And that is where we begin to ask questions. Does a bigger school system mean better schools, does a concentration of government services mean better and more efficient government? Does a concentration of churches mean better religious service? Some place this worship of bigness begins to backfire.

The job of selling the nine-county area concept of social and economic growth is going to be a tough one for the Extension people. The final meeting of the Forum Five session in Fort Dodge should be a real humdinger.

We don't know how Area Nine has been going about its business, but if Mr. Crabbe's remarks accurately reflect the tack being taken we can only say that Area Nine could learn something from NIAD.

We've sat in on quite a number of NIAD meetings and have talked with others who have done likewise. At no time have we gained the impression that NIAD's ultimate purpose was the aggrandizement of Mason City. Certainly no such fears have been implanted in Mason City's associates in the conduct of such studies as have been made to further the GENERAL interests the NIAD territory.

We've no concern that NIAD is merely a means to the end of Mason City utilizing us outlanders to River City's own nefarious ends. Like we say, maybe Area Nine and NIAD are either pursuing different objectives; . . . or else Maurie's just too nervous.

Should license plates be "motorized billboards"?

Say, how did the legislature finally come out on the matter of a slogan for Iowa car license plates?

Seems as if the lawmakers finally settled on "Beautiful Land" in preference to "Bountiful Land" but we're doggoned if we can now recall if this was a fait accompli, or if the matter was finally pigeonholed along with the morning doves (which we always think of as "mourning" doves) and certain other matters of state that eventually had to give way to such grim realities as taxes and how long a double-bottom truck should be permitted on Iowa highways.

What got us to thinking in this vein was an item that recently caught our eye pertaining to a debate as to whether Idaho plates should continue — for another five years — to brag of that commonwealth's "Famous Potatoes."

The Portland Oregonian, in commenting on this weighty decision, recalled that a few years back the words "Pacific Wonderland" graced the Oregon licenses — which seemed to produce no magical results. The writer added personal doubts "that 'America's Dairyland' brings many visitors to Wisconsin or 'Water Wonderland' starts tourists moving en masse on Michigan."

In fact, this West Coast Doubting Thomas expressed serious personal doubt as to whether an automobile license plate should serve as a "motorized billboard" plugging some local product or simply suffice as a means of identification.

The editorialist summed up his sentiments with, "License-plate slogans are, in fact, pretty corny. And Iowa has a corner on the corn."

We're thinking that remark over and suspect that on due deliberation we're going to decide that we've been offended.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

This week the Senate considered a House-passed version of the merit system and amended it and passed it 57-2. Because of several amendments the bill was to return to the House for its concurrence. One of the amendments which the Senate made would exempt from testing all employees who had worked for the state for two years.

I opposed this because I personally favor the House bill, which originally provided that employees would have had to have worked for the state for at least three years before being exempt from testing. In the event the House fails to concurr with this amendment, a conference committee would be appointed with the responsibility of compromising the issue if possible.

Under the bill, the three-member Iowa merit employment commission would be appointed by the governor, and approved by the Senate, to administer the act under a hired director. This would require that all new employees prove their ability to do the job they seek by taking a practical test.

All promotions would also be based on merit, determined through additional tests and the employee's work record.

PROPONENTS OF THE MERIT system pointed out that unqualified workers could be removed, although the employee would be protected from unjustified firing through a hearing before the commission.

Backers said the bill would give Iowans the assurance of qualified public servants making the best use of tax dollars. Employees would also be freed from the chances of political firings, thus making state employment more attractive.

THE SENATE COMPLETED ACtion on a civil rights bill which seeks to permit all persons to buy or rent the residence they can afford. The bill would bar discrimination on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin in the renting or buying of most homes. The proposal was approved, 49-11, and now goes to the House for action.

One amendment was added to the original bill, which sponsors said was necessary to give the proposal a chance to pass both houses. The amendment requires a person who registers a complaint of alleged discrimination in housing to also file a $500 surety bond with the state Civil Rights Commission.

IDEA OF THE BOND AMENDment is to prevent persons from filing complaints merely to harrass someone else. Sponsors said the amendment would help screen complaints so that the Civil Rights Commission would be handling the more legitimate complaints.

The bill would exempt religious institutions from the act, and would also not apply to the renting of one unit of a two-family home if the owner lives in the other unit.

THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON Government Reorganization brought out a series of bills which follow up on the objectives of government reorganization. The most needed and far-reaching of these bills pertained to reorganization of the tax commission. The three-man tax commission would be replaced by a single commissioner who would have authority over county assessors.

The objective would be to force county assessors to use a uniform set of rules so equitable assessments on similar property in different counties would be the same. This measure will be given priority for consideration on the floor of the Senate because many believe this to be a pre-requisite for tax reform.

AREA SCHOOL FINANCING—

Twenty-eight legislators want the state's new vocational schools to hold up spending any money for two weeks to give lawmakers an opportunity to resolve what they call "a gigantic financial mess."

The area vocational schools are expected to run up a deficit of $4.3 million by June 30. Some of the area school districts have been paying bills with warrants, which they hope will be paid later with emergency state aid.

THE 28 LEGISLATORS, INCLUDing members of both parties and both houses, met at a Des Moines hotel to discuss the thorny issue. Sen. Eugene Hill, a critic of the spending policies of the the new schools, maintains they had no authority to set up budgets exceeding revenues from local taxes and state aid.

Hill has drafted a bill that would separate the vocational schools from the community colleges. The measure would return all junior colleges taken over by the new area schools to the control of local school districts.

"POT" INQUIRY?—

News stories about marijuana parties at Iowa campuses may spark an official inquiry by legislators. Rep. Tom Renda (Dem., Des Moines) may ask for such an investigation. Renda said he was disturbed after reading that Donald Smith, the bearded president of the Iowa State study body, had attended "a pot party" where marijuana cigarettes were smoked.

The up-shot of this may be for the legislature to increase the number of field agents employed by the state narcotics bureau. At present, the bureau only has three field agents covering the entire state.

MERIT SYSTEM—

After nearly two days' debate, the Iowa House has approved a merit or civil service system for state employees. More than 30 amendments were offered to the bill; some were adopted, some were not. The major battles developed over whether the governor or executive council should have power to appoint members of the merit employment commission, which present state employees should be exempt from taking tests to prove their proficiency and how stiff a prohibition to include on political activitiy by state employees.

After once voting to put both the appointive and removal powers over the three commissioners in the executive council rather than the governor, the House back-tracked and voted to let the governor appoint the commissioners

IT ALSO DECIDED THAT qualified persons employed by the state for three years would not have to take tests. The lower chamber also adopted an amendment, 58 to 53, which softened the provisions on political activity.

The bill in original form would have banned state employees from taking any active part in political campaigns But this was amended to allow state employees to take part in political activities "after working hours."

The final vote was 98 to 15. The bill now goes to the Senate.

MORE COURT REFORM—

The Senate has passed two more bills on court reform. One provides for a uniform schedule of fines for traffic violations.

Here's the way it would work: A traffic violations office would be established in the office of the clerk of district court to handle fines for state law violations. Offenders would be allowed in most cases to mail in the fine, plus $2 costs.

The other bill approved by the Senate reduces the number of judicial districts from 21 to 13. Both measures still must be acted upon by the House.

ASSEMBLY NEWS—

In other legislative news, the Senate has approved the appointment of Linn County Attorney Jack Fulton as state safety commissioner . . . The House has passed a measure that would place debt management companies under state controls . . . Sen. John Kibbie has introduced a bill that would prevent thousands of Iowa housewives from collecting trading stamps . . . . Charles Quirk, Cedar Falls Democrat, has been named chairman of a 10-member commission set up to propose a plan for subdistricting the legislature.

Congregational church's centennial at hand

On Sunday, April 30, Belmond's Congregational church (United of Christ) will be observing its centennial. In recognition of the occasion, a commemorative booklet has been published by the church that includes a history of the church written by the present pastor. In the belief that this history may be of general interest to Independent readers, it will be reprinted in installments over several weeks in this space. Below is the 1st instalment.

By Rev. J. Samuel Shelby

The Belmond Congregational Church largely owes its origin to the faith and courage of Stephen Nelson Hinman, a Civil War veteran who brought the spirit of Vermont Congregationalism with him when he walked into Belmond — all the way from Iowa Falls, the nearest railroad — in November, 1865.

Although a few farms were scattered along both sides of the Iowa River, the village itself was perhaps no more than fifteen dwellings, a small store, blacksmith shop and sawmill. But in the spring of 1866, Mr. Hinman became Superintendent of a Sunday School which he had helped to organize in a little schoolhouse northwest of town.

Here during the winter of 1866-67 the Reverend Charles Harrison, a Congregational minister from Otisville (now Dows), and E. A. Howland, a deacon, conducted a series of meetings which attracted some of the Christian people in the community, achieved at least three adult commitments to the Christian faith, and inspired the little gathering to effect a more enduring fellowship.

On March 3, 1867 a meeting was called to perfect the organization. Present were "four Baptists, four Methodists, one Congregationalist and three new converts giving their preference for the Congregational Church." These became the charter members of the Belmond Church: Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Hinman, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Boughton, Mr. and Mrs. John Christie, J. F. Smith, George Udell, Mrs. Frank Christie, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Swan (no first name for either), and James Vinton.

They adopted Articles of Faith and elected three deacons: S. N. Hinman, C. J. Boughton and John Christie. The first two were later to be designated deacons for life. They also elected a delegate to attend the fall association meeting and sat down to the communion together for the first time. "As we 'sang a hymn and went out,' ", Deacon Hinman afterwards described it, "a heavy snow was falling and the clouds were full of lightning and thunder — a phenomenon seldom seen at that time and we did not altogether know whether it was a good or evil omen."

That first asociation meeting was at Algona where "Father" Chauncey Taylor had preached since 1856 and organized a church. Indeed, it was not until the 1867 association that this patriarch was installed as pastor by council. Deacon Hinman witnessed this and the dedication of the little building that housed the Algona Church. He was also so favorably impressed by a young ex-soldier and teacher whom the association agreed to license to preach that he invited him to become pastor at Belmond at "the munificent sum of $400 a year." And so E. C. Miles became the first pastor, remaining a year before acceding to a more attractive offer from another church. As Deacon Hinman told it, "They of Humboldt came after him in the night with teams, and in the morning they were gone and I have never seen them since."

Iowa Congregationalism was a projection of that of Illinois. The Pilgrim faith that came to New England had crossed the Hudson River into the Mohawk Valley and over the Alleghenies to the Western Reserve of northern Ohio, and into the regions beyond — Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and eventually the Blackhawk Purchase known as Iowa, where a church was established first in 1838.

Three clergyman, Asa Turner, Reuben Gaylord, Julius Reed, and five laymen had organized a State Association in 1840. After three years, they were joined by Oliver Emerson, John Holbrooke, A. B. Hitchcock and Charles Burnham, and by the "Iowa band" — eleven Andover Seminary graduates looking for parishes to lead to righteousness. Most of these were given the honorific patriarchal title of "Father" for their wisdom and years of service.

At meetings of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, a young pastor from Essex, Vermont, fell under the spell of Julius Reed, who talked little else but Iowa, and was convinced that he, too, should go to Iowa. The young man was John Drozier Sands.

Born in England, he had attended school and held various employments until he was seventeen, when he left home on a venture. He fought for the Queen in putting down the Papineau Rebellion in Canada, then spent three years in Grand Signe Academy. For a time, he distributed French Bibles; then, persuaded that he should become a minister, studied at Yale (1844-47). He married, and with his wife spent nine years in the Essex pastorate.

In 1856, they went to Keosauqua, Iowa, where they served the church for ten years. Two years of this time, however, the pastor was at the front, chaplain of the Nineteenth Iowa Regiment. From 1866 to 1869, he preached at Quincy, Iowa and Wataga, Illinois. "By chance," he said, "my mind turned towards northwest Iowa; and I came to Wright and Hancock Counties."

Pastor Sands was 54 years old when he moved to Belmond, but he was just beginning, for with this as a radiating center he attempted to evangelize the two-county area. He early became Superintendent of Schools for Wright County and visited its thirty-three schoolhouses, preaching in most of them. Origins of forty-two churches of various denominations have been attributed to the work of this circuit rider.

During one of his absences, his house burned with all its contents, including the records of the schools and those of the Belmond Church which, as clerk, he had kept. Consequently, the earliest records we possess date from September 8, 1871.

The Public Health Nurses made a report of their activities for the month of February 1967.

Ray Willemssen of the Wright County Rural Electric Cooperative, together with Bernard Mokelbust, chairman of the REC Board, Ernie Christensen and Raynard Southard, met with the Board of Supervisors for the purpose of discussing the possible purchase by the REC of the 5-stall county garage located on the alley in back of the old jail. This is being used at the present time for storage of certain equipment belonging to the Sheriff's and Engineer's departments. Until arrangements can be made to accommodate this equipment, no sale can be contemplated. The suggestion was made that possibly the REC could erect a garage for the County on the east side of the present county jail. This matter will be studied by both Boards and they will meet again for a further discussion when they have been able to work out something definite.

The following Resolution was introduced and read:

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED, that Wright County, Iowa, take the necessary steps to apply for food stamps o be used by those persons now receiving commodities and that the Director of Social Welfare of Wright County, Iowa, be so informed.

Motion was made by Duitscher, seconded by Weidemann, that the foregoing Resolution be adopted. Upon roll call the vote was as follows: Ayes, Wendell Duitscher, G. C. Whyte, George E. Motion carried.

Pat Gallagher of the Belmond Independent stopped to visit with the Board. Proposed repairs to the heating system in the Court House and the possible sale of the 320 acre county farm were discussed.

Also to approve application of Clarmond Country Club for beer permit. Motion carried.

Further, that all maintenance men having five continuous years, or more, of steady employment by the County will be entitled to ten working days paid vacation per year. For those with less than five years service, the paid vacation shall remain at six working days. All of the foregoing to be effective April 1, 1967. Motion carried.

Motion by Heard, seconded by Weidemann, to refund $2.00 to Alvin Peterson for double payment of dog tax. Motion carried.

A delegation of nine landowners appeared before the Board in connection with a road grading project 3 miles north on County K and west 5 miles to the Holmes road and stated that it is their feeling they are not being offered a sufficient amount of money for right-of-way and fence moving. The Board discussed this matter and decided no change would be made in the amount offered.

The following claims were read and allowed:

PUBLIC FORUM

Letters to the Independent are welcomed. Please try to limit to 250 words or less.

To whom it may concern:

I have heard that our Mayor and City Council pay no attention to petitions because they consider all people who circulate and sign them as crackpots. Well as one crackpot to another I have a few words to say.

I do not think the City Council acted in the best interest of the people of Belmond, just in the best interest of a few.

Mayor Misner made quite a point that the voters of Belmond placed their faith in them when they elected them to office, but I imagine after the Monday night hearing most of them feel that even though they voted for the winners they are now the losers. Their City Council sold them down the river for $2,000.

If the City Council takes time to read that 121 names on that petition they will see that most of them were from the Northeast section of town. I only wish that Mr. McDougle could have covered the entire city and then we would have known in whose interest the City Council acted.

We may be incompetent as charged but we are not complete fools. As I see it the only time we are incompetent is at election time. We saw the National By-Products plant at Waterloo.

I hope that when that North wind blows 28% of the time that the council members and their families can take it. I can. I also hope they are prepared to cope with the flies and rats.

Well, good people of Belmond take a little advice from this incompetent crackpot and buy lots of fly spray and rat poison and have a happy summer. I shall.

Mrs. Ralph McDougle

Laundry course to end Tuesday

Second half of the two-day shortcourse in laundrying will be presented next Tuesday at the Clarion grade school auditorium, the program starting at 8:00 a. m. and concluding with a drawing for prizes at 3:00 p. m.

Naomi Shank, household equipment specialist from Iowa State university, Ames, will speak at 9:30 a. m. on "Planning for the Home Laundry." At 10:15 the topic of Mrs. Ron Swanson, Eagle Grove homemaker, will be of particular interest to young mothers as she gives tips on "Baby Clothes Care."

After an hour lunch period, the program will resume at 1:00 p. m. when Dr. Mary Pickett, associate professor of household equipment at ISU, takes up the subject, "Soils and Stains — Laundry Problems."

She will be followed at 1:45 by Mel Wilson of the Humboldt County REC and John Martinson, farm service manager for the Wright County REC, who will talk on "Safety in the Laundry."

From 2:30 to 3:00 o'clock, additional time will be available to inspect exhibits and displays before the prize drawing concludes the afternoon's attractions.

This laundry shortcourse was planned by the Wright county extension home economics committee, of which Mrs. Ira Studebaker of Belmond is chairman. The committee feels sure that much of value will be derived by women who attend the second shortcourse program.

APPEALING REVOCATION

Clair V. Hanson, Belmond, on Tuesday of last week asked the district court at Clarion to set time for a hearing at which he may appeal a recent determination of the state commission of public safety in regard to revocation of his driver's permit. He had been given a hearing by a representative of the commission on April 4 and 10 in protest of the revocation, but the ruling then delivered sustained the revocation.

$15 FOR PERMIT VIOLATION

● Belmond Locals

His name was Sam Campbell and he died here in 1938. Mrs. Campbell died last Thursday at a Cedar Rapids nursing home.

Broncs cop Eagle Relays Class C

—SPORTS—

Belmond High's track and field athletes got their regular outdoor season off to a satisfactorily successful start last Friday night at Eagle Grove, taking first place in Class C at the annual Eagle Relays. They earned a second trophy in addition to that for the championship when the two-mile relay quartet finished first in that event.

Manson, with its top star disabled by a leg injury, didn't provide the competition expected and managed only 51 points to finish behind the Broncos with 73 and Twin Rivers of Bode with 63. Clarion chalked up 49 points, Emmetsburg 37 and Britt 21.

Terry Nelson was a double winner for Belmond, wiping out the Class C discus mark with a fine toss of 146 ft. 8½ in. and taking first in the 120-yard high hurdles in a time of :16.8.

Wayne Smith and Bob Rise accounted for the Broncos' other individual firsts by taking the 180-yard low hurdles and 100-yard dash respectively. Smith had the respectable time of :22.1 and Rise's :10.9 was good enough for the century win.

Manning the baton for Belmond in the two-mile relay were Gary Meyers, Don Goeman, Mike Klinefelter and Dallas Steenblock. Their time was 8:47.1.

Tim Roberts, after managing no better than a third place on misses though clearing the top height of 5 ft. 4 in. in the high jump, got second in the long jump with a good leap of 19 ft. 11 in.

He along with Smith, Lance Campbell and Rise comprised the sprint foursome that placed second in the 440 relay in :47.8 and third in the 880 in a time of 1:38.5.

Meyers, Goeman, Klinefelter and Dallas Steenblock garnered a second in the mile relay with a 3:47 effort and the medley quartet of Greg Steenblock, Marc Middleton, Rick Hawley and Don Havens placed third in 5:03.5.

Clarmond begins season activities

Clarmond Country club officially opened the club house and golf course to its members on Thursday of last week.

First club function will be a men's stag on Thursday of this week and first ladies' day will be on Tuesday of next week.

Dinner for the men's stag will be this evening at 8:00 o'clock. A meeting of all women golfers at 12:00 noon will open the ladies' day, followed by a luncheon at 1:00 p. m.

Mrs. Naomi Downs, former proprietor of Texaco Cafe at Belmond, has been engaged to manage the club house during the 1967 Clarmond season.

KETCHUM AWARDED SECOND WARTBURG VARSITY LETTER

Terry beats 'em all in open discus at Valley

Terry Nelson stamped himself as one of Iowa's best discus throwers of the current season when he took first place in that event — which was open to all contestants, regardless of class — at last Saturday's Valley Relays at West Des Moines. His best toss was 146 ft. 7¼ in., this being the third meet in a row that the bespectacled junior has bettered 146 feet.

He also had his best time yet in the 120-yard high hurdles, :16.6, but it wasn't good enough to get him into the finals.

Belmond was one of three teams that accumulated eight points in the Class B division to tie for 5th place in the team standings. Winterset amassed 40 points, Praire of Cedar Rapids notched 28, Carlisle and Lynville - Sully each 14; then came Clear Lake and Urbandale with Belmond at eight.

Two team points were contributed by the Bronc shuttle hurdles relays entry, comprised of Nelson, Ken Busick, Mike Klinefelter and Wayne Smith, which picked off a fourth place.

Absence of Bob Rise, who was competing in the state music contest at Garner, weakened some of the Belmond relay quartets. The best showing was by the medley outfit, which finished just one place out of the money with a 3:55 time. A bad baton exchange between the 220 men possible deprived the Broncos of scoring.

Gary Meyers ran a respectable 440 to start the Broncos off. The 220's were handled by Rick Hawley and Tim Roberts. They left Dallas Steenblock in pretty poor position for his concluding 880 and several times he got shoved in trying to get into the clear, with the result that Belmond finished in sixth place.

Pleasing to Coach Chuck Stalker was the performance of Randy Turner in his first competitive mile appearance. The sturdy freshman won his heat in 5:05, which wasn't good enough for a point-spot on a time basis but nevertheless was good for a first try at the distance.

Clear Lake names Long head basketball coach

Dave Long, a 1967 graduate of Belmond Community High school and son of Lem Long and the late Betty Long, took another upward stride in the coaching profession last week when he was promoted to head basketball coach at Clear Lake High school. He will succeed Gary Boeyink in the position.

This advancement came as recognition of a decidely impressive coaching record that he has achieved in the six years since he got his Bachelor's degree from State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls. He has since acquired his Master's degree in physical education from Northeast Missouri State college at Kirksville.

Dave's first coaching job was at Sheffield High school, where both his track teams and basketball teams enjoyed exceptional success. He went to Clear Lake at the start of the 1964-65 school year. This past year he has been head track coach and freshman-junior varsity mentor in basketball. He will continue as varsity track coach.

At Sheffield, his basketball teams had a three-year record of 51 wins and only 15 losses. His freshman and junior varsity teams at Clear Lake have done equally well, with a 26-7 mark to their credit.

During his six years of track coaching, his teams have won five district championships and have boasted seven individual state champions. Dave has also been a strong proponent of cross-country as a high school sport and his cross-country teams have lost only once in 25 meets. In addition, he has had four state champions in the long-distance event.

Dave is readying for publication a book on coaching cross-country, which he prepared in collaboration with Francis X. Cretzemyer, coach of track at the University of Iowa, Larry Kramer and others who have won reputations in the sport.

Broncs will duel FC; then at SCI, Humboldt Relays

Belmond High's track and field forces will travel to Forest City on Friday for a dual meet with the Indians, which will see Coach Chuck Stalker giving some of his untried boys a chance to see what they can do.

Saturday morning and afternoon, the best of the Broncos will compete at Cedar Falls in the annual Dickinson Relays at State College of Iowa. They will be contending for Class B laurels, except in the open individual events.

Terry Nelson will be trying to chalk up his fourth victory in a row in the discus, but may have to improve on past performances to beat the big-school boys.

Belmond chances would appear best in the two-mile and medley relays, otherwise, with a possibility of picking up some points in the 440 and 880 sprint events, also.

Next Tuesday night will find the Broncos making their annual appearance in the Humboldt Relays. The Broncos will be the defending Class B champions, having last year won the title with relative ease against competition provided by Clarion, Prairie of Gowrie, Manson, Twin Rivers and Emmetsburg.

Vestweber-Brunotte vows spoken at Rowan Congregational church

Miss Bonnie Jean Vestweber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Vestweber, became the bride of Jack E. Brunotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brunotte of Mitchellville, Sunday afternoon, April 2, at the Rowan Congregational church. Rev. James E. Rozendaal of Belmond performed the double-ring ceremony.

Lighted candles and bouquets of white gladioli and mums decorated the chancel. Nuptial music was played on the organ by Mrs. Larry Aldrich, who also accompanied Mrs. Jack Freese as she sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of embroidered satin featuring short lace sleeves, an empire waistline and A-line, floor length skirt. A satin pearl headpiece held the silk illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of Yuletide red roses and stephanotis, with ivy and white satin streamers.

The brides attendants were Diane Fredricks of Vermillion, S. D., Diana Andrews of Rowan and Connie Wieslander of Mitchellville. Their gowns were styled of dark blue embroidered satin, having empire illusion bodices with elbow length sleeves. Their floor-length sheath skirts were of light blue crepe and featured a back panel of dark blue embroidered satin. Their pouf veils were attached to matching dark blue bows. Each carried a single red rose.

Robert Hansen of Des Moines served as best man. Groomsmen were Bob Derryberry and Richard Houser, also of Des Moines. Jerry Vestweber, brother of the bride, and Dale Brunotte, brother of the groom, served as ushers. The men of the wedding party wore white tuxedoes and blue carnation boutonnieres, except for the groom, whose boutonniere was a red rose.

Terri Smith, daughter of the John Smiths, was flower girl. She carried a white wicker basket of red sweetheart roses and white pompoms. Michael Quint, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

The mother of the bride wore a 2-piece blue dress with black and white accessories and the groom's mother an off-white knit dress with blue accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church basement with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kriens as host and hostess. The four-tirered cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom inside a large bell, was cut by Mrs. Airell Clark of Belmond and Mrs. John Quint of Minnetonka, Minn.

Jean Brunotte presided at the guest book. Koleen Kriens and Sandi Quint received the gifts. Mary Hadley, Carol Weigand, Launa Jamison and Judy Riekens unwrapped the gifts.

As the couple left for a short honeymoon trip, the bride wore an off-white knit dress with a navy blue knit coat. They will make their home at 2808 Kingman Blvd. in Des Moines.

The bride is a graduate of Belmond Community High school and the American Institute of Business. She is currently employed in the Des Moines municipal court as a court reporter. The groom is a graduate of South East Polk High school and of AIB. He is attending the Area 11 Vocational college in West Des Moines.

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Received a nice note from Stella M. Olson, one-time BHS principal, saying "thanks" for a brief item we published recently to the affect that she was a patient at Northwest Hospital in Des Moines following major surgery.

"Due to that notice," she wrote, "I have received countless cards and letters with words of encouragement not only from my Belmond former students and friends in the community but from subscribers of your paper as far away as Oregon and other states."

Stella spent five weeks in the hospital but is now well on the mend and hopes to teach the final three weeks of school. For the benefit of friends, her Des Moines address is 1900 46th street. It was nice to hear from her.

When Julie Zook got married the early part of this month, she made just about a minimum advance in the phone book. With 25 other letters that her husband's name COULD have started with, she didn't even change her initials when she said "I do" to the preacher and became Mrs. David Zacharias. Of course, Zacharias should be pretty well at the front of the Z's, whereas Z-o-o-k leaves only a few monikers such as Zybisko to follow.

Ron Horstman of the Farm Journal's advertising department was in town Friday and dropped a $75 check at the Belmond Creamery for the purpose of buying that amount in dairy products for Don Bunnell. This pleasant development resulted because Bunnell is a good guesser. It all came about because Don attended a National Agricultural Advertising and Marketing seminar at Chicago in late March.

Those registered for the seminar were introduced to a lady Holstein, name of Ida, and were invited to guess (1) her average milk production in pounds over a five-year-period; (2) her average annual butterfat production for the same period; (3) Ida's weight.

More than 300 of the advertising and marketing brotherhood registered guesses — 1st prize of $100 worth of local dairy products being awarded on the milk production guess, 2nd prize of $75 on the butterfat and 3rd of $50 for being closest to Ida's weight. Don hit the butterfat average "on the nose" — 671 pounds. Her milk production averaged 18,000-plus lbs.; and Ida weighed 1,829 lbs. . . . Anything else?

City Clerk Lois Hammond recently received from the Sunday school department of the Church of Christ at Ankeny a check for $9.70 that represented the collection taken on Easter Sunday. The youngsters sent the money to Belmond to help a bit toward replacing playground equipment in the city park that was destroyed by the tornado. How about THAT for a nice gesture?

Game Warden Jack Edwards of Clarion says state conservation officials are more than a little upset over the heavy fish kill that occurred in the Iowa river between here and Hardin county line a couple of weeks or so ago. The many carp and suckers that gave up the ghost were not mourned, but the bullheads and northerns were a different matter.

Heavy suspicion points to pollution of the water by some kind of industrial waste that has not regularly been dumped into the river in the past. Belmond has a couple of possible sources that could be the offenders.

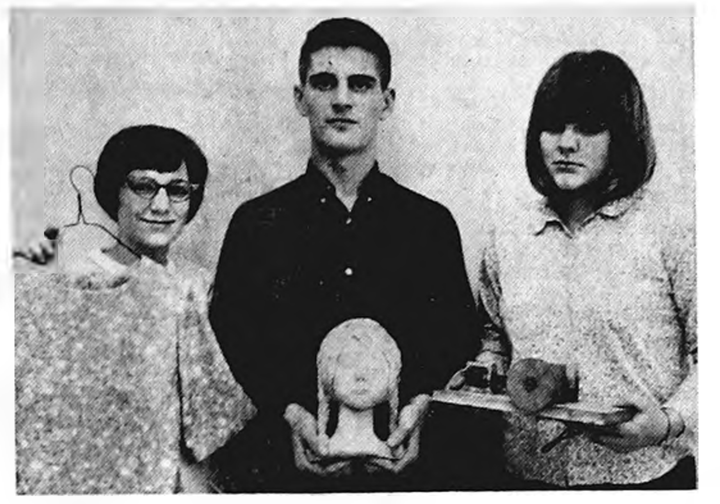
Ray Wright, Central Soya manager, does not believe that his plant is at fault; but if it should prove to be, has promised to make every effort to correct it. Armour officials had not yet been interviewed, but Armour's deals in chemicals that could be harmful to the finny tribe. The dead fish were reported too late to provide evidence by analysis.

Ruth Ramsay Teel of San Mateo, Calif., has sent to the city of Belmond a check for $100 to be applied toward the cost of replacing the trees in the city park that were demolished by the tornado. The gift was a memorial to her mother, Mrs. Wallace Ramsay, whose husband was a Belmond newsperman for many years and for a time was a co-publisher of The Independent. Ramsay school is named in honor of Wallace and his brother Walt.

George Mikesh, who farms just east of Hickory Grove, is on the look-out for a grave robber — and he's pretty aggravated. It entails quite a story. About a half century ago, a Goodell physician by the name of Dr. Merck had a pet bulldog to which he was much attached. When the dog died, the "doc" gave him a burial in a pasture on the river at the west edge of Mikesh's farm. On the grave he erected a tombstone of molded concrete inscribed: "Captain M — Died Sept. 6."

All these years, Captain M has rested in peace; until George discovered last Friday that the grave had been dug open and the tombstone pushed to one side. He reported the matter to the sheriff's office.

Deputies Vern Elston and Bob Shaw investigated. They found no remains, and speculated the grave probably was opened by youthful hunters last fall. The hole was filled with leaves. There was a story, believed untrue, that Captain M was buried in a valuable collar. There was no sign of any collar. If Captain M was boxed for burial, the collar might have survived; but if he was planted au naturel, the officers figure there'd have been nothing left, 50 years after.



IT SHOULD BE EXPLAINED that there was a bit of a switch in posing the three exhibitors above who will be having handiwork displayed at Monday night's joint open house of the BHS home economics, art and industrial arts departments. Janice Waltzing shows a dress, which she herself made; but Tom Swaroff did NOT "sculp" the head of clay which he holds. It is the work of Donna Hauge, who holds a "wonder motor," which was created by Tom. All clear now? The dress, head and motor will be on display for closer inspection at the joint exhibit.

Art Fair slated Monday evening

Belmond High school's art department and departments of home economics and industrial arts will jointly hold an exhibit next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock to demonstrate the work that students in these departments are doing.

Displays will be set up in the student center, in the library and art laboratory, and in the industrial arts building.

A highlight of the industrial arts fair will be a "wonder motor" concocted by Tom Swaroff from a solenoid off of an automatic washer and parts from a pinball machine.

Students in Allen Suby's freshman class will make "horshoe rings" in quantity, polish them, and give them away. Gift pencils will also be distributed.

Areas of work to be represented will include drafting, electronics, woodworking, motor rewind, power mechanics, house wiring, welding and research.

Lynn Thorpe's Art I and Art II classes will exhibit water color paintings, oils, ceramics, sculpture and graphic arts, plus some other media.

Dee Ann Jessen's home economics students will display projects showing the work being done in Home Economics I, II and III. These will cover textiles and clothing; family and personal relationships; food and nutrition; child development; and there will be a unit on housing.

Coffee and cookies made by the senior girls will be served in the library.

Schaal appointed to northern Iowa health committee

D. R. Schaal of Belmond recently was selected as one of 10 representatives from 10 north Iowa counties appointed as a committee to draw up plans for the formation of an area health planning committee and guidelines for its operation.

On the planning committee are one member from each of the counties in the nine-county territory working together for North Iowa Area Development plus Kossuth, whic his not in NIAD.

The organization meeting was held at Mason City and followed a preliminiary meeting held several weeks ago. Only one other area committee on health services is presently functioning in the state, that one being concerned with Des Moines and environs.

Martin Poe, NIAD's extension director, says north Iowans should be interested in area-wide health planning for a number of reasons.

Vocal groups win top state ratings

Belmond High's vocalists and their director, Stanley Norson, returned home from the state music contest for large groups held Saturday at Rockford in high spirits. After a disappointing showing in the soloist and small group contest the weekend before, the "superior" ratings gained by both the boys glee club and mixed chorus were a welcome balm.

Only two other schools matched Belmond's achievement of winning a Division I rating in both of these categories, Garner and Sumner. Lake Mills joined these three with a "superior" on mixed chorus and Tripoli earned a top rating on its boys glee club.

Not so happy were the Belmond band members and Director Maurice Fahrney, when the instrumentalists had to settle for a Division II. Mr. Fahrney had, with certain misgivings, chosen contest selections that were more modern than traditional; and he felt that this decision could have been a factor in the judge's response to the Belmond band's efforts.

COURT ORDERS PAYMENTS BY DIVORCE DEFENDANT

Pending action on divorce proceedings filed against him by Juanita Elphic, Rex Elphic was recently ordered in district court at Clarion by Judge E. J. Flattery to make certain payments out of his regular monthly income.

The defendant was limited to $190 of his monthly earnings for his own use, while $225 must be paid by the month for child support. From such balance as is left, the defendant was ordered to meet his wife's attorney fees and to meet as he can debts owing 12 creditors.

Special program for h. s. juniors here next week

Junior students from high schools throughout Wright county and their parents have been invited to attend "Post-High School Educational Opportunity Night" at Belmond Community High school next Wednesday night. Doors to the student center will open at 6:45 p. m. and the program will conclude at 10:00 o'clock.

Advance response has indicated that close to 550 parents and students will attend, according to Jerald Torgerson, BHS guidance counselor. Fifty-five representatives of colleges, armed services, nursing schools, cosmetology, trade and technical schools, and business schools have said they would be present.

School counselors of the county regard that the evening can be of great value in helping the attending students toward deciding what sort of training or education they should best obtain following graduation from high school.

CHICKEN DINNER SUNDAY

Belmond's Jaycees expect to play host to the customary hundreds of hungry people Sunday when they hold one of their popular chicken dinners at the BHS student center. Serving will start at 11:00 a. m. and continue until all have been served. Carry-out orders may be arranged by phoning 5589 or 2414 from 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. Saturday or 9:00 to 11:00 a. m. Sunday. Price will be $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for children.

GUEST ON ISU CAMPUS

Mrs. Paul Rietz spent "Mothers" weekend with her daughter Jean at Alpha Chi Omega sorority in Ames.

IT WAS SWELLED jowls, not a swelled head, that Kermit Bohning was suffering from when the Independent photographer took the above picture of the latest BHS students to be initiated into the National Honor Society. Kermit was at home with the mumps, so Luanne Paule and Neil Kalkwarf "framed" him in order to get him into the picture.

Forest City Industries, Inc.—

Setting up camper plant in Belmond

Forest City Industries, Inc., last weekend signed a lease for five months' use of a 60x120-foot Butler steel building on Fifth street SE, near the Rock Island tracks, as the temporary location of a branch plant for the manufacture of campers for mounting on pickup trucks.

If, during the period of the lease with Farmers Grain company, the operation proves to be an efficient one and otherwise advantageous to the Forest City firm, serious consideration will be given by the board of directors to permanent establishment of a plant here.

Reuben Grell, production manager for Forest City Industries, explained to The Independent that the Belmond operation will supplement the production of campers at the firm's home plant. Herbert Pals, a local resident who for six years was in the company's employ, will be foreman of the plant here.

He is presently interviewing applicants for jobs at the plant. He may be contacted Wednesday through Friday of this week regarding an interview by phoning his home (444-6541) after 6:00 p. m. Next week he may be seen at the plant, which will be the northeast of the three Butler buildings on the south side of Fifth street SE adjoining the RI tracks.

Mr. Grell said an initial staff of 10 men, plus the foreman, will be needed. It is expected that the staff will be doubled after the close of the school year by the hiring of high school students — age 17 or over — and collegians available during the summer vacation.

Employees who develop needed skills should have a good chance of continuing regular employment with the company, he adds, regardless of the decision as to permanent location of a plant in Belmond.

A start is to be made this week on transferring machinery and supplies from Forest City to the plant site here. It is hoped that installations will be completed by the end of next week and that limited production can be started here by the week following.

Forest City Industries has developed a good market for the pickup-mounted campers and the item is well established as a part of its trailer and camper line.

Directors of the Belmond Industrial Development corporation are keenly hopeful that the plant experiment here will prove so satisfactory that the firm will consider it practical to establish a permanent manufacturing facility here. A building to serve that express purpose would be erected, in that event.

Defendants win verdict of jury

A Wright county district court jury found for the defendants Wednesday of last week in a damage suit against Paul and Frank Studer of Clarion by Gerald Volkman, a farmhand for the Studer brothers. The plaintiff had asked $15,000 damages for medical expenses and permanent injury to his right leg that were outgrowths of a farm accident on Jan. 25, 1965.

Volkman was operating a manure spreader on a Norway township farm on that date when he claimed the tractor's PTO suddenly went into gear while he was clearing some cornstalks. His injuries resulted.

Ralph Christie was foreman of the jury that heard the case. Also on the jury from Belmond were Denise Kalkwarf, Agnes Rikansrud and Allen Korthas. Another member was Gene Ostendorf of Alexander.

The jury was drawn Tuesday morning and heard evidence the rest of that day and all day Wednesday, returning its verdict at 7:00 p. m.

Way cleared for contract letting on Highway 69 widening project

With so many local improvement projects these days running into obstacles, anticipated and otherwise, the Belmond city council and Mayor Bob Misner were gratified to learn Wednesday of last week that the widening project proposed for Highway 69 through Belmond is "in the bag."

That is to say, the Iowa state highway commission has received word that the U. S. Bureau of Roads has given consideration to a transcript of the Feb. 2nd hearing on the project and given its approval to the proposal.

C. S. Wendell of the highway commission's public information department in a phone conversation with The Independent stated that this gives final clearance to the $512,000 project and it has been formally included in the 1967 construction program of the commission.

Appraisal of adjoining property and purchase of the additional 2½ feet of right-of-way needed on each side of the present highway are in progress, so that the width of the new concrete slab can be 49 feet from back-of-curb to back-of-curb and permit four traffic lanes.

The widening will start just south of the Iowa river bridge and extend on to the north to just south of the Great Western tracks, a distance of 1.3 miles, and include a new bridge over the river, railroad crossing signals, erosion control and miscellaneous work.

Commission engineers, said Mr. Wendell, are now proceeding with final design of the project. No indication was given as to when contract for the widening job might be let and when actual construction is apt to begin.

Special programs for centennial

Belmond Congregational church will observe its 100th anniversary as a congregation this Sunday with a special service in the morning and program in the afternoon.

At the 11:00 a. m. hour of worship, the sermon for the occasion will be delivered by Rev. Reuben H. Huenemann, president of United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities.

After 25 years of pastoral experience in Wisconsin, California and Missouri, Dr. Huenemann came to his present position in 1960, when this newest seminary of the United Church of Christ was formed through the consolidation of Mission House Seminary (Evangelical and Reformed) and Yankton School of Theology (Congregational Christian).

He is a member of the theological committee of the United Church of Christ and of the division of higher education of its Board for Homeland Ministries.

The morning prayer on Centennial Sunday will be offered by the Rev. Judson E. Fiebiger of Des Moines, minister to the Iowa Conference of the United Church of Christ. Dr. Fiebiger will be remembered locally for having been present for the dedication of the Congregational parsonage and, more recently, at the installation of Rev. J. Samuel Shelby as pastor at Belmond.

Members of the congregation, assisted by the choir, will recall the past with a dramatic presentation in the church at 2:00 p. m. The pageant will be followed by open house in the church's fellowship rooms, with the Women's Fellowship in charge. The public is invited to attend the program and open house.

Belmond Congregational church has been a United Church of Christ since 1961.

Hayes quits job to take new one

LeRoy Hayes, for 10½ years manager of the Farmers Grain company, has tendered his resignation to the firm's directors in order to accept a position with Continental Grain company at Havana, Ill.

The community to which he and his family will be moving has a population of 4,379 and is located on the Illinois river approximately 70 miles east of Keokuk. LeRoy will work in a terminal grain exchange, buying grain received by truck and shipping grain by barge for export.

He says he, his wife Karen and his four children — Bruce, Jeanine, Bryan and Brent — all regret the necessity of leaving Belmond; but the new position was one of such opportunity that LeRoy felt he could not pass it by.

Lyle Pals has been hired by Farmers Grain to succeed LeRoy as manager of that business. Lyle has been elevator manager for Farmers Grain and Feed company at Alexander the past 4½ years.

Mr. Hayes is to take over his duties with Continental Grain as of May 15. Mr. Pals will assume actual management of Farmers Grain the preceding Thursday, May 11.

Chet Hiddleston plans department store in Belmond

A familiar face will be returning to Belmond's Main street in about two and a half months' time when the Belmond Department store opens in the locations occupied before the tornado by the local liquor store and its adjoining storage room.

Chet Hiddleston, who for several years was manager of the Belmond Anthony's store before accepting an Anthony managership at Atlantic, will be proprietor of the new establishment. He and his wife Jean have expressed keen pleasure at the prospect of making their home here once again.

M. L. "Pete" Followwill and Floyd Broshar, who purchased the property last year, are having Ted Meyer and Sons remodel the building into a double-front store site specifically to meet Mr. Hiddleston's needs. It will have 5,060 square feet of floor space.

All-new fixtures and attractive decoration will give him about the finest department store facilities to be found in a town of anywhere comparable size for many miles around, Chet believes. He will carry a wide range of name brand merchandise and pledges that he will provide "the type of merchandise and service that this community needs and deserves."

Present plans call for the Belmond Department store to be in operation some time in July with a full line of fall merchandise.

Cast to present BHS spring play on two evenings

Spring play of the Belmond Community High school drama department, to be presented on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 9 and 10, at 8:00 p. m., will be "Out of the Frying Pan." This is a comedy in three acts by Francis Swann, which was a Broadway hit in the early 'forties.

It concerns six stage-struck young people, three men and three women, who by force of economic circumstance are sharing a New York apartment. The renter directly below them is a Broadway producer, whom they desperately want to impress with their theatrical talents.

An ardent amateur chef, the producer creates the opportunity they've been looking for went he runs out of flour one evening and comes upstairs to borrow a cup. The young folks cook up an impromptu "murder" to convince him of their acting skills — and that complications ensue can be clearly anticipated.

10th Bronco Relays next Tuesday

—SPORTS—

Tenth annual running of the Bronco Relays is scheduled for Tuesday of next week, with 18 teams competing in three classes. Field events will be conducted in the afternoon starting at 4:00 o'clock and the running events will get underway at 7:00 p. m.

Eagle Grove is the defending Class A champion and will be favored to repeat, with the Eagles' sternest opposition likely to come from Clear Lake. Completing the Class A field are Algona High, Garrigan of Algona, Osage and St. Edmonds of Fort Dodge.

Last spring, Clarion edged Belmond for the Class B title, 77 to 75. The Cowboys are not so strong this year and the Broncos should be the team to beat in this division. Also in the Class B field are Britt, Forest City, Rockford and St. Ansgar.

Sheffield-Chapin, 1966 Class C champs, is expected to lack sufficient balance to head off the challenge of Garner. The other Class C entries are CAL, Boone Valley, Buffalo Center and Kanawha.

Trophies will be awarded to each of the team champions and to the winner of each relay event in all classes. In addition medals will go to each individual event winner and ribbons to the next four finishers and to team members in the first five places in the relays.

The 9th Bronco Relays saw nine records broken and another three tied. Jack Steinberg, meet manager, does not foresee any such wholesale assault upon the record book next Tuesday as most marks have become pretty tough to beat.

How steadily the records have been improved is indicated by the fact that only four now standing were set so long ago as 1961. One of these is in the Class B discus set by Samson of Nevada with a heave of 151-10½. Terry Nelson has been coming within about five feet of that distance but would have to "better his best" to erase Samson's mark.

Jerry Letzring of CAL, who set the Class C 180-yard low hurdle rcord of :22.7 last year, will be back and could improve on that time. Jim Levad of Forest City has cleared 11 feet in the pole vault, whereas the Class B record is 11-6, set back in '61 by Bill Taylor of Sheffield. Dan Cockram of Osage last week at Clear Lake hit 21-5 in the broad jump, only 4¼ inches short of the Class B mark held by Tom Busch of Garner.

The Bronco Relays have developed into one of the top cinder attractions of north central Iowa, and Belmond sports fans will be treated to plenty of thrills if they attend the meet.

Two-mile quartet 3rd at SCI meet

A third place in the Class B two-mile relay was the best that Belmond High's track artists could do at last Saturday's Dickinson Relays at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls.

Gary Meyers brought the baton in first with a 2:11.4 opening 880, but a 2:14 by Don Havens and 2:12 by Mike Klinefelter pulled the Broncos back into third. Dallas Steenblock held this position with a 2:10 final half.

Terry Nelson was one of the six finalists with a 141-11 qualifying throw in the discus; but he was unable to improve any on his last three throws and finished out of the money.

Bob Rise barely missed qualifying with a :10.6 hundred in the preliminaries. Neither the 440 and 880 relay teams were able to survive their initial heats.

Friday, Belmond will meet Garner at Faris Field in a dual meet; and on Saturday, Terry Nelson will compete in the discus as the Broncos' lone contender at the Drake Relays. As elsewhere reported, the annual Bronco Relays will be held here Tuesday.

R. Kinseth gains in county bowling title competition

Roger Kinseth was Belmond's lone survivor through the first two rounds in the championship flight as the annual Wright county men's bowling tournament got underway here last weekend. The tourney will conclude with action this coming Friday and Sunday at Bowl-Mor Lanes.

In gaining the third round of the title flight, Kinseth drubbed Vernie Bierl of Clarion 554-482 and then dumped Jake Koenen of Meservey 588-509. He will next meet Joe Thielen of Eagle Grove, a former champ. Thielen rolled a 673 in his second-round match.

Other championship quarter-final matches pit Jim Chapman against Virgil Umthun, both from Eagle Grove; Eldon Mosher of Clarion against Dale Timmerman of Eagle Grove; and Paul Larson against Cliff Morgan, both Eagle Grove.

Three Belmondites who lost first-round title matches are still in the running as consolation quarter-finalists — Vern Dippel, Fred Loats and Don Busick. Loats, in his 1st-round consolation match, rolled the tourney's top series, a 684 that's high for the season at Bowl-Mor Lanes.

Belmond had no survivors in the 1st flight but filled all four semi-final spots in the 2nd flight as Larry Kinseth, Terry Armour, Larry Schimp and Dr. A. M. Larson each won a pair of matches.

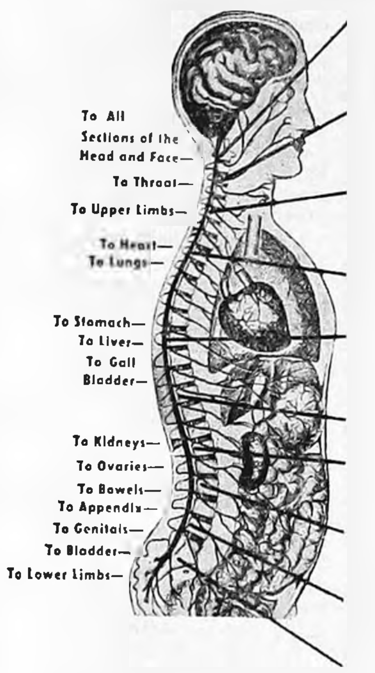
DEVOTED TO RESTORATION AND PRESERVATION OF YOUR HEALTH
Spinal Nerve Pressure Causes Many Diseases

The diseases mentioned on this chart are only a few caused by vertebrae "pinching" nerves as they enter or leave the spinal column, transmitting vital nerve energy from the brain to the organs of the body.



1. Slight "pinching" of nerves at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, insomnia, wry or stiff neck, facial paralysis, dizziness, polio, arthritis, abnormal blood pressure, anemia, colds, hay fever, sinus trouble, nervousness, etc.
2. A slight nerve difficulty in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, nose bleed, disorder of gums, catarrh, etc.
3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein "pinched" nerves will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism and neuritis of the arms and shoulders, etc.
4. A blocked nerve at this point causes so-called heart disease, pneumonia, tuberculosis, asthma, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.
5. Stomach and liver trouble, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by pressure in this part of the spine, so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.
6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccoughs, diabetes, etc.
7. Bright's disease, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.
8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, constipation, etc., Chiropractic adjustments at this point.
9. Why have so-called kidney stones, rectal troubles, female troubles, many lower abdominal pains, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?
10. A slight slippage of both innominate bones, located here, will likewise produce so-called sciatica together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

STUDY THIS CHART CAREFULLY
See how the nerves go through the spinal openings? Nerve pressure at one or more of these points may be the EXACT CAUSE OF YOUR PARTICULAR CONDITION!

Take time to restudy this famous "Health Chart of Chiropractic," reproduced at the left, and you will see how simple it is to understand what an important part YOUR SPINE can play in the maintenance of your good "natural" health. Misaligned spinal bones can cause disease in ALL PARTS OF THE BODY. Notice how the nerves go to every organ, tissue and cell of your body — arms, legs, abdomen, head, etc. So provide your body with the fullest protection against disease with AT LEAST ONE ADJUSTMENT EACH MONTH. MANY TIMES, EVEN AFTER ALL OTHER METHODS OF HEALING HAVE FAILED, CHIROPRACTIC SUCCEEDS.

YOUR SPINE IS YOUR LIFE-LINE . . . KEEP IT IN LINE
. . . WITH REGULAR CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS

Letzring wins 3 events in North Star carnival

Coach Darrel Terpstra's CAL Community athletes stayed well in the running for the North Star conference track and field championship at Belmond last Monday until he found his talent all used up when the final relays rolled around in the evening. LuVerne, Kanawha and Goldfield came on strong in those, forcing CAL to settle for fourth place with 40 points.

LuVerne beat Kanawha in the final event, the mile relay, to win the title 50 to 47 while Goldfield edged into third with 43. Other team scores were: Boone Valley 31, Rockwell-Swaledale 26, Sheffield-Chapin 22, Meservey-Thornton 12, Klemme 11, Ventura 8 and Corwith-Wesley 7.

Jerry Letzring pulled down three first in CAL's losing cause, taking the shot put with a toss of 45-11½, the high hurdles in :16.1 and the low hurdles in :21.8. Leon Root got CAL's only other first with a 5-6 leap in the high jump.

Don Olson, coming from far back in the pack, barely missed overtaking A. J. Blau of Klemme in the wind-up of the two-mile relay but couldn't quite get the job done. The victors' time was 8:54.5. Don later finished second to Jeff Lane of Boone Valley in the 880 as the latter sprinted ahead at the finish to win in 2:08.3.

Bob Koenen of CAL was second, behind Norm Baker of Kanawha, in the 440 — the winning time being :54.5.

Goldfield's speedy Bill Huisman took the 100 in :10.4, the 220 in :23.6 and anchored his 440 relay team to victory in :47.2

Other event winners were: broad jump — Neal Mandsager (G), 19-9½: discus — Ken Riemers (R-S), 131-2: pole vault — Steve Rietema (Ka), 9-6; mile — Leland Freie (S-C), 5:01.4.

Relays: 880 — LuVerne, 1:37.5; medley — Boone Valley, 3:58.3; mile — LuVerne, 3:40.9.

EARLY PLANTING AND WEED CONTROL IMPORTANT FOR HIGHER SOYBEAN YIELDS

Research studies have shown that soybeans, like corn, should be planted early. They will germinate when the soil temperature is 50° to 52°. Adapted full-season soybean varieties planted after May 23 yield two bushels less per acre for each week of delay, as indicated by the following figures.

PLANTING DATE	BU/ACRE YIELD (3 year ave.)
May 1	32.5
May 12	31.7
May 23	32.3
June 1	26.4
June 14	22.3

Soybeans cannot compete with weeds or grasses! Six giant foxtail plants per foot of row have decreased soy bean yields an average of 10%, according to a lengthy research study. Giant foxtails begin germinating in mid-April. Since soybeans planted during early May will germinate and grow slower than giant foxtails, it is especially important that this weed be destroyed by soybean planting time.

If high soybean yields are to be produced, weeds must be closely controlled, starting at seeding and continuing throughout th growing season.

The floor-length, A-line skirt was styled with a back drape that flowed from the bodice. Her star-shaped headpiece of seed pearls and crystal beads held her bouffant veil of pure silk illusion. Ronald Zacharias of Sioux City served his brother as best man. The ushers were Eugene Zacharias of Hampton, brother of the groom, and Les Steenblock. The men wore dark suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a green and white knit, sheath suit and the groom's mother wore a two-piece, light brown dress.

Nancy Zook, sister of the bride, presided at the guest book. Gift pages were Becky Erickson, cousin of the bride, and Cathy Steenblock. Mrs. Bernard Miller was in charge of opening and arranging the gifts.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Olde Belmond Inn with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker, cousins of the bride, as host and hostess The cake, made and decorated by Mary Moe, was cut by Mrs. Guy Baker, aunt of the bride. Karen Soma dipped punch and Mrs. Paul Steenblock poured coffee. Waitresses were Sandy Zeiger and Mary Jo Dana.

Humboldt Class B crown to Broncos

By managing a 5th place in the final event—the mile relay—while Twin Rivers of Bode was taking second, the Belmond High tracksters Tuesday night won the Humboldt Relays Class B championship by a single point. The Broncos chalked up 76 points to Twin Rivers' 75.

Terry Nelson improved on his own school mark in the discus and erased the Class B record with a toss of 150 ft. 4½ in. He was the big gun in the Bronco victory, winning the high hurdles, taking the high jump and running on a second-place relay team to account personally for 20 points.

Bob Rise won the 100 and Wayne Smith the low hurdles for the other Belmond firsts. The Broncos were unable to win a relay event but took second in the two mile in the fine time of 8:33.8, the 880 and medley in their best times of the season and the shuttle hurdles.

With only a fifth place needed in the 440 relay to clinch the meet, a dropped baton on the first exchange blanked the Broncos in that event and left the championship hanging on the outcome of the mile relay.

More complete details on the Humboldt Relays will appear next week.

Evaluation panel spent three days inspecting BHS

An inspection of local school facilities and evaluation of the local high school on a number of bases was conducted during the last three days of the April 17th school week by a visiting committee representing the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

This visitation follows a program of self-evaluation that has been conducted since the first of the present school year by local faculty members guided by a steering committee and comprising 20 committees assigned to specific areas.

Such things as courses of study, curricular areas, staff and administration, extra-curricular activities, study materials and health services are given a critical look by both the local and visiting committees. Such a re-evaluation is conducted every seven years and is the basis of accreditation by the North Central association.

Chairman of the visiting committee of 14 members was Paul Seydel, principal of Fort Dodge High school. Other members were from the state department of public instruction, college faculties, high school faculties and from among college graduate students studying for advanced degrees.

When their inspection during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday had been completed, these people offered an evaluation that can be compared with that already arrived at by the BHS faculty committees previously. Both written and verbal reports were given to the local school.

ALL-OUT Yielders
Pioneer's New Generation hybrids make the most of today's corn growing advances

Pioneer offers you a New Generation of hybrids—exceptional performers to fit your specific corn growing needs.

These varieties are especially suited to top-level farming where high fertility, weed and insect control, and top-level management open the way to new yield goals.

Supplies of these top performers won't meet the demand. See me soon for hybrids that can help you get all-out yields.

A reminder to all customers of the savings they can make on each extra bag of corn picked up during the planting season. If the customer picks up only part of his order early, or needs extra corn, he can save $1.10 per bag, or more, on each extra unit. So come back to me for those extra units needed and you will have the best hybrid selection for those extra acres.

IMPORTANT Announcement!

It was just 50 years ago when my father Gar Raecker delivered his first Chevrolet on May 1st 1917 and some 11 years ago when he retired that I took over the Raecker Chevrolet Sales and Service in Meservey.

Now, it is with a certain amount of sadness after these many years of selling a fine product and being of service to our many loyal customers, that I announce that I have relinquished the Chevrolet Agency, and sold my service truck to McLaughlin Bros, Inc., of Belmond.

For those of you who do not know about my future plans I will be traveling for Motor, Inc. of New York and selling automobile publications to garages, body shops, service stations, etc. in all but the top 3 tiers of counties in Iowa. Sylvia and I will continue to make our home in Meservey.

SPECIAL NOTE

Duke Suntken, at present employed by me, has leased the garage and will still continue mechanical service work. I will certainly appreciate your continued use of his capable services in this line when they are needed, and know that he will, too. Bob Raecker.

Last but certainly uppermost in my mind is that words cannot adequately express my thanks for the many fine customers that have made it possible for Raeckers to round out fifty years of doing business in Meservey. Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment. — John 7:24

Look who ended up "kicking and screaming!" Of course, it's an exaggeration to say that the controversial president of Iowa State university's student body made his departure from the campus last week with in any such rebellious fashion. Donald R. Smith just climbed into his Volkswagen and silently rolled away.

On the other hand, ISU certainly proved rather impervious to his promise that he would "drag it, kicking and screaming, into the 20th century." It was really no contest, as the bearded, sockless young man tacitly conceded when he thwarted impeachment proceedings that had been initiated against him and threw in the sponge.

Although Smith prompted some Iowa legislators to rise in righteous wrath when he voluntarily admitted to having participated in a "pot party" and indulging in the smoking of marijuana, we suspect that he left more of the solons grinning than growling when he beat his humiliating retreat. There's an old political addage, "If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen."

If young Smith learned nothing more from his experience, he apparently acquired a conviction that his political modus operandi left something to be desired; and that the friction it created was a source of more heat than he could abide.

From the outset of the effort to attain his objectives by shock methods, our reaction to Don Smith was more one of pity than censure. While his scuttling from the fray surprised — even disappointed — us somewhat, we felt we could come rather close to plotting his course to disaster. One thing of which we were confident was that he'd have the job of dragging a pretty large portion of the student body "kicking and screaming" into the era of permissiveness that he thought was about due to dawn on the ISU campus.

And when it turned out that he was a "captain" without a team, Don grabbed his ball and "went home" — as might be expected of one with the degree of immaturity that young Mr. Smith so patently possessed.

In a way, we were sorry to see it end like this. A university like Iowa State benefits by meeting challenges; even such murkily conceived challenges as Don Smith flung at it. And while its reaction to the young rebel was as tentative as that of a hound dog finding himself confronted with a porcupine instead of a coon, it nevertheless accepted him as an adversary worthy of thoughtful concern.

Though Don Smith couldn't stand "the heat," we suspect he may have had more impact on the campus than he realized as he withdrew, licking his wounds. An institution never quite completely recovers from an "experience" like Don Smith.

There will be other Don Smiths. In fact, there may be MANY MORE Don Smiths. They may exercise more reasoned judgment than their predecessor. They will, hopefully, be more ready to compromise in pursing their aims; but they'll suspect that their elders have NOT created the best of all possible worlds, and will want to see some changes made.

We harbor no ill feelings as we bid the young man adieu. . . . Have a nice shave, Don. . . . And DO do something about those socks!

Pay-as-you-go won't meet university building needs

One of the most challenging problems that faces any session of any legislature is that of getting "first things first," as the legislators are bombarded with the perennial perplexities of getting revenues to counterbalance tax needs. Complicating the matter is the host of special interest demands represented by strong lobbying forces.

Into the welter of demands and counter-demands for tax monies the Iowa General Assembly will find action asked within the next week or so "something new" in the category of revenue requests. In fact, the matter has already been broached in the Senate — and acted upon favorably.

Passed this month by the Iowa Senate was a bill that would authorize the board of regents to bond the state for academic and related facilities that will be needed more quickly than pay-as-you-go financing would make them available. A companion bill would permit borrowing for construction of University Hospitals service units. Soon, the House will be asked to decide if the concept is a wise one. . . . If enabling the regents' educational institutions to keep abreast of the rising tide of students can be deemed wise, then this legislation is a "must."

For years, the regents have had authority to borrow for dormitory construction, since the cost of such construction is "self-amortizing" with income from increased student fees thus made collectible. But classrooms, laboratories, faculty offices and like facilities are desperately needed to accommodate rising enrollments that will predictably find 67 per cent more students in the three state universities by 1975 — and which WON'T write themselves off.

A major share of this projected enrollment increase is expected in the next six years; and by 1980, nearly 77,000 will be seeking educations at these institutions instead of the 44,000 on the three campuses today.

Also a part of the picture are new programs that are continually evolving from our changing society and scientific progress, which will demand more space even without additional students, and the inevitable need for replacing present buildings that will be reaching the end of their usefulness.

Careful studies have established that — even with a share of the existing $100 million surplus in the state treasury — current income of the state will not be sufficient to make necessary educational construction possible out of annual state income. Nor can the swelling enrollments in area community colleges and new vocational-technical schools be counted on to alleviate materially the crowding of our universities.

Other state needs are not going to stand still and permit the diversion of expectable income in such large amounts into educational channels that the 10-year, $250 million building program proposed for the three universities can be implemented. And that program cannot wait.

Needless to say, there IS some additional cost (about four per cent annually on the 40-year life of the bonds that would have to be issued) to building now and paying later. But some of this cost would most certainly be compensated for by getting a maximum amount of building done at current construction prices.

In the past 10 year, midwestern building costs have increased about 40 per cent. No one has dared to suggest that their escalation is not going to continue. Consequently, building done in the next decade will unquestionably be done more economically than an equal amount a decade later.

Just as the general public has learned that a wise use of credit can be personally advantageous, sensible use of credit by the board of regents can be of long-range benefit not only to the students they most serve but to the public as well.

It is to be hoped that the House of Representatives will see the wisdom in this and match the Senate's legislation that will make the regents' educational expansion plan possible.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

This week, because of the death and funeral services of former-Governor Leo Elthon, and because of the governor's reception for the members of the legislature, the amount of floor time for bill passage and discussion was limited.

However, committees continued to meet and the agriculture committee came out with a number of bills which have been controversial among different organizations.

Among these bills was one which was passed some time ago by the House and is a bill relating to the bonding of slaughter houses buying hogs, cattle and sheep. I have resisted the passage of this bill in the form in which the Senate received it because it did not, in my opinion, accomplish the objectives intended.

ANOTHER BILL WHICH I BElieve is of great importance to all Iowans is Senate File 622, an act to provide for an excise tax on the sale of certain Iowa agricultural commodities, and to provide an appropriation therefor (commonly known as the agricultural check-off bill).

I favor the purpose of this bill because I feel the farmer has two ways to make his voice heard in the market place. He can attempt to organize and collectively bargain for the sale of his produce or he can take those steps necessary to develop markets of sufficient size to create a demand for his product which will insure a more adequate return on his investment. This bill is directed toward the latter of these alternatives.

SENATE FILE 622 IS ENAbling legislation; that is to say, it merely enables commodity groups desiring to participate in self help market development activities, to do so.

The check-off is not mandatory on any producer. Not only can the producer get his money back from the Department of Agriculture after the check-off has been made, as in past legislation, but under the present bill he is able to prevent the check-off from being made at the time of sale for slaughter, storage or processing by simply requesting it.

The bill incorporates a unique check and balance system. While check-off funds can only be spent by the department of agriculture, they must be expended within the recommendations of the commodity group concerned.

SIMILARLY, THE MAXIMUM Amount of the excise tax is established by statute; and the actual levy is set by the secretary of agriculture. However, this levy cannot be higher than the amount recommended to him by the commodity group concerned.

Under Senate File 622 all monies received from any particular commodity, after the costs of collection have been deducted by the department of agriculture, are reserved exclusively for use on behalf of that commodity.

No check-off could be levied until an approval referendum of the producers involved has been conducted pursuant to the requirements of the bill.

I HOPE THAT BY PRESENTing this at this time to interested people in Hamilton and Wright counties that I can get an expression from many of you on your personal views of the matter.

This bill will displace the requirement for state appropriations for commodity groups and will give to them only those funds which the producers themselves will have deemed necessary and helpful in promoting their own cause.

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by

"100TH" DAY PASSED—

A sign was hung on the wall back of the Senate press gallery last week, April 18, bearing the simple legend "100th." It marked the 100th day of the present session. Each day a new sign will go up, showing the number of days since the legislature convened.

This visual reminder is a traditional policy of the Senate press corps, going back to the days when the biennial session was traditionally 100 days in length. Usually it ran more.

As government gets more complex, the sessions have gradually been getting longer and are apt to get still longer before they get any shorter. Still, the Senate newsmen keep trying. Any date after June first tends to run into their vacation schedules!

LOTS TO "RECONSIDER"—

It seems that an unusual number of "motions to reconsider" have been filed this session. Such a motion may be filled on any bill, provided only that it is filed by someone on the prevailing side.

Very frequently, an ardent sponsor of a bill will change his vote to "no," which is quite proper provided he does so before the vote is announced, so that he will be on the "prevailing" side.

Effect of the motion is to keep the bill alive until the motion has been disposed of. Since the motion may be called up either by a friend or foe, it is at best only a temporary road block.

APPROPRIATIONS COMING UP—

New minor "appropriations bills" are appearing on the calendars. The big ones, involving the major departments of Iowa government, are yet to come and the committees are hard at work.

Chairmen of the Senate and House appropriations groups are Sen. Joseph Coleman of Webster county and Rep. Ray Cunningham of Story.

Equally important are the committees which decide how the tax money is to be raised: Sen. Andrew Frommelt's ways and means committee and Rep. Leroy Petersen's tax revision group. Senator Frommelt, a Democrat, is from Dubuque. Representative Petersen, a Republican, is from Dallas county.

All legislative committees are important, but those dealing directly with appropriations and taxes will be more and more in the spotlight as the legislature heads down the home stretch.

STEERING NOW NEEDED—

Another sign of spring in the legislative circles is the appearance of steering committees. Speaker of the House Maurice Baringer named such a committee a month ago, to control the order in which bills reached the calendar.

Senate floor leader Andrew Frommelt has said he would ask for a steering committee soon and one may have been named by the time this paragraph is printed.

Without such committees, the legislature could probably never complete action on the 1,500 bills which will probably be introduced.

An enterprising House committee clerk reported this week that the combined bill books for both Houses now weigh 24 pounds.

VETOS GUN BILL—

Gov. Harold Hughes has vetoed his first bill in the 62nd General Assembly, one pertaining to hunting. Although the veto came as a surprise, it probably shouldn't have been, for Hughes has quite a reputation as a sportsman. The bill vetoed would have restricted the weapons and ammunition that hunters in Iowa could carry during the deer season.

It woul dhave prohibited anyone not possessing a valid deer hunting license from carrying in the field during deer season a shotgun and shot larger than size No. 2, or solid shot used for hunting deer.

"While I am in favor of effective measures to curtail the illegal shooting of our deer population, I do not feel that this bill would accomplish its intended purpose without undesirable side effects that would outweigh its merits," Hughes said in his veto message.

PURCELL ELECTED—

The Iowa Press association has a new president. He is Dwight V. Purcell, publisher of the Hampton Chronicle and Times. Purcell, who was elected at the association's annual convention in Des Moines, succeeds William L. Lindsey of the Leon Journal-Reporter.

At its 52nd annual convention, the press association also honored three publishers for outstanding work. Master Editor-Publisher awards were presented to Neil L. Maurer of the Laurens Sun, Hollis J. Nordyke of the Ames Daily Tribune and Lewis C. Kimer of the Indianola Record-Herald and Tribune.

Congregational church history—

Ladies Societies paid $105 for church lot

SECOND INSTALLMENT

By Rev. J. Samuel Shelby

A little known entry for September 29, 1871 reads, "Voted to release Rev. J. D. Sands from his engagement with the church"; but no reason is given. The next entry shows that "Rev. J. D. Sands commenced to preach to the church again August 1, 1872."

For fifteen years, the congregation worshipped in Pierce's Hall. As early as 1879, the fellowship discussed building a meeting house, deciding with foresight in favor of the east side of the river; in March, 1880 they purchased "Lots 7 & 8, Block 5" for $105 cash "paid by the Ladies Societies," and elected S. N. Hinman, E. A. Howland (now a Belmond resident) and T. B. Kaufman trustees.

On November 13, 1880, "the Religious Society of Belmond in connection with The Congregational Church" — composed of members and non-members of the church — voted to disband, but because most of the society had joined it expecting it to be succeeded by a union church, anyone had the privilege of withdrawing his proportion of the $5.40 in the treasury. That same date, Articles of Incorporation for "Belmond Congregational Church of Wright County, Iowa" were adopted. But repeatedly, agonizingly, "adverse circumstances," probably financial, postponed the building.

Work began in the spring of 1882, suspended in July until the American Congregational Union came through with $100 more than the original $400 granted in June, then resumed. An ecclesiastical council assisted in dedicating the building December 31, 1882, and installed "Father" Sands as "settled pastor." Next year the bell tower was completed, but no bell hung there for another two years. The cost of the building was about $3,000. First choice of the rent-free pews went to the pastor, second to the trustees; each family sat in the same pew every Sunday.

But Father Sands occupied the pulpit — year in and year out. He and his wife celebrated their 50th year of married life in the church August 12, 1897, surrounded by friends. Lamed by rheumatism until he no longer could stand, he preached sitting in a chair. It was hard for him to retire, but "pressure from the outside," probably from the State Association's Superintendent, and — still more probably — the death of his wife December 31, 1902, led him to resign early in January, 1903. He lived to lay the cornerstone of the Sands Memorial Church. He died March 7, 1909, and was buried in Belmond Cemetery.

So colorful a character is hard for other ministers to follow; several seemed to suffer by comparison. Rev. A. L. Dunton was called in March, 1903, at a salary of $700 — with residence and moving expenses — more than the church had ever paid before. But though he proposed improving the church and buying a parsonage, he resigned the following February without achieving that aim. Of the other pastors, fifteen had tenures of only two years or less.

During the administration of W. U. Parks, a more commodious house of worship was built in 1905 by remodeling and enlarging the former one at a cost of $8,000, $1,000 having been granted by the Congregational Church Building Society. Four-inch cement block veneer covered the wooden frame, and large pictured windows, largely financed by contributions from outside the parish, were reputedly the most beautiful in the state. Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Hinman, and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Richardson were the finance committee; J. H. Reese, T. B. Kaufman, George M. Slight, G. H. Richardson and E. E. Boughton were the building committee. Exclusive of the Congregational Building Society's interest-free loan of $1,250, the building was completed free of debt. This was Sands Memorial Church.

In May, 1909 the Trustees were authorized to buy the J. E. Wallace house for $1,350 and arrange a loan of $500 from the Congregational Church Building Society. This was the first parsonage the church had owned. It was wired for electricity in 1915, a luxury which had already come to the church, replacing gaslight, in 1913. In the early phase of the church's life, there were frequent votes that the pastor or a deacon "prepare a paper and solicit subscriptions" for various enterprises or to pay debts. In 1887, the envelope system was adopted for the pastor's support. Duplex envelopes were first used in 1909. The every-member canvass was adopted in 1918. Not infrequently, the treasury was depleted or the salary unpaid, but somehow the need was met. Once an offering was taken on the street, and at the dedication of the Memorial Church, $1,700 was received.

The Belmond Church has always been aware of its denominational ties. Delegates attended state and district association and, with remarkable regularity, council installations of pastors. An 1890 entry notes the schedule for special collections: October for Foreign Missions, April for The American Missionary Association, July for Ministerial Relief, and quarterly offerings for home missions. Association and "national" taxes were remembered. The congregation usually responded to requests for aid from churches in and beyond the state which were stricken by earthquake, wind or fire.

Before the word "ecumenical" was known, Congregationalists joined with Methodists and others in summer evening services and "protracted efforts" at evangelism, often making the initial move. As for social action, in 1889 it was "voted that the petition for the Sunday Rest Bill be signed as a church." Both church and Sunday School sent money to aid a crusade for prohibition in Nebraska in 1890. However, in 1895, a motion to "open the building to all temperance meetings" was defeated.

A concern that all things be done decently and in order prompted periodic expressions on faith and practice. The Articles of Faith drawn by the charter members are lost to us forever, but a statement on church polity, confession of faith and covenant were adopted September 8, 1871, and printed in quantity in 1878. Again, in 1906, the Annual Meeting adopted and printed a similar statement, adding a rudimentary ritual for baptism and reception of members, and a short constitution under the title of "Manual of the Belmond Congregational Church." The ink was hardly dry before amendments were being made, for Congregationalism in the Midwest has consistently approached church life in an empirical manner.

Broncs sweep two events; outscore Indians in cinder clash, 76-52

—SPORTS—

Belmond High chalked up a 76-52 dual meet win over Forest City here Friday afternoon when the track and field affair had to be transferred to Faris Field because the Indians' track was too wet for use.

Seven individual first were won by the Broncos to five for the visitors, but Forest City claimed three of the five relay events and tied for another. Belmond's team victory came on the strength of greater squad depth.

One of the meet's major surprises was a first place by Wayne Smith in the 220-yard dash, in which he nipped favored Ron Tannahill of the Indians in a head-on battle. Bob Rise, in an earlier heat, placed third.

Belmond swept two events, the 440 and broad jump, and would have had all three places in the 180-yard low hurdles except for Ken Busick hitting his final hurdle.

Dallas Steenblock, Gary Meyers and Kevin Gallagher placed 1-2-3 in the 440, while Tim Roberts, Bob Vander Schaaf and Stan Korthas did likewise in the broad jump.

Closest races of the afternoon were in the mile run, in which Bobst of Forest City edged Randy Turner by inches at the tape and the 440 relay, which the judges called a dead heat as Rise and Tannahill finished nose-and-nose.

Terry Nelson won the high hurdles and discus for the Broncs, was second in the high jump and led off the 880 relay with a good 220. Smith was a double winner, taking the low hurdles as well as the 220.

Summary:

Mile run — Bobst (FC), Turner (B), Heimdahl (FC); 5:14.

Two-mile relay — Forest City; 9:13.6.

Broncos wind up second in CL Relays, Class A

Coach Dave Long's Lions on Tuesday night of last week for the second time won the Class A division of their own Clear Lake Relays, as Belmond once again placed second. In the meet's inaugural last year, Clear Lake had won by only a point. This time the finish was: Clear Lake 77, Belmond 66, Osage 64, Forest City and Hampton each 58.

North Iowa conference schools dominated the Class B division, Garner and Lake Mills tying for the title at 81 apiece and Buffalo Center next with 45. Northwood tied with Greene at 29 and Sheffield-Chapin was last with 21.

After leading at the conclusion of the afternoon's field events, Belmond remained in front through more than half of the running program and with five events left had 49 points to Clear Lake's 48; but the pickings were slim for the Broncs the rest of the way.

Belmond's only relay victory was in the shuttle hurdle race, in which Ken Busick, Mike Klinefelter, Terry Nelson and Wayne Smith did the timber topping.

Nelson set a new mark in the discus with a toss of 144 ft. 10¾ in. and placed second to Dan Bechtum of Osage in the high hurdles. Belmond's only other individual first was posted by Tim Roberts in the high jump, which he won with a leap of 5-7½.

Roberts also chalked up a pretty fair distance of 19-10 in the long jump, but it was good for no better than third. Doug Thompsen cleared 10-6 in the pole vault for another third. Doug Mennenga's shot put toss of 42-5 earned only one point for a fifth place.

Bob Rise finished behind Ron Tannahill of Forest City in the 100 and the Bronco two-mile relay team also nabbed a second place back of Clear Lake with the improved time of 8:41 as Dallas Steenblock turned in a 2:08 anchor effort on his 880. Gary Meyers, Don Goeman and Mike Klinefelter were the other Bronco runners.

Smith finished third in the 180-yard low hurdles and he joined with Lance Campbell, Roberts and Rise to give Belmond a third in the 440 relay.

The Broncos were able to do no better than fourth in the 880, mile and medley relays.

Mrs. D. Markham re-elected head, tb-health group

Mrs. Donald Markham of Belmond was re-elected president of the Wright County Tuberculosis and Health association at the recent annual meeting of that organization held at Goldfield.

Last year, she replaced Mrs. Clarence Whitten of Rowan, who had headed the association for a period of years. This year, Mrs. Whitten returned to the board as Christmas Seals chairman.

Ethel Brunes, who had served for some years as treasurer, was succeeded by another Belmondite, Mrs. Donald Friesleben; and Veronica Barry of Belmond, secretary for a number of years past, was replaced by Mrs. Clarence Hokinson of Woolstock.

The 54 association members and guests present heard Mrs. Ethel Folkedahl of Goldfield tell of her personal experience as a tuberculosis patient at the state sanitarium at Oakdale.

Marian Law, field service consultant for the Iowa association from Waterloo, attended the annual county meeting.

Cancer Bowl Down slated next week

Annual Cancer Bowl Down sponsored by the bowling proprietors of Wright county will be held next week to determine eight teams that will vie on Sunday, May 7, for the county men's and women's team titles.

All league teams at Belmond's Bowl-Mor Lane, the Hi-Hatt Lanes at Clarion, Eagle Bowl at Eagle Grove and the Dows alleys will be eligible to participate by paying an entry fee of 50 cent per person. The entire proceeds from these fees will go into the Wright county Cancer Crusade fund.

Cancer volunteers will be on hand at the various alleys to receive the entry money and distribute cancer literature. Two men's teams and two women's teams from each bowling establishment will win the right to compete in the finals.

As a general rule, between 150 and 160 teams have taken advantage of the opportunity to take a try at winning the county team title and the Cancer Crusade has benefited by amounts ranging from $385 last year to as high as $425.

The bowling proprietors provide individual trophies for presentation to each member of the two championship teams. Last year the hardware went to Vilmain Market of Eagle Grove, men's champions, and Courson Agency of Belmond, winner in the women's division.

The Belmond Independent

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 43 NO. 32 — OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER — WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1967 — OFFICIAL CITY PAPER — 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

It was a "return to duty" Monday when Sheriff Bob Blecker and three peace officer associates from Wright county went up to the Manly-Northwood area to lend a hand with traffic control in "tornado country." He was accompanied by Police Chief Doug Dean and Conservation Officer Jack Edwards from Clarion and John Rowen of the Eagle Grove police force to help direct cars.

We know only too well how the "sight-seer" business goes and can sympathize with our neighbors to the north — in this and the interminable other problems they've had foisted upon them.

And our good friends at Albert Lea, too. Quite a number from there were down to lend us a hand in our own time of extremity, last October. It's our own candid opinion that the weatherman's gone plumb nuts on this tornado deal. Too much is too much! Pretty soon he's going to have the whole population on the north end of the map climbing the walls every time the wind picks up.

From Wilma Trumbell at Ellensburg, Wash., comes a check for a Jaycee tornado album, which we'll dispatch to her as soon as a new supply is available. She writes: "We are eagerly looking forward to a more beautiful and up-to-date city rising from the experiences of the now past. I expect to see for myself and hear plans for the future when I return for the 50th anniversary of the (BHS) graduating class of 1917 on May 30." . . . Like we've said — our friends are watching to see how we come out in REALLY rebuilding Belmond.

Athletic Director Jack Steinberg arranged for Jimmy Boelman, BHS football, wrestling and track manager, to get a pass that would permit him to get into the Drake fieldhouse last Friday at the Drake Relays in Des Moines. Jim thinks he might like to become a professional trainer and wanted to watch some of the "experts" at work on visiting athletes. He not only enjoyed that privilege, but was given an opportunity to administer a few rub-downs, himself. Jim's impression — those college athletes were a lot more muscular than the Broncos he's accustomed to rubbing down.

Yes, sir! The ol' Independent really travel to the far corners of the earth. Consider the subscription renewal of Karl P. Smith, which will continue to take his weekly copy to Honolulu, Hawaii (201 Fifth street — Zip 96818). He says, "We have enjoyed the paper for nearly 25 years and especially the Thirty Years Ago column. We have many fond memories of the Belmond people and the community." Once Coast to Coast manager here, Karl's been a Navy careerman since the early days of World War II.

Shirley Ersland, who in years past lived for periods of time here, at Lake Cornelia, Clarion and Kanawha, recently stopped in town for a brief visit with friends en route to her home at Miller. She lately resigned as executive housekeeper for the Brown Hotel at Des Moines to accept a similar position with the Sheraton Warrior Motor Inn at Sioux City (where she lives in Apt. 819).

Her sons Omar and Eugene, both Clarion High graduates of 1951, have been doing well and Shirley understandably takes pride in their accomplishments. Both graduated from Luther college, Decorah, in 1955.

Each of her sons has acquired a Master's degree and is now working on a Ph. D. Both are married, Omar having two daughters and Eugene a year-old daughter and two sons. Omar is wrestling coach at Annandale (Minn.) High and Eugene guidance counselor at Menominee (Mich.) High school. We recall Omar as an outstanding wrestler. He's clearly putting his athletic ability to good professional use.

Tom Heard, son of Barber Claude Heard and Mrs. Heard, has been playing an important role in the success the Wartburg college baseball team has been enjoying this spring. The Knights (of Waverly) beat Dubuque university in a pair of games last Saturday to bring their won-lost mark to 11-2 — their only defeats having been 7-6 and 6-2 at the hands of Minnesota. They are 6-0 as leaders of the Iowa conference. Saturday, they trimmed Dubuque university in a pair, 1-0 and 2-1. Tom won the second game for his team by stealing home with the deciding run!

BHS ALUMNI ASSOCIATION SETS DATE FOR REUNION

Plans have now been made for holding of the biennial reunion of the Belmond High School Alumni association on May 30 — Memorial Day — of this year. Louie Mennenga, president of the association, says the gathering will be held from 2:00 to 5:00 p. m. at the BHS student center and urges all alumni to mark the date on their calendars.

Belmond was recipient of a "Friendship Tree" delivered last Friday by a delegation from the Hampton Garden club, in that organization's annual observance of Arbor Day and in recognition of the destruction dealt trees here by last autumn's tornado.

The five-foot concolor fir was planted in the west lawn of the city library, accompanied by appropriate ceremonies. A statement of the club's purposes, the objectives of Arbor Day, and an expression of sympathy for Belmond as victim of the October tornado was read by Mrs. Godfrey Showalter, president of the club.

A response of appreciation was spoken by R. B. Thompson, chairman of the library board of trustees. He and the librarian, Mrs. Richard Woodin, joined in the ceremonial planting of the tree, assisting Mrs. Gust Nelson and Mrs. Esther Wolf, 25-year members of the club.

$900 merit awards to P. O. crew

Checks totalling $900 representing incentive awards to members of the Belmond post office staff were delivered Wednesday of last week to Postmaster Bill Walrod by John F. Dee, regional director for the postal department from St. Louis. He was accompanied to Belmond by Postmaster John McNerny of Des Moines.

The awards in the amount of $100 each went to nine postal employees for efforts above and beyond the call of duty after destruction of the post office in the tornado last October.

Mr. Dee expressed deep regret that the department was unable to include among the recipients Maynard Holmgaard, who was critically injured in the disaster and unable to join with his cohorts in re-establishing post office service here.

Maynard's associates rectified this unavoidable omission by sharing their awards with him so that he — like each of them — ended up $90 to the good as a result of the post office department's distribution of award money. In an informal ceremony at the post office on Thursday, Postmaster Walrod read the citation that accompanied the money and handed out the cash rewards.

Mr. Dee praised the entire staff, noting that they had "Exemplified dedication to the Postal Service by persevering to protect, reclaim and salvage mail and all other postal properties, while also proceeding to re-establish postal functions following a devastating tornado."

He noted that the postmaster, his assistant, Gordon Kessler, and Regular Clerk Carroll Bamford had all been on duty in the building when the post office was struck and that "notwithstanding injuries, bruises, scratches and shock sustained by the falling debris, salvage operations were started when the trio dug themselves out of the ruins."

Mr. Dee also recalled how a searching party had been organized to discover the whereabouts of Maynard Holmgaard and that he was not found from the time of the storm until a little more than five hours later, "suffering from severe head injuries, broken arm, and loss of a substantial amount of blood."

Within 48 hours, the citation continued, the Belmond postal personnel by Sunday afternoon were working incoming mail in the basement of the IOOF building. Outgoing mail service was resumed on Monday.

Rural patrons received normal services on Monday and patrons usually receiving city delivery service and box patrons called at the temporary office for their mail on Monday. City delivery was resumed — "for patrons that still had an address," Mr Dee commented — on Oct. 22, eight days after the tornado.

"While many postal personnel were involved in the transition from complete destruction to operational status," the regional director said, "by his own untiring drive and able leadership, the postmaster inspired the entire staff to accomplish this extraordinary feat."

Besides the three men in the post office when it was destroyed, those cited and rewarded were Clair Finn, Jack Lobdell, George Jenison, Wallace Cramer, Louis Mennenga and Willis Anderson.

EXCITEMENT LIKE THIS prevails a good share of the time in the BHS school play, "Out of the Frying Pan," which will be presented under Lynn Sorum's direction next Tuesday and Wednesday at Luick Memorial Auditorium. Curtain time's 8:00 p. m. In the action above, Glen Gabrielson appears about to throttle Ed Dana. Portraying a would-be actor, Glen actually was just demonstrating his dramatic abilities for the benefit of a neighbor-play producer, though Ed (as the producer) thinks it's "for real". "Lots of laughs," Mr. Sorum promises.

Five new teachers hired—

Belmond faculty positions all now filled

Belmond Community School district's board of education has lately signed four new teachers to contracts for the 1967-68 school year.

Returning to a faculty position that she held for six years ending in 1954-55 is Mrs. George (Carol) Richards of Alexander. She will be homemaking instructor. For the past 3½ years, Mrs. Richards has been teacher of homemaking at Meservey-Thornton Community High school.

She replaces Dee Ann Jessen, who resigned and has accepted a position at Ballard.

Hired to replace Fern Robinson as instructor in high school English is Danny Dean Cain of Hawarden. He will graduate this spring from the University of South Dakota at Vermillion. He is married but has no children.

As a youth he attained Eagle rank in scouting. In high school he participated in athletics, speech and dramatics and continued his interest in speech and dramatics in college.

Donald Aanrud, whose home is Amherst Junction, Wis., will take the place of John Patterson as high school teacher of biology and general science. John resigned and has accepted a teaching post at Beaver Dam, Wis.

A graduate of Rosholt (Wis.) High school, Mr. Aanrud will graduate this spring from St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn. He is single.

Phillip Johnson, who is married and has one child, is taking the place as junior high mathematics teacher left vacant by the school board's decision to advance Donald Jones to the high school faculty. Don is replacing Glen Losen, who has signed a contract to teach math at Mason City High school.

Mr. Johnson was raised on a farm near Moorhead and attended high school at Soldier. He played varsity basketball and baseball in high school at minored in physical education at Augustana college, Sioux Falls, S. D., where he will graduate this spring as a math major. He will assist with the coaching of junior high sports.

Douglas Heath, Cedar Rapids, was hired as junior high general science teacher. He will succeed Don Cleveland, who is to replace Jerald Torgerson as guidance counselor.

Mr. Heath was a football player and wrestler at Washington High school and continued in wrestling at Upper Iowa university, Fayette, where he graduated in 1964. The past three years he has taught at a Cedar Rapids junior high school. He is married and has three children.

It was Mr. Heath's wish to get into a teaching position that would permit him to do some coaching. He will be in charge of junior high wrestling and assist with other athletics at that level.

Supt. Don Faris says that the hiring of these teachers should end the problem of vacancies for the coming school year. Contracts have been signed for all other positions, and the school board will agree to no releases unless a wholly satisfactory replacement for a resigning teacher can be obtained.

This was the first time a local Beta Sigma Phi member has received the "Girl of the Year" award. Mrs. Shirer was presented with the sorority's Achievement Star, denoting the honor bestowed upon her.

The award was in recognition of unusually extensive activities and responsibilities that were an outgrowth of the tornado.

Other officers installed in addition to Mrs. Hinman were: Genevieve Monson, vice president; Mrs. Harold Nelson, recording secretary; Ethel Brunes, treasurer; Mrs. Gail Thayer, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Hinman presented Mrs. Shirer with the past president's gavel guard.

New grain buyer takes up duties

Upon the departure of Keith Wiggins for Fort Wayne, Ind., to take up his new position with Central Soya on Wednesday of last week, James H. Wiede took over the responsibilities of grain buyer for the local C-S plant.

Mr. Wiebe comes from Golden Valley, a Twin Cities suburb, and has been employed as grain buyer for Central Soya's Minneapolis office. He started training here to relieve Mr. Wiggins two weeks ago.

The new C-S staff member is married and he and his wife Gay have a 4½-year-old son, Tom. Mr. Wiebe plans to move his family to Belmond on June 1.

Another change in the Central Soya ranks recently found Harold Shobe promoted to the position of assistant superintendent of the refining and flour department. He will be an aide to Superintendent Hal Schmidt.

Harold had been a foreman in the department since June 1, 1964. He was a General Mills employee here for a good many years before Central Soya leased the plant three years ago.

"Fun day" slated by Trail Blazers

Belmond Community Trail Blazers, local saddle club, will hold its first "fun day" of the season this coming Sunday at the Central Soya clubhouse grounds. Starting time will be approximately 1:30 p. m.

No formal competition has been set for either children or adults. There will, though, be the usual barrel racing, pole bending, ground pick-up and other games for adults and about 10 different games for the youngsters.

The public is cordially invited to attend the fun day. There will be no admission charge.

Thielen retains county pin title

Joe Thielen, proprietor of the Eagle Bowl at Eagle Grove, Sunday at Bowl-Mor Lanes successfully defended the Wright county men's bowling championship he won a year ago. He clinched the title, without at least the necessity of a three-frame roll-off because his opponent didn't pay close attention to the score sheet.

He had trailed fellow-townsman Dale Timmerman by about 20 pins going into the final game. In the last frame, Joe got a spare and then a strike. Dale got a 4-10 split in the 10th, tried to convert it and missed the No. 4 pin. That left the final count 554 for himself and 555 for Thielen.

Berns celebrating station's "20th"

Gerald Berns is celebrating 20 years in business — plus the formal opening of his brand new station — with special doin's this Friday and Saturday at Berns Conoco Service.

He's offering a real "hot dog" of a special in the form of a free package of wieners with each purchase of eight or more gallons of gasoline. There will also be registration for a variety of useful door prizes and special treats for the children.

The coffee pot will be on and free coffee and doughnuts will be served to visitors both days. Gerald feels most appreciative of the loyal patronage that has made his business a successful one for two decades.

He was less appreciative of the arragements last October that made building of the new station necessary — but is proud of the results.

15-DAY JAIL TERM GIVEN TO CONSTRUCTION WORKER

Danny Lee Halama, 24, local construction worker, is serving a 15-day county jail sentence as a result of conviction on an assault and battery charge in the court of Justice the Peace John Van Gerpen.

After receiving a plea of guilty, Mr. Van Gerpen offered the alternatives of a $50 fine or 15 days in jail. Halama failed to come up with the fine money.

Tornado albums out on Saturday

That second printing of 4,000 copies of the Jaycees' tornado album is expected to be off the press this Saturday. There is good prospect that it will be a sell-out in a relatively short time — but not in 24 hours, as was the case with the 2,500 printing on sale April 6.

Again, the photo albums will be on sale at Jobco Printing, The Independent, P & G Market, We Three Market, Kessler's Pharmacy, Redder's Rexall Drug and the First State bank. Other businesses may obtain supplies for sale by contacting Dick Bloemke at Kessler's.

A & W DRIVE-IN OPEN AGAIN

Curt and Florence Jante, first owners of the A & W Drive-in here, who rebought the premises from Frank Black after the drive-in was demolished by the tornado, announce that the popular eating place is now back in business. It had to be entirely rebuilt, except for the cellar and cement driveway. The A & W welcomes customers from 11:00 a. m. to 11:00 p.

Bill Sundell, extension associate in charge of 4-H and youth programs in Wright county, says that any 4-H member with an animal project must have his 4-H livestock indentification report made out and in to the county extension office by May 15.

Sundell states that members must have these reports in or they will not be eligible to exhibit any animal projects at any fair.

DAVIS TO MANAGE POOL

Bob Davis, former vocal music instructor at BHS but now filling a similar position at Boone, was hired Monday night by the city council to be Luick Memorial Swimming Pool manager during the coming season.

Belmond, Garner and EG win Bronco Relays titles

Eagle Grove, Belmond and Garner won their respective class championships in the 10th running of the Bronco Relays here Tuesday night. Coldness of the evening put somewhat of a crimp in record-breaking, but nine meet marks fell, nevertheless — four of them during the afternoon field events.

Best contest for a place in Class A was between Clear Lake and Osage for second — 66-60 — as Eagle Grove piled up 90 points. Garrigan of Algona followed with 34, Algona High with 23 and St. Edmund's of Fort Dodge with 22.

Belmond led Forest City for the Class B title 22-16½ after the field events and fattened the margin a bit to 85-78½ after supper. Rockford posted 57 points, Clarion 39, St. Ansgar 31½ and Britt 17.

Garner won four of the six relays and one individual event in running away with the Class C trophy with 90½ points. Buffalo Center chalked up 66, Kanawha 50, Boone Valley 40½, CAL 37 and Sheffield 23.

Belmond was able to capture only one relay event to Forest City's four — just the two-mile relay — but got firsts in the discus and low hurdles from Terry Nelson and seconds in the other five relays to tuck away the Class B championship. Terry Roberts won the high jump at a record height of 5-8½ and place 2nd in the long jump, while Nelson took 2nd in the high hurdles.

Osage took five individual firsts in Class A, Eagle Grove being second in each case; but the Eagles won four of the six relays, with Clear Lake copping the other two.

A more complete resume of the meet will appear next week.

GOOD NEWS of $900 in incentive awards granted members of the Belmond post office staff by the U. S. postal department was read Thursday by Postmaster Bill Walrod (left) to eight interested associates who shared with him in the cash bonuses — and Maynard Holmgaard, whom the nine "cut in" on the money for an equal share. Shown left to right from the postmaster are: Gordon Kessler, Clair Finn, George Jenison, Jack Lobdell, Maynard Holmgaard, Willis Anderson, Louis Mennenga and Carroll Bamford.

TWO MAJOR FIGURES in the history of Belmond's Congregational church were portrayed by Gordon Hildebrand (left) and Lynn Sorum in a pageant that last Sunday afternoon was a highlight of the church's centennial celebration. Gordon took the part of the major founder of the church, Stephen Nelson Hinman, and Lynn played the role of "Father" John D. Sands, pastor of the church for 34 years. Rev. J. Samuel Shelby wrote the historical sketch, which was enjoyed by a capacity crowd. A special centennial service was held in the morning and open house in the church basement a youth center followed the pageant, as guests from other local churches and former Congregational members from out-of-town joined in the memorable occasion.

Bond purchasing in Wright county up to schedule

Wright county, through the month of March, continued to remain on schedule in meeting its quota for U. S. savings bonds sales for the current year, County Chairman E. F. Bisbey of Clarion reports.

During that month, Wright countians bought bonds in the amount of $57,375 to bring the two-month toal to $206,609. This represented 25 per cent of the county's 1967 quota and matched the percentage achievement of the state of Iowa, as a whole.

Wright's performance in bond purchases compared favorably with those of adjoining counties, though Kossuth was up to 39 per cent with $303,947 bought through March and Franklin had reached 35 per cent of its quota on a figure of $173,234.

Humboldt and Hardin counties trailed Wright slightly with 23 per cent of goal on purchases of $146,206 and $225,914 respectively. Cerro Gordo was at 19 per cent of quota on purchases of $269,690 and Hamilton at 21 per cent with $183,115 in sales.

Webster had reached 18 per cent of quota on $345,752 and Hancock 16 per cent on $115,925.

Kin of veterans can obtain free flag for funeral

The Veterans Administration offers a reminder that it will provide a United States flag for the burial service for eligible veterans. When the death occurs in a VA hospital, the flag is given to the mortician when the remains are picked up. In other instances, the funeral director secures a flag through the local postmaster.

The two involved complete the required application and transmit it to the Veterans Administration. This system makes it possible to use the flag at the time of interment and to present it to the next of kin as a part of the graveside service.

Flags cannot be issued by the VA after burial unless unusual circumstances made it impossible to secure the flag in time for the interment rites. The VA also cannot issue a replacement flag.

Next of kin who did not receive a flag at the time of burial of an eligible veteran but desire one now should contact the Des Moines VA Center and explain the unusual circumstances.

State audit points out—

Dog tag fees not yielding enough

A recommendation that Wright county raise the fee for dog licensing was attached to a report on a recently completed state audit of the county's books for the year that ended Dec. 21, 1965.

It was noted that the domestic animal fund, which receives its revenue from dog tags and uses the money to pay claims of farmers who have had stock or poultry killed by dogs, was in a sorry state at the end of '65.

This situation has grown considerably worse, in the meantime. Claims based on livestock losses during 1966 had to be settled last December at a rather heavy discount because they totalled $5,602 whereas there was only $3,936 in the domestic animal fund.

Two factors make it probable that the deficit will be even greater at the end of this year. For one thing, livestock deaths caused by dogs have been exceptionally numerous thus far this year.

Secondly, the auditor's office is expected to pay to the assessor's office 10 cents for each dog reported to the assessor. No such payment was made during the period 1963-66 and $747.80 is presently owed the auditor's office.

Still another source of woe to the domestic animal fund lies in the fact that in recent years many dog-owners have not been licensing their pets. Last year, for example, ownership of 1,908 dogs was reported to the assessor — but only 1,581 licenses were purchased.

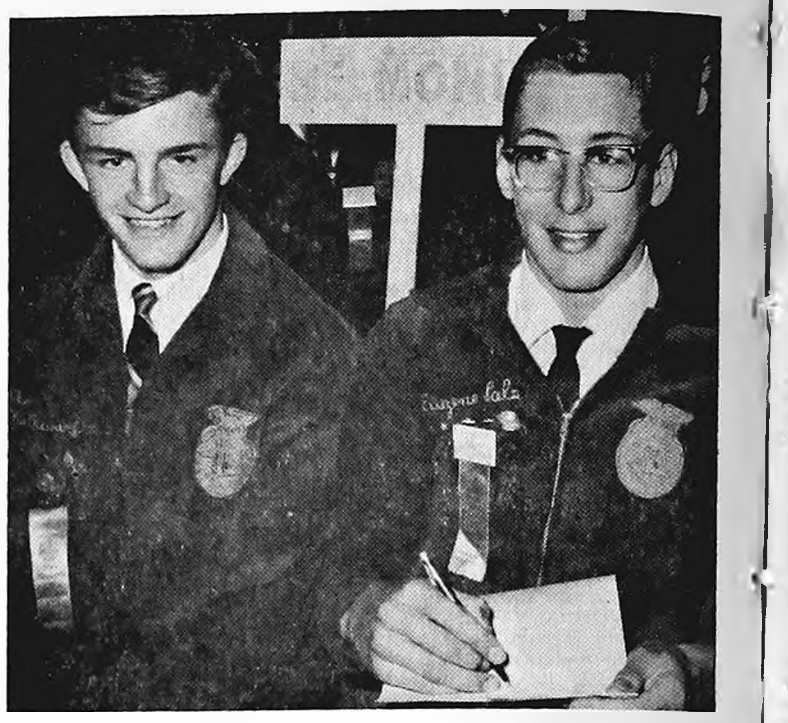
As things are going presently, says Auditor Ethel West, it seems probable that livestock losses for 1967 may have to be subjected to the heaviest discount ever.

Another matter noted by the state examiner was that Wright county did not begin to invest idle funds at interest until December of 1965, whereas this could have been done from the start of the year. It was observed that $200,000 likely could have been safely invested during April, May and June and also during all of the last three months of '65. The $109,366.83 that was invested in December of that year yielded $644.17 in interest.

For the record, it might be noted that Treasurer Harold Sullivan was not instructed by the board of supervisors to put idle funds at interest until sometime during the fall of 1965.

The state audit pointed out that only $23,553 in county taxes were delinquent at the end of 1965, representing only six-tenths of one per cent of the total payable.

A point was made of the fact that out of $3,691,529 collected in taxes during the calendar year, $2,325,026 went to school districts of the county.



DELEGATES representing Friendly Service chapter of the Future Farmers of America at last week's State FFA Leadership conference at Sioux City were Al Klooster (left) and Eugene Pals. Others from BHS attending were: Keith Trager, who played in the FFA band; Jerry Boelman, who sang with the state chorus; and Dan Janssen, who was entitled to go as a spectator by virtue of winning the local Freshman Creed speaking contest. The conference lasted from Thursday through Saturday and included the election of state FFA officers for the coming year.

Blewett-Brandmeyer vows spoken at Nashua's Little Brown Church

Miss Vivian Eileen Blewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harland L. Blewett of Ames, and Stanley Alonzo Brandmeyer, son of Alonzo Brandmeyer of Ankeny and Mrs. Ruth Brandmeyer, were married March 25 at the Little Brown church at Nashua with Rev. Glenn Utterback officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length, crepe gown styled with a Chantilly lace bodice, which had a sabrina neckline and long sleeves. An empire waistline accented the sheath skirt. A detachable, chapel train of lace-bordered crepe fell from the shoulders, topped with self-fabric bows. A Dior bow edged in seed pearls held her bouffant, finger-tip veil of nylon illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Brenda Blewett, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown in lime green, princess style, with a modified empire waist. The bodice was fashioned with a scoop neckline and intermission sleeves and the A-line skirt was accented by a drape back and a bow at the waist. Her blush veil was attached to a leaf plateau.

Randy Brandmeyer, brother of the groom, served as best man. Gary Ruka of Goodell was the usher. Chris Hohl and Valree Blewett were in charge of the gifts and the guest book.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors.

Since their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Brandmeyer have been at home at 1704½ Carroll at Boone.

The bride is a 1964 graduate of CAL Community High school and in June will receive her B. A. degree in business education from State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls. She is a member of Pi Theta Pi sorority.

The groom is a graduate of State College of Iowa, where he was affliated with Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity. At Boone, he is teaching elementary physical education and sixth grade.

EDITORIALS

Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate. — Amos 5:15

Problem: saying what you mean AS you mean it

As any newspaperman finds out before being very long in the business, communication of ideas is not a simple process. At times, it's downright difficult; particularly when you desert the who-what-when-where (and occasionally why) of basic news writing to indulge in the personal comment of editorializing.

On more than one occasion we've been faced with the accusation, "You said . . . " when by our own lights, we said no such thing. But on rereading our words we've discovered to our chagrin that, sure enough, a statement we made could lend itself to more than one interpretation and a person possibly COULD read into it the meaning we were accused of purveying.

No less is the vocal word liable to misinterpretation. Particularly is this true if one has the bad habit of tingeing a spoken remark sometimes with a shade of sarcasm, and blithely assuming that the intended meaning will not be misunderstood. Sarcasm is a risky indulgence, and we've spoken sternly to ourself on this matter more than once.

Much to our chagrin, we discovered ourself last week accused of inviting a certain party to "leave town." Needless to say, we in no degree see ourself as an arbiter of who should set stakes — or keep stakes set — in Belmond. And we certainly would not be led to feel otherwise on account of a simple and passing disagreement with a person whom we've always held in friendly regard.

But in exchanging opinions with a visitor to our office, we stumbled into our occasional fault of expressing a remark facetiously. Its exaggeration was so apparent to us as we spoke it that it didn't even momentarily occur to us that it could be misconstrued. But it was; and we most sincerely regret that we unintentially left room for misunderstanding.

Nerves are quite decidedly "edgy" in Belmond these days. Whether we admit it to ourselves or not, we all seem to have the "tornado shakes," even though we've now put the day of "the happening" six months behinds us. We've had problems imposed on us that are complicated to solve — and disturbing while they await solution.

What we all need to bear constantly in mind is that there are TWO, HONEST sides to every one of the multiple constroversies that we've found ourselves immersed in during recent weeks and months. And we'll humbly admit that your writer is by no means exempt from the need to KEEP this in mind. It's all too easy to get so "hepped up" over one's own point of view that the valid arguments on the other side are wholly disregarded.

But believe us when we say that the LAST thing we'd want would be for ANY of the "combatants" to desert the field of battle by pulling out of town. Shucks, difference of opinion is the spice of life. We all spend our lives being "wrong" a fair share of the time. And sometimes when we're surest that we're RIGHT, passing time proves to us how badly we were mistaken.

So we're darned if we want to lose any friends for the sake of a temporary argument.

Proposed rate boosts would cut postal deficit

Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien's suggestion that a business corporation should be created to operate the postal department on a strictly business-like basis has a certain appeal. It is completely obvious that the postal service has not been "kept up with the times" and that a private business with no more foresight than the department has exercised would long ago have been eliminated from the race.

Mr. O'Brien figures that the end of the current fiscal year will find his department with a deficit that is downright impressive, if you leave out of your thinking the price of killing a Viet Cong or conducting a space exercise. He predicts a $1,219 billion figure will be written in red ink. That would be up from a $942 million deficiency produced by the 1966 fiscal year.

Rate increases now being considered by Congress would rectify the situation somewhat (but not so much as if President Lyndon Johnson didn't insist that the rate boost be accompanied by a civil service pay increase to put the hired hands in the proper mood for another election).

As the postal rate bill is drafted, it would achieve these objectives: 15.2 per cent of the cost of delivering newspaper in the county published would be recovered, instead of the present 13.1 per cent; regular mailings of newspapers and magazines would pay 36.2 per cent of their cost instead of the present 29.3; and 80.2 per cent of the cost of third class or "junk" mail would be met, instead of 61.2.

Increases in first class and air mail postage would help alleviate deficits now produced by present rates, also; but less concern seems to be directed toward these categories, since the element of "service" provides a greater excuse for the deficits they create.

"Service" involved in the dissemination of news and information also enters into the relative leniency exhibited toward users of second class mail — since the mailing cost is inevitably passed on to the newspaper and magazine subscribers, and they don't get the publications unless they regard it worthwhile to PAY for them.

If the matter were left up to the average box-holder, he'd probably just as soon see the "junk" mail pay for its FULL cost — and perhaps a little bit more, to make it less costly to receive (and send) mail of genuine personal interest.

Underlying all fiscal concerns of the government right now, of course, is the ironical fact that the military expense of a month's warfare makes a deficit such as the one plaguing the postal department look like a drop in the bucket.

Maybe what we most need is an independent corporation to conduct war for us (NOT on a cost-plus basis, PLEASE!). We venture to guess that the cost per Viet Cong hide would come down abruptly.

State audits let $141,000 county loss get by

(Kossuth County Advance)

The shortage in the office of the Boone county treasurer is going to cost Kossuth county $1,341. According to law any such loss in county funds must be made up by assessment against the other 98 counties in Iowa.

The assessment is based on the value of taxable property in a county. Thus Polk county, and other city-counties, will pay more — Polk paying some $8,000 as compared to Kossuth's $1,341. (Wright's assessment was among those exceeding $1,000.)

Kossuth is one of 28 counties being assessed more than $1,000. This is because Kossuth is a double-sized county. The smaller counties in area as well as population and taxable value will pay much less.

The idea of the assessment is a kind of "mutual insurance" by the counties. An insurance policy by a regular company would be rather costly compared with this assessment, which is the first in more than 30 years.

One of the puzzles is the fact the shortage was not discovered in the regular audits of the county books. The state auditor's office is required to audit every county in the state in each two-year period. This audit is supposed to be complete.

Somehow the office in Boone county came up $114,000 short over the years and there was never any big question raised. If the person who did the bookkeeping has a scheme that avoids the audit it is high time a procedure to discover such shortages be adopted to halt shortages before they get so large.

The treasurer in Boone had been in office since 1932. No charges have been made against him or any of his staff so far. The treasurer died recently. Just what the facts are have not been revealed. But the fact remains the audit system bears some readjustment in Iowa.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

The needs and problems of Iowa's educational systems have moved into the center of the legislative spotlight.

The Senate turned its attention to the problems of the area vocational technical and community college system, and then followed up by debating a bill to spur educational television in the state.

The Senate deferred final action on the controversial vocational-technical and community college system legislation until May 3. The deferral came following a day-long hearing in which state and local officials who operate the area schools testified before the Senate.

THE HEARING WAS CALLED as a result of criticism of the schools' budget practices, which included spending more than $4 million over their budgets. Many legislators are searching for ways to make sure the merged districts do not overspend future budgets, emphasize the vocational-technical aspects of the school either as much or more than the academic offerings, and reduce, as much as possible, competition with private four-year schools.

The educators pointed out that the schools experienced a rapid growth since they were established two years ago because there was a need for the type of education they offered, and that the system should not be harmed since the need continues.

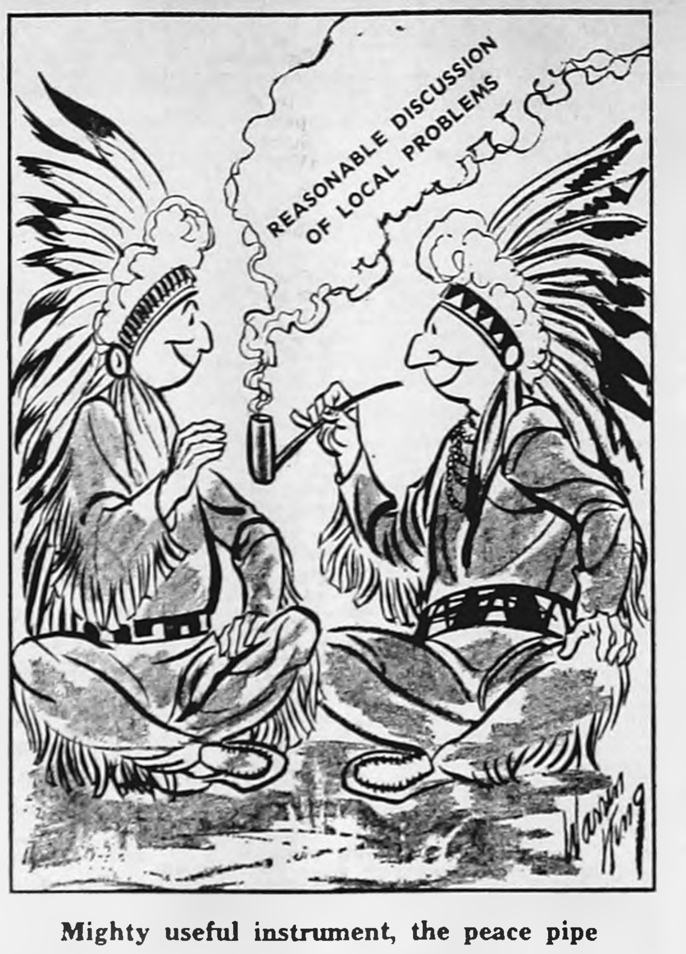
The search for the solution is underway.

THE EDUCATIONAL TELEVISION bill establishes a director of communications, to be named by the state comptroller, who would oversee the new division. Under this director would be a communications division with an advisory council to help it and a state educational radio and television board.

The communications council would merge the various message systems now used by the state, including police radio, conservation exchanges and the telephone. Because the Senate did pass this measure by a vote of 38 to 23 on Friday, the educational radio and television facility has now made the first hurdle necessary if such a system is to be gradually developed over a few years. Such a statewide system has been sought by educators at all levels.

THE SENATE LEADERSHIP, through its powerful ways and means committee, has apparently devised a plan to divide the forces who are pointing out the need for tax reform. A bill, by them, which would exempt the tax on cattle, swine, and sheep, was hurriedly brought to the floor of the Senate.

Because the whole tax reform plan needs to be known to the legislature before action is taken on a part of this problem, I resisted the attempt to bring the matter to a vote.



REASONABLE DISCUSSION OF LOCAL PROBLEMS

Mighty useful instrument, the peace pipe

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by

SCHOOL FINANCING—
Perhaps the most controversial issue before the 62nd General Assembly is the question of how to finance area vocational schools and area community colleges. Some legislators think the schools got off to such a fast start that the result is an "educational monster" already out of control. Others contend the schools are undergoing "growing pains."

The Senate is the first house to tackle this knotty problem. Meetinging as a "committee of the whole," its members heard State Superintendent of Public Instruction Paul Johnston tell about the formation of these schools and some of the problems they face.

The 1965 legislature in creating these schools said it shall be the policy of the state to provide for the establishment of "not more than 20 areas, which shall include all parts of the state."

JOHNSTON NOTED THAT IN the first five months that the law was in effect, the state department of public instruction had received applications from 13 areas representing 88 counties. He denied charges that the deficit run up by the new schools was "deliberately planned" to force the legislature to appropriate more money.

Sen. Eugene Hill, Newton Democrat, had made the charge as the Senate considered a bill to appropriate $4.5 million to put the 16 schools on a current financial basis. Hill calls this the "bail-out bill."

Hill contended that since the legislature only appropriated $6 million last session for the area vocational schools, the intent was to go slow in developing them.

TRUE LIVING COLOR—
It appears that every Iowan who drives will have his photo — in color — on his driver's license. Both houses have approved a bill requiring a color photograph on driver's licenses. Gov. Harold Hughes is concerned because the legislators have not made any provision for financing this program. It's estimated the cost of colored photos may run as high as $800,000 a year.

PAY BILL KILLED—
The House has, in effect, killed a $1-an-hour state minimum wage bill. The lower chamber voted 70 to 49 to uphold a committee's recommendation that the bill be indefinitely postponed. However, this action may be reconsidered. In its original form the bill called for a minimum hourly wage of $1.25 and would have covered most Iowans not under the federal minimum wage law; but the Senate weakened the bill considerably before passing it.

ADJOURNMENT MONTH OFF—
Observers think the legislative session will run at least another month. Major issues before the Assembly are appropriations and tax revision. Both parties have pledged "property tax relief" but rearranging the tax load is always easier said than done.

About the only persons fairly certain of relief are the owners of television sets, which strangely enough are about the only group that hasn't asked for it!

Despite the problems, signs of adjournment are in the air. The Senate has appointed a steering committee and the House will probably have appointed a sifting committee by the time these paragraphs are printed. Function of these committees is to keep the calendar "thinned down" to the major issues.

WELFARE INCREASED—
Both houses of the legislature started to work on appropriation bills; a sign that adjournment can't be far away. The first major bill to hit the floor in either house is the appropriation for the state welfare department. The House appropriations committee has recommended an appropriation of $33.8 million a year for the welfare department for the various aid programs. The appropriation is about $10 million higher than the current budget, primarily because of Medicaid.

INDEPENDENT "GOP"—
The Senate has approved the appointment of Henry Gering, mayor of West Des Moines, to a six-year term on the state board of social welfare. Republicans had been provoked because Gering, a registered independent, had been nominated rather than a Republican. The other members of the three member board are Democrats.

Minority floor leader Robert Rigler admitted that he had expressed some reservations when Gering's appointment was announced by Gov. Hughes. Sen. Rigler said considerable investigation had been done to ascertain whether Gering was an independent or a Democrat calling himself an independent.

Rigler said that Gering had attended Republican meetings and had considered running for office as a Republican in Polk county. That did it . . . Gering was confirmed by a vote to 53 to 2. He will succeed former State Senator Lawrence Putney, Gladbrook Republican.

Congregational church history—

Fire destroyed Sands Memorial church in '35

FINAL INSTALLMENT
By Rev. J. Samuel Shelby

Spiritual care included the discipline of erring members. Men and women could be suspended or dropped for neglecting the church's fellowship and support. Committees investigated "carefully and prayerfully," and with the attempt to exclude malice, anyone cited for profane language or "conduct unbecoming a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ." When attempts to reconcile him finally failed, the result was sadly entered into the record: "Voted to withdraw the hand of fellowship from him and to drop his name from the list." The aim of all discipline was twofold: the honor of the church and the restoration of the offender. The emphasis was often heavier on the "honor" than on the "restoration."

This was not so in the case of a brother who privately accepted a fee for engineering the sale of a corporate property, the stockholders of which included the pastor and at least two other Congregationalists. When the offender was exposed but not cast out — whether he was legally liable is still moot — the pastor, a Presbyterian minister who had provided strong leadership at two separate periods when no Congregational pastors could be found, invited his sympathizers to follow him into membership at the local Methodist Church.

At a specially called meeting immediately after Sunday School on March 15, 1931, with about 30 present, "the chairman proceeded at once to read a list of members who he said had asked for their letters from the church" — 23 in all, the chairman among them. One moved, another seconded; "all those present asking for letters voted Aye, and the chairman announced that the vote was unanimous, and all left the meeting at once."

In the following months, 13 others, shocked by the "scandal" of a church quarrel, also asked for letters. Meanwhile, the offending brother, having made restitution to his stockholders, confessed at a convenant meeting that what he did was wrong and asked forgiveness. The little fellowship, now perhaps no more than seventy, responded in a spirit of reconciliation and stubbornly resolved to continue as a church. Before the year was over, twelve of the original twenty-three who had left, realizing that they had acted impulsively and feeling guilty about the whole affair, returned to the fold — an act of courage itself, for as one of them described it, "It was harder to start back than it had been to leave."

Sunday afternoon, October 6, 1935, Sands Memorial Church, only recently repaired and redecorated at a cost of $500, burned to the ground. That the fire was not discovered in time to save the building was attributed to people's engrossment with a World Series broadcast. Dense smoke and intense heat hampered the firemen; both church and contents were a total loss. Destruction of the stained glass was especially lamented.

The insurance settlement brought, perhaps, less than $5,000; so in the midst of a national economic depression, the pastor A. H. Anderson, and his people seemed to be whistling in the dark when, within two weeks, they appointed committees to plan for a new building.

Clarence N. Hildebrand was superintendent of construction and served on the two committees: the building committee, which included Cato C. Griesy, A. C. Hinman, George F. Elder, W. H. Trafford, C. I. Williams; and the finance committee — George F. Elder, C. P. Luick, Charles Baxter, John D. Baker, Stephen Hardwick and Gunnar Ahlstrom.

They would use the same site and most of the foundation of the old building. When the cornerstone was laid, Sunday, November 15, 1936, hope was high that the work would rapidly be pushed to completion. But money was scarce; food sales, movie benefits, and musical programs given in neighboring churches brought discouragingly scant returns. Resident members numbered only seventy-three. The minister's salary was $50 per month. For three years the congregation worshiped in the Belmond Funeral Home.

With a loan of $2,000 and a grant of $1,500 from the Congregational Church Building Society, the church was completed at a cost of about $11,000 and dedicated Sunday, September 11, 1938. Constructed of solid brick and tile, it was accounted both beautiful and adequate. The open-timber nave-and-chancel was 59' x 35', and three high lancet windows reached upward at either end — each of those to the north of art glass displaying the trinitarian fleur-de-lis, the central one bearing a cross and crown. All other windows were cathedral glass which subdued the light and lent an atmosphere of quiet reverence to the new house of God. The basement provided room for educational and social activities. The bell from the old church was installed in the new belfry, where it served until 1950, when it had to be replaced.

As the years passed, the trustees have improved the physical property. The 1944 remodeling of the parsonage may have induced a former pastor, whose term had lasted one year, to return for a two-year engagement. In 1949 the church's chancel was rebuilt at a cost of $3,379. In 1955 the basment floor was tiled. A fund began for the building of a new parsonage, and in 1956 the dream came true.

A gift of $25,000 in 1956 from a then anonymous benefactor enabled the construction and furnishing of the Congregational Youth Center, a two-storied west annex for the church, 22' x 40' with a 12' x 12' wing. This has provided space not only for Junior High and Pilgrim Fellowships but for church school classes on Sunday mornings, and for the Women's Fellowship monthly programs. The gift had come from Chester P. Luick, a member of the church for twenty-five years, whose contributions to the Belmond community — town, school and church — are his appropriate memorial (he died in 1960).

As befitted the architecture of the present building, a more formal worship has gradually evolved. An electronic organ was installed for the dedication. The choir has been robed since 1943. Since 1963, new brassware has been periodically added to the altar: cross, candlesticks, offering plates, flower vases; and for the Holy Communion: brass trays, bread plates, chalice and flagon — most of these as memorial gifts. Paraments in liturgical colors for the appropriate seasons have adorned pulpit and altar since 1964. An efficient public address system since 1961 has facilitated hearing without strain.

In recent years awareness of denominational responsibility has sharpened. Giving to our Christian World Mission first cracked the one thousand dollar-barrier in 1956; in 1966, it reached the goal of $2,294. The Church raised $980 for the Conference's Pilgrim Heights Camp and $1,200 for the emphasis on Christian Higher Education; currently it has assumed its share toward the new Conference headquarters in Des Moines. These figures derive significance from the fact that the present membership of the church is 162.

Scoreboard for CAL would serve as "memorial" to Harry Anderson

Mrs. Harry Anderson, wife of CAL Community School district's former superintendent, has announced that the memorial money received at the time of Mr. Anderson's death will be donated to the CAL athletic department toward the purchase of a football scoreboard.

Harry Anderson, superintendent at CAL from July 1964 to November 1966, had been interested in sports all of his life. In addition to his regular duties as superintendent, Mr. Anderson coached girls basketball during the 1965-66 season. This active interest in sports prompted Mrs. Anderson to choose the Harry Anderson Memorial Scoreboard as the recipient of monies received.

Wayne Henning of Latimer has agreed to served as chairman of a committee to raise the additional funds necessary to complete this memorial project. Don Severson of Coulter, Ed Hensel of Alexander and Ollie Sprau of Latimer will act as contact people to receive additional gifts toward the fund. The memorial gift will provide a good start toward the $1,500 necessary to complete the project.

Mr. Anderson was instrumental in introducing football in CAL in 1965. One of his hopes was to see the football field equipped with bleachers and a scoreboard.

Several concerns have been contacted by the CAL school board to determine if the project is feasible. Commercial clubs from the three communities have had the project explained to them and have endorsed the idea.

Men of the community and vendors to the school will be contacted to determine if they would like to participate. Anyone who wishes to give should contact the representative from their community. The official period for receiving additional gifts has been set as April 27 to May 15.

ENGAGEMENT of their daughter Dilene Kay is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bradley. She will wed SP4 Donald C. Larsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Larsen of Latimer, a summer ceremony being planned. Miss Bradley graduated from CAL Community High school in 1965 and is school secretary at Alexander. Her fiance was a classmate and is now in the U. S. Army and stationed in Germany.

Belmond junior high and freshman tracksters did not particularly distinguish themselves in the Cowboy Junior High Relays held Wednesday evening of last week at Clarion, though there were some occasional performances pleasing to the local coaches.

Highest finish was by the freshmen, third with 44 points behind Hampton with 56 and Clarion, 54½. Garner got 28½, Boone Valley 12 and Dows 11. Eight grade standings were: Hampton 53, Clarion 50, Clarion 31, Belmond 30, Boone Valley 19 and Dows 18.

Seventh grade standings were: Garner 49½, Hampton 48, Clarion 35, Belmond 32, Dows 9 and Boone Valley 6½.

Tom Shirer was the only Bronco freshman to take a 1st place, a 5-4 leap in the high jump getting him top spot. The Belmond medley relay team took 2nd, as did Randy Turner in the pole vault.

Belmond's 8th grade 440 quartet of Fred Erdman, Dave Hickman, Norm Olson and Dave Nelson took 1st in meet record time of 52.6. The medley foursome placed 2nd, as did Duncan Campbell in the pole valut.

The 7th-graders had two individual winners — Jim Just in the shot put with a toss of 33 feet and Steve Burt in the 100-yard low hurdles in :15.6. Ben Fuller tied for best height of 4-4 in the high jump but placed 2nd on misses.

Broncos to vie in EG district

Belmond Community High school's track and field team this Friday night will compete in the Class A district meet being held at Eagle Grove. There will be a 12-team field, with the host Eagles and Humboldt favored to fight it out for the championship. Field events start at 4:00 p. m. and the running events at 7:00 o'clock.

Coach Chuck Stalker is hoping the Broncos may do better than a year ago, when only Paul Laaveg and Phil Rise managed to qualify for the state meet.

Terry Nelson, if performing up to par, should be a cinch to qualify in the discus throw and might be able to make the grade in the high hurdles and high jump.

Bob Rise will be shooting for a qualifying spot in the 100. Wayne Smith in the low hurdles, and Tim Roberts in the broad jump. Doug Thompsen has been doing well in the pole vault, but will be up against two of the best vaulters in the state in Blackman of Eagle Grove and Nissen of Humboldt.

Stalker regards Belmond's best hope in the relay events to lie with the two mile quartet. He believes Dallas Steenblock, Gary Meyers, Mike Klinefelter and Don Havens capable of coming close to the school record of 8:27.6 in this event — but has told the boys they'll have to do just that if they are going to make it to the state meet.

As Broncs take Class B title—

Two Wildcat Relay marks to Nelson

—SPORTS—

As Belmond squeezed by Twin Rivers to take the Class B championship in the Wildcat Relays at Humboldt on Tuesday night of last week, one might have thought the Bronco performances were produced on a balmy spring afternoon rather than in a frigid night affair marked by periodical drizzle. In event after event, the boys wearing the Columbia blue stripes posted their best efforts of the season.

Three of the 10 records set during the evening were in Class B Terry Nelson set two of these, and the Belmond two-mile relay team improved on the time of 8:37.2 set by a Bronco quartet in 1958 as Prairie of Gowrie did likewise by an even wider margin.

Nelson thoroughly smashed the discus mark of 138-8 held by Dwight Sann of Clarion with a heave of 150-4½; and in the 120-yard high hurdles he skimmed the sticks in :15.6 — his best to date — to lower the meet Class B record by one-tenth of a second. He also won the high jump with a height of 5-8 and ran one leg in the shuttle hurdle relay in which Twin Rivers — in a different heat — nipped Belmond for first by a tenth of a second.

Behind Belmond's and Twin Rivers' 76-75 finish in the team standings came Prairie with 62, Clarion 49, Manson 48½ and Britt 11½.

Doug Thompsen did his best ever in the pole vault with a height of 11-6, only an inch under Paul Laaveg's BHS record, but it was good for only a 4th place. Tim Roberts placed second behind Nelson with 5-6 in the high jump and took 4th in the long jump with a distance of 18-8. Doug Mennenga got Belmond's remaining field events point with a 5th in the shot put.

Gary Meyers and Dallas Steenblock each ran his half in a fraction over 2:06 in the two mile relay as the Broncs finished in 8:33 8 to Prairie's 8:23. Don Havens covered his 880 in 2:11-plus and Mike Klinefelter his in 2 09-plus.

Wayne Smith won the low hurdles in 22 and led off the Bronco 880 relay effort Lance Campbell, Roberts and Bob Rise ran the other three legs, finishing in 1:36.3 for second place and by far their best time of the year for this event. Rise later took first in the 100 in :11.2, a brisk face-wind slowing the runners down considerably.

The Bronco shuttle hurdlers — Ken Busick, Nelson, Klinefelter and Smith — won their heat by a wide margin and might very well have beaten Twin Rivers if they'd been running against each other.

An excellent anchor half by Dallas Steenblock gave the Broncos second in the mile medley with a best Bronco time for the season of 3.51 5. Coach Chuck Stalker caught "Dal" in just over 2 03 for his 880.

Randy Turner, freshman miler, added three important points in that event by taking third place with his best time thus far, a shade over 5 04.

After a dropped baton blanked the Broncos in the 440 relay, they went into the night's final event with a 74-57 lead over the fast-gaining Twin Rivers outfit. All but a single point of that span was wiped out as Twin Rivers grabbed a second place and the Broncos had to settle for fifth.

Kevin Gallagher brought the baton in a good third and Stan Korthas held that position. Havens, with a half mile under his belt already, slipped to fourth; and Klinefelter, running his third event of the night, dropped another notch — but managed to hang on for the needed two points.

Number of marks threatened—

NIC meet Tuesday on Osage track

Next Tuesday's 1967 edition of the North Iowa conference track and field meet at Osage gives prospect of being a restaging of the '66 affair, which was one of the closest during the more than 35 years the event has been held.

As the Belmond Broncos won their sixth track championship in a span of eight years, they had their hands very full in turning back the challenge of Osage, 70 to 65 Following in order were: Garner 46, Lake Mills 34, Forest City 26, Buffalo Center and Britt 22 each, and Northwood 12.

Next week's running of the meet will find a considerably larger number of outstanding individuals participating than a year ago, and they are quite well distributed among the various teams.

This is likely to cause an evener spread of points than usual; but at the same time may attach particular importance to squad depth, where Belmond may have something of an edge.

If good weather prevails, a number of records appear certain to topple. Orville Hogen of Northwood has tossed the shot better than 50 feet, compared to the 48-7¼ mark held by Dennis McNulty; and Terry Nelson has a best discus heave of more than 150 feet, while Neal Waddington's record is only 138-5½.

Steve Pederson of Lake Mills and the Broncos' Doug Thompsen have both cleared 11-6 in the pole vault, well surpassing Paul Laaveg's 10-10 mark. Dan Cockrum of Osage has been regularly surpassing Tom Busch's 21-2 record distance in the broad jump.

Only Bill Kaufman's 6-0 mark in the high jump appears safe, where the field events are concerned. Busch's :10.1 in the hundred and :22 0 in the 220 also are out of reach, as is the oldest mark on the books, 52.5 by McMillan of Britt in the 440, which has stood since 1937.

No one has been approaching Bob Misner's :20.1 in the low hurdles; but Nelson came within two-tenths of a second of Laaveg's :15 4 last week in the high hurdles at Humboldt, and Loren Bechtum of Osage has a :15.7 time. Lynn Keraus of Garner has a wind-aided :15.6 and a win over Nelson.

Severson of Forest City likely should draw the "favorite's" role in the high jump, with Pat Orthel of Buffalo Center, Nelson and Tim Roberts of Belmond among other contenders who conceivably could grab the top spot.

Ron Tannahill of Forest City could be the man to beat in the sprints, if he runs both the 100 and 220 — although Bronco Wayne Smith beat him in the 220 in the recent Bronco-Indian dual.

Keraus has best time of :20 6 and Bechtum the next best low hurdle time of 21.7 in the 180-yard event, with Smith possibly capable of matching it or coming close. Where the 880 is concerned, either Dallas Steenblock or Gary Meyers could threaten the 2:06.7 time set in '65 by Tom Stott of Osage; but whether they run it in depends on Coach Chuck Stalker's relay line-ups.

How things will go in the relay events will generally rest on which coaches decide to "load up" on what; but the records in all would seem to be relatively safe. At Humboldt, Belmond's two-mile team had a time only one-half second over the NIC mark of 8 33.3 set by Buffalo Center in '63.

Osage has the personnel for a potentially strong mile relay team, having already run the distance in 3:39 4 but whether Coach Fred Shadle will keep his best quartet intact for the event is problematical. Britt holds the record of 3:34, set in 62.

Cardinals beaten 85-52 in track dual here Friday

Little trouble was experienced by the Belmond High track squad in defeating Garner in a dual meet here Friday afternoon — 85 to 52 — but several surprises were registered by the visitors.

Lynn Keraus, Cardinal hurdler, took both of the timber events. Running with the strong breeze that was a handicap to the athletes in most events, he sped over the 120-yard high hurdles in :15.6 and the 180-yard lows in :20 6. Terry Nelson was second in both.

Dave Formanek gave the visitors first places in both the 100 and 220, Bob Rise taking second for the Broncos in the short dash and Smith doing likewise in the furlong.

Dallas Steenblock was a double winner for Belmond as victor in both the 440 and 880; and Nelson matched the achievement with firsts in the high jump and discus, plus his two second places in the hurdles.

Doug Thompsen took the pole vault with a respectable height of 11 feet, and Tim Roberts claimed the broad jump on a leap of 19-1. Larry Turner was the mile winner in a wind-blown time of 5:18. Doug Mennenga captured the shot put with a distance of 40-8½.

Garner placed first in the two-mile and medley relays, while Belmond took the shuttle hurdles, the 440, 880 and mile relays.

Foreground, Impala Sport Sedan. Background, Camaro Sport Coupe and the Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe.

Drive the cost of living down, without giving up all this.

Chevrolet's room, ride and price. When Automotive News made its annual roominess study, Chevrolet got the most points. It's roomier inside, they reported, than any other American car. The ride is Full Coil suspension smooth. And Chevrolet hardtops and convertibles are still the lowest priced full-size cars of this kind you can buy. Chevelle's quick size. It's quick to climb, quick to turn. Other mid-size cars might be like Chevelle, true. But they're not as low priced. And they're not made by Chevrolet with Body by Fisher, GM-developed energy-absorbing steering column, inner fenders and Full Coil suspension. Camaro's road-hugging stance. At its price, Camaro is the only sportster to give you wide-stance design. It rides steadier, clings to curves better, hugs the road closer. It's the roomiest car you can buy. Plus, you get a bigger standard engine.

Special buys on Camaro Sport Coupes and Convertibles specially equipped with: 250-cubic-inch Six, 155 hp • Deluxe steering wheel • Bumper guards • Whitewall tires • Wheel covers • Wheel opening moldings • Striping along the sides • Extra interior brightwork • And, at no extra cost during the sale, special hood stripe and a floor shift for the 3-speed transmission! "Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL 43 NO. 33 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 14 PAGES AND SUPPLEMENT

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Capt. R. E. Lee Aldrich III is back from the wars, out of uniform (on an inactive reserve status), and happy as a lark to be joining with his father in corn planting on the parental R. E. Aldrich, Jr., acres southeast of town. Before heading back to the States on Monday of last week by jet, Lee had been in Vietnam since December. He was a member of a U. S. Agency for International Development (AID) team, assigned to pass on to native farmers such agricultural knowhow as they might be able to adapt to their mountside plots.

Lee points out that his "inactive duty" status exempts him for further active service "at the pleasure of the President" — and that only an act of Congress calling up personnel in his category can get him back into uniform.

That suits him just dandy-fine, as — after duty time in Germany before he went to Vietnam — he's quite in the mood to stay home for a while. His wife, the former Lynne Arends, is going to school at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls, (their two-year-old son Forrest is with her) so each weekend Lee plans to be heading east. He says he had exactly four years and one week in uniform and that the prospect of living a farmer's life distinctly appeals to him. He concedes that his Vietnam duty was "an experience," but was glad to see it over.

A release from the Million Dollar Round Table, the exclusive organization of life insurance agents who have written a million dollars of new life insurance in a year's time, advises us that less than two per cent of the nation's agents qualify for this recognition. Whatever per cent might be in the same class with Bill Johnson, who crashed the THREE MILLION DOLLAR barrier in 1966 as a Lutheran Brotherhood representative, it must be a tiny one indeed! We suspicion that a CARD TABLE might suffice to seat the gentlemen who attain THIS distinction in a year.

Had a chat with SP4 Larry Thayer before he wound up a 30-day furlough with his folks, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Thayer, and left Sunday by plane for his next Army duty station, Fort Meade, Md. Larry enlisted just after his graduation from BHS, in June of 1965, and when we talked to him had "13 months and six days" of his three-year hitch still to complete. He'd returned April 8 from Korea, where he'd spent "13 months and four days."

If it sounds as if Larry keeps pretty close track of just how much time he owes the Army, that's just how it is. He's not exactly enthusiastic about the military life.

It's had its high points, though. Like, for instance, his jet trip home from Korea — which took just 9½ hours, compared to the 18 days it took by ship to go over. And he's found worthwhile the training he's gotten as a specialist in both track and wheel mechanics, which he hopes may provide him a civilian occupation. He'll now be with the 5th Armored Cavalry Regiment, which he hopes won't get ordered to Vietnam — but could.

Goodell's mayor, Lee Robbins, Jr., was about stompin' mad when he paid us a brief visit the other day with a word to be relayed to kids in his community. Some Goodell gardens have been subjected to intentional destruction; and Lee says the authorities are NOT going to stand for it. Better give heed to the warning, kids. He sure sounded as if he meant it.

If any question was harbored as to whether Neal Waddington was destined to "make it" as a regular with the Iowa State university varsity next fall, the Cyclones' intrasquad game last Saturday would seem to have dispelled all doubts. Spectators found "Wadd's" performances as both a quarterback and wingback as major highlights of the afternoon. Problem: Where'll he be the most useful?

Followers of ex-Bronco stars now in the "big time" are going to be faced with some tough choices next fall. ISU games will tempt 'em with the prospect of seeing "Wadd" and Craig Boller in action; at Drake, Bobby Misner is "it"; and the Iowa Hawkeyes have high hopes for Paul Laaveg — and brother Sterling, if he gets a leg injury squared away.

Jack Steinberg suggests: Sept. 16, Louisville at Drake; 23, Texas Christian at Iowa; 30, New Mexico at ISU (or Oregon State at Iowa); Oct. 14, SCI at Drake (or Kansas State at ISU); 21, Omaha at Drake (or Missouri at ISU); 28, Purdue at Iowa; Nov. 4, Minnesota at Iowa; 11, South Dakota at Drake (or Oklahoma at ISU); 18, Oklahoma State at ISU; 25, Illinois at Iowa.

Mark Patterson No. 1 salesman

Mark Patterson earned himself a baseball glove by selling the most boxes as the Jaycees' annual candy sale to finance summer recreation baseball equipment was held last Saturday. He sold 75 boxes at a dollar each.

The combination of Dalon Obrecht and Jim Killius earned a bat with $61 in sales and Steve Dougherty a similar prize for $50 turned in. Baseballs went to Lee Laaveg for a $49 total and Larry Elphic-Dana Obrecht for $45.

Althogther, Chairman Don Jones reports, the boys told $660 worth of candy, 10 selling more than $25 worth and another 10 selling 10 or more boxes.

FROSHMORE MEET CHANGED

Date of the annual North Iowa track meet has been charged from Tuesday of next week to Wednesday. The site has also been changed, from Lake Mills to Osage.

PROUDLY DISPLAYING awards received by the Belmond chapter at last weekend's state convention of Iowa Jaycees are (left to right) Larry Kinseth, Tyrrell Baker and Larry Flanagan. They were official delegates to the convention, as was Vernon McLaughlin, who was unable to be present for the picture.

Three state awards to Belmond—

Community Development 1st to local Jaycees

A number of laurels were reaped by the Belmond Jaycees at the annual state convention of the Iowa Jaycees last weekend at Davenport, including first place in Community Development for the year 1966-67.

Present to receive the awards, and representing the local chapter as voting delegates, were: Terrell Baker, president; Larry Flanagan and Vernon McLaughlin, directors; and Larry Kinseth.

Besides the Community Development Award, which brought the local chapter a handsome trophy, the Belmond organization was given second place among Division I entries (from communities of under 10,000 population) in the field of Community Health and Safety activities.

This award was received "in recognition of outstanding accomplishment in the realm of Jaycee activities and contributing to the welfare of the city, state and nation."

In addition, the Belmond group was one of 68 out of 239 chapters in the state ot receive the Bob Cronk Award of Honor for outstanding chapter growth, service, participation and dedication and in recognition of a sound, diversified and dynamic local program.

President Baker was also notified that the Belmond chapter has earned the Blue Chip Award for membership growth, leadership training, chapter management and community development. A factor in earning this award was the growth in local Jaycee membership from 31 to 53 in the course of the past year.

Activities that contributed importantly to winning Belmond's Jaycees the Community Development trophy were: patrolling the city during each night following the tornado to protect against looting and fire until night-time street lighting had been reinstated; carrying on such annual projects as the Halloween parties for school children and Christmas party for underprivileged youngsters, despite the obstacles to normal club activity created by the disaster.

Publication of the Jaycee Tornado Album as a means of raising funds to rehabilitate the city park also earned the group credit toward winning the Community Development Award.

Bases of the Certificates of Award for "outstanding accomplishment in the realm of Jaycee activities" are Records and Recognition Scrapbooks entered by each chapter. The Belmond group had submitted seven scrapbooks covering various aspects of its activity year.

Playing a part in the winning of the second place Certificate of Award for the Belmond chapter — as in the case of the Community Development Trophy — was the emergency patrol set up with the assistance of neighboring chapters.

Jaycees from Clarion and Eagle Grove gave their assistance in lining up personnel for these patrols. In addition, Jaycees from Garner, Forest City, Hampton, Mason City, Charles City and other communities responded to the call for men to help conduct the patrols.

Besides attending the convention at Davenport on Friday through Sunday as a local delegate, Terrell Baker was present in the capacity of a state vice president-elect. He was chosen earlier this month by the 27 chapters of Region 8 to represent them on the state board.

Mr. Baker this week expressed both pride in the local chapter for the honors it received and gratitude to its members for the loyal and unselfish support they have given the chapter during the period of his presidency. He took over leadership of the organization last July 1.

"All of Belmond's Jaycees," he says, "deserve great credit for having made the past year such an outstanding one in the way of achievements. Due to the tornado, they have been called upon to work particularly hard to keep our regular program going in addition to meeting the emergency obligations they shouldered."

New "North Iowa Peach" offers wide circulation

Beginning with this issue, The Independent in conjuction with eight other central north Iowa newspapers, is making the "North Iowa Peach" available to its advertisers every week.

The "North Iowa Peach" will be a special section included in all nine cooperating newspapers each week, thereby giving the advertisers in "The Peach" a total of 27,800 circulation . . . 27,800 of the best non-metropolitan homes in north Iowa each week. The cooperating newspapers are:

Algona Advance, the Britt News-Tribune, Forest City Summit, Lake Mills Graphic, Northwood Anchor, Belmond Independent, Bancroft Register, Garner Leader, Manly Signal.

The "North Iowa Peach" will include both reader want ads and display advertising. One rate buys an ad in all nine of the newspapers.

No other advertising medium in this area can offer so great a coverage, so great an opportunity to the local advertisers in this community. They get the concentrated "home-town" readership thoughout the area because the "North Iowa Peach" becomes an integral part of each hometown newspaper.

Yet an ad in the "Peach" reaches out to cover all of Worth, Winnebago, Hancock and Kossuth counties plus extensive areas in Cerro Gordo, Mitchell and Wright counties.

Imps take crown; Bronc tracksters set four records

Although Belmond High athletes accounted for four of eight new records set at Osage on Tuesday afternoon and evening in the annual North Iowa conference track and field meet, the Broncos saw Osage do them out of the team championship, 74 to 64.

Several bad breaks that cost Belmond virtually certain points were a big factor in loss of the title. Terry Nelson, suffering from a leg bruise sustained in the district meet Friday night, was scratched from the high jump and high hurdles; then took a tumble in the low hurdles and failed to qualify. Also costly were the failures of Tim Roberts and Bob Vander Schaaf to place in the long jump when they scratched on tries that would have won points.

On the plus side was a record effort of 12 feet by Doug Thompsen in the pole vault for 1st place and a new record and a 4th for Dennis Followwill at 11 feet. Nelson, as expected, set a new discus mark of 144-8½ in winning that event; and Roberts won the high jump with a height of 5-8½.

The Bronco two-mile relay team obliterated the old record of 8:33.3 held by Buffalo Center as Mike Klinefelter, Don Goeman, Gary Meyers and Dallas Steenblock covered the distance in 8:24.4. Steenblock came back later with a 2 04 8 winning effort in the 880 to erase the 2:06.1 standard in that event.

Bob Rise got Belmond's only other 1st in a running event when he clipped off the 220 in :23.7.

Lake Mills took third in the team standings with 45½ points, followed by Garner with 44, Forest City 39, Northwood 15, Buffalo Center 9 and Britt 6½.

A more detailed account of the meet will appear next week.

LAST RITES IN MINNESOTA FOR WALTER SORENSON, 81

Funeral services were held May 2 at Thief River Falls, Minn., for Walter Sorenson, 81, who died April 28. Interment was in Ebenezer Lutheran cemetery at Thief River Falls.

Walter Sorenson, son of Chris and Sema Sorenson, was born Feb. 24, 1886, in Belmond and grew up in this vicinity.

He had made his home in Minnesota in later years.

He leaves a son, Calvin, of Thief River Falls; a daughter, Mrs. Albert (Lila) Menderud of Duluth, Minn.; one sister, Mrs. Alpha Meachem of Concord, Calif.; two brothers, Chester of Hayward, Calif.; and Harry of Belmond.

His wife, from whom he had been divorced, also survives.

He was preceded in death by one sister, Clara, and a brother Bert.

GUEST FROM CALIFORNIA

MRS. McCOUN SECRETARY, RETARDED CHILDREN ASSN.

Josephine McCoun, teacher of Belmond's special education class, was elected secretary of the Wright County Association for Retarded Children at a meeting of that group held Wednesday of last week at Clarion.

She will assumed her duties July 1, as will the following: Mrs. Oren Emerson, the new president; Mrs. Elmer Lempke, vice president; and Mrs. Matt Thielen, treasurer. These women are all from Eagle Grove.

Mrs. Leonard Noack of Clarion and Mrs. Thielen were chosen as delegates to attend the convention of the Iowa Association of Retarded Children at Marshalltown on June 10-11, with Mrs. Lempke at alternate.

TWO GET RECOGNITION

Two Belmond students were among 799 at St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., who on Thursday of last week were given recognition at the school's annual Honors Day program. John Bonte was among 203 sophomores and Joan Leinbach one of 261 freshmen cited for maintaining a grade-point average of 3.0 (B) or better during their period of study at St. Olaf.

$1,000 bequest goes to hospital

Administrator Marc Ihm reports receipt this week of a check for $1,000 representing a bequest to Belmond Community hospital in the will of the late Eva. M. Keppers of Clarion. The widow of John Keppers, Clarion farmer, she died Dec. 1, 1965. Her husband preceded her in death by 10 years.

The bequest to the Belmond hospital was one of a number made to health and charitable agencies. Mrs. Keppers had never been a patient in the local hospital.

A $1,000 bequest was also made to the Clarion Memorial hospital and others were made as follows:

American Cancer Society $3,000; an amount of $2,000 each to the American Heart association, Iowa Association for Crippled Children and Adults, and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; and $1,000 to the Iowa Tuberculosis and Health association.

In addition, a total of $3,200 was left to various Catholic charities.

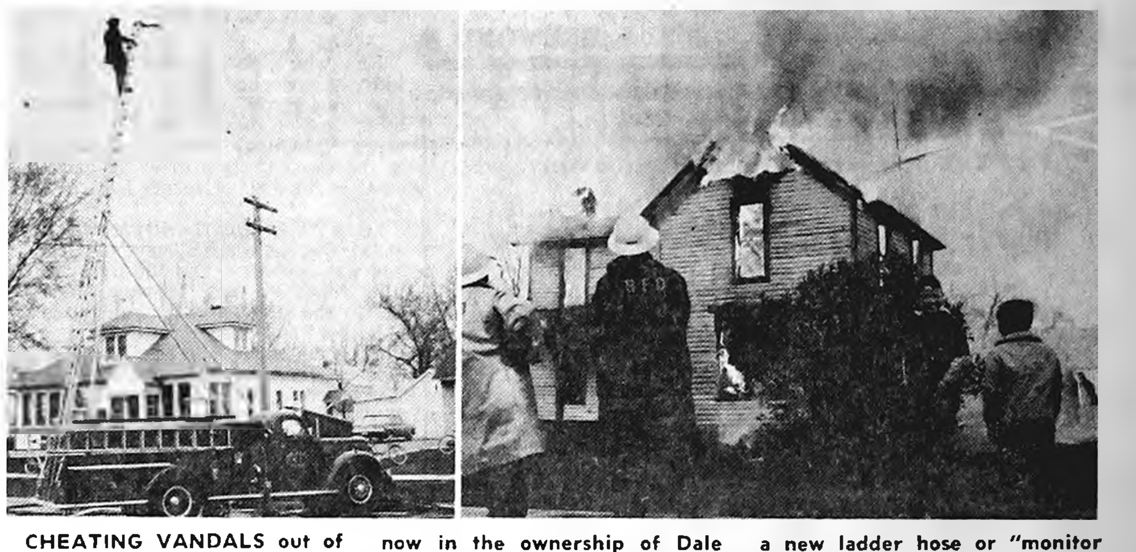
PITCHERS VISIT HERE

Dr. and Mrs. Arlo Pitcher and family of St. James, Minn., visited friends here on Sunday.



CHEATING VANDALS out of a house-wrecking job, the Belmond Fire department on Wednesday evening of last week purposely burned down this house at 723 Third street NE as an exercise in fire control. Once owned by Mrs. Herbert (Jean Kaduce) Schwartz of Klemme but now in the ownership of Dale Jackson of Iowa Falls, the empty dwelling had been an increasingly attractive target for vandalism in recent weeks. Assistant Fire Chief Ross Porter (left) and Jim Houser are shown keeping an eye on things. Separate picture at left shows Mike Dillon manning a new ladder hose or "monitor nozzle" lately acquired by the fire department as an addition to its apparatus. Atop the ladder, which can extend to 50-foot height, the nozzle is useful in putting a barrier of spray between a burning building and another near-by being protected from the flames.

WILLIAM R. JOHNSON

William R. "Bill" Johnson, Belmond, was a guest of honor at a Lutheran Brotherhood dinner held on the campus of Waldorf college at Forest City on Tuesday of last week. Mr. Johnson was paid tribute for becoming the fraternal insurance society's first representative to sell over three million dollars of life insurance in a single year.

Carl F. Granrud of Minneapolis, chairman of the board of directors and chief executive of Lutheran Brotherhood, said that Mr. Johnson's work last year has set a goal for many of the society's top representatives. He presented Mr. Johnson with an electric clock during the dinner held in the Campus Center at Waldorf.

Featured speaker of the evening was Dr. A. R. Kretzmann of Chicago, Ill., chief pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Saint Luke. Dr. Kretzmann is a member of the board of directors of Lutheran Brotherhood and is chairman of the society's fraternal activities committee.

Mr. Granrud commended Waldorf President Sigvald D. Fauske during the recognition dinner on the program of higher education being offered at the Lutheran junior college He said that each year Christian higher education takes on increasing importance.

Lutheran Brotherhood work in central and northern Iowa is under the direction of two general agents, Casper Sivesind of Ames and M. Roger Knudsen of Mason City.

The society has an extensive fraternal activities program for members and their religious institutions and agencies. Lutheran Brotherhood, which is among leading insurance firms in North America, has over 2.7 billion dollars of life insurance in force and assets in excess of 376 million dollars.

"Open house" scheduled at Gold Medallion home

People of Belmond and the area surrounding are invited to view something distinctly "different" in the way of new homes when the Wilbur Lieberknecht residence at 315 Third street NE is opened to public inspection this Saturday and Sunday.

Joining in conducting the open house are Iowa Electric Light and Power company and Citation Homes, builder of Weyerhaeuser registered homes represented locally by Peter Daniels.

From 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Saturday and 1:00 to 5:00 p. m. Sunday the public is cordially invited to look through the attractive home of the Lieberknechts and acquaint themselves with its remarkable construction and up-to-date facilities.

It is the first Gold Medallion home to be constructed in Belmond. This means that it is the first residence erected here that uses electricity as its sole source of energy for light, heat and power.

Among its features is area heat control by means of 12 separate thermostats in its 12 rooms, including the basement. Heating facilities are wholly concealed, cable installations in the ceiling making unnecessary any kind of heating unit — furnace, registers or radiators.

The kitchen is a model of modern design, with the latest of electrical equipment used for every purpose.

26 Future Teachers have fling at instructing classroom groups

High school students who comprise the Belmond Future Teachers association received their first actual teaching experience on Thursday of last week under arrangements made by Mrs. Aline Burgess, high school librarian.

Students were permitted to choose the subject and grade they preferred to teach. A planning session for the student with the teacher of the class selected was arranged a week in advance to avoid schedule conflicts.

Each of the "practice teachers" prepared the lesson material to be taught so it would occupy the entire 45-minute class period. The teachers-to-be were strictly on their own, as the regular teacher left the room while the designated high school student was in charge.

Twenty-six Future Teachers participated in the assignment and taught in the 1st through 6th grades.

In view of the steadily increasing numbers of male teachers on the local faculty, the division between boys and girls in the classroom experiment was decidedly one-sided. The only boy in the group was Wayne Bell, who taught arithmetic in Arba Selgelid's 6th grade class.

MOTHER OF MRS. LAAVEG DIES IN NORTH DAKOTA

Funeral services were held Tuesday of last week at Park River, N. D., for Mrs. Lena Larson, 83, mother of Mrs. Oscar Laaveg. She died the preceding Saturday.

Mrs. Laaveg, accompanied by her husband, Rev. O. Laaveg, and sons Joel and Lee, attended the funeral. Mrs. Larson is survived by two other daughters and three sons.

Marilyn Melhus takes own life

Mrs. Russell (Marilyn) Melhus, 32, who made her home here for a time when her husband was associated with the now defunct D & O Finance company, was found dead Monday afternoon at Clarion from carbon monoxide asphyxiation.

She was in the family car in the garage of the Melhus residence. A length of vacuum cleaner hose had been run from the tailpipe through a rear window of the auto. A note left to her family indicated it had been her intention to take her life.

Mrs. Melhus had been under treatment at the North Iowa Mental Health Center in Mason City and on Monday morning had tried to call a staff member there. He had called back, a while later, but was unable to get an aswer.

A mail carrier, Wallace Lindstrom, had first noticed the car running with the hose leading to its interior about 3:00 p. m. and notified a Melhus neighbor, Burt McMorris. He summoned Dr. Dale Harding of Eagle Grove, county medical examiner, and a local doctor. Mrs. Melhus was dead, however, before medical aid could arrive.

MINNESOTA GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson and family of Peterson, Minn., were recent weekend visitors in the Dick D. L. Pals and Jens P. Johnson homes.

Funeral services for Emma Johnson held on Saturday

Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon at Trinity Lutheran church for Mrs. Emma Johnson, 82, with Rev. Oscar Laaveg officiating and Johnston Funeral Home in charge. Mrs. Johnson died Wednesday of last week at a Clear Lake nursing home, where she had resided since January.

Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Pallbearers were Arthur Rierson of Waverly, Vaylord Adrian and Lawrence Becker of Des Moines, Bob Freel of Chester, Jalmer Solyst of Forest City and Omar Maland of Kanawha.

Emma Holm was born May 5, 1884, in Cavalier county, North Dakota, daughter of Ole and Hansena (Ralstad) Holm. When she was a young girl, the family moved to the Belmond area.

On Dec. 4, 1907, she was married to George C. Johnson and they farmed for many years northwest of Belmond, before retiring and moving to town. Mr. Johnson died in 1954. Until recent months, Mrs. Johnson continued to make her home here in Belmond. She then lived briefly at Prairie View retirement home at Garner before her health necessitated her removal to the nursing home at Clear Lake.

Two children survive, Mrs. Alpha Schroeder of Milwaukee and Luther Johnson of Belmond; also four grandchildren and a great grandchild. In addition, Mrs. Johnson is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lydia Hanson of Belmond, and a brother, Edwin Holm of Chester.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Johnson was preceded in death by a brother, Henry Holm, and six sisters — Mrs. Minnie Solyst, Mrs. O. S. Swandahl, Mrs. Caroline Berhow, Anna Holm, Mrs. Hilda Maland and Mrs. Ida Holland.

Mr. Duitscher had been bothered with severe headaches since early last fall and his condition had worsened in recent months, though its cause was unknown.

Dr. W. Weisbrod heads state's chiropractors

Dr. W. W. Weisbrod, who has practiced in Belmond for the past nine years, was honored last weekend by his fellow chiropractors with election to the presidency of the Iowa Chiropractic Society. The election was held during the association's annual state convention at Des Moines.

Prior to his elevation to the society's presidency, Dr. Weisbrod had served as 3rd vice president and then 2nd vice president. The 1st vice president of the past year declined to be a candidate for the top office.

Dr. Weisbrod will serve as the state society's president for two years. His ostensible successor, as new 1st vice president, is Dr. Glen Madsen of Des Moines.

It was right after his graduation from the Palmer College of Chiropractic at Davenport that Dr. Weisbrod came to Belmond in 1958. He is a past president of the North Central Iowa Chiropractic association, having headed that group in 1963.

SNIPPING CEREMONIES marking the formal opening of a couple of Belmond businesses that were wholly demolished by the tornado were held Saturday at Berns Conoco Service (left) and Monday at Redder's Rexall Drug. That's Erv Redder happily applying scissors to ribbon at right — Gerald Berns doing the honors at the station. Berns Service was pumping gas again only eight days after the big blow; and the new service department was ready for occupancy by mid-December — but Gerald waited for spring to hold the "opening" festivities. On the other hand, Erv moved into his fine, entirely-new establishment just about as quickly as the building crew moved out. Until Monday of this week — starting from a few days after the tornado — Redder Drug was a "guest" of Kinseth Plumbing and Heating. Erv was grateful for the hospitality extended him by the Kinseths; but he doesn't pretend that he's other than 110 per cent pleased to be back in a business home of his own.

Bulldogs trophy winner in Bronco hurdle event

Coach Jim Hutchison's Kanawha High tracksters came home with one trophy from the Bronco Relays at Belmond on Tuesday of last week as the KHS timber-toppers took the shuttle hurdles in a time only one-tenth of a second over the Class C record.

Winning the event in :50.5 were Jim Schrader, Jim DeVries, Steve Rietema and Greg Yeakel. The only other first for Kanawha was won by Don Liter in the pole vault, when he cleared 9-6 with the fewest misses.

The Bulldogs finished third in the Class C team standings with 50 points, trailing Garner and Buffalo Center with 90½ and 66, respectively. Scoring for the rest of the field was: Boone Valley 40½, CAL 37 and Sheffield 23.

Schrader took third in the high hurdles, tying the old record of :16.1 behind Jerry Letzring of CAL and Lynn Keraus of Garner, and was fourth in the shot put.

Norm Baker took second in the 100-yard dash and the 440-yard relay team also picked up a second place. Yeakel placed third in the low hurdles, Rietema fifth in the long jump and high jump and the Bulldog two-mile, 880 and medley relay teams each took a fifth place.

North Star conference contenders had first places, in addition to those already mention, by Letzring of CAL in the shot put (44-10) and Boone Valley in the medley relay. In the latter, Jeff Lane overcame a big lead by the Garner anchor man to win by an eyelash.

Letzring, though taking second behind Keraus of Garner in the 220-yard low hurdles, was 1.1 seconds under the old record with a time of :21.6; and Leon Root of CAL tied for best height of 5-4 in the high jump but was second on misses.

Root also took third in the discus and Bob Koenen was third in the long jump. Schipull of Boone Valley was third in the 100 and fourth in the high jump and Porterfield of CAL took fifth in the 100.

Girls team has six qualifiers for state meet

Kanawha's 320-meter shuttle hurdle team placed second in :58.2 and the 440-yard relay team tied for second in :56.4.

Meservey-Thornton, North Star conference neighbor, will be represented at the state meet in two events by Colleen Obrecht. She was second in the shot with a toss of 32-7¾ and second in the discus with a distance of 90-10.

The Kanawha girls placed second as a team in the district meet at Dumont with 49½ points, led only by Aplington with 82. Meservey-Thornton tied for 10th with 11 points. CAL Community failed to score.

In the boys' Class C district affair, Don Liter took 1st in the pole vault by clearing 10 feet. Norm Baker was 2nd in the 440 with time of :54.0 and Jim Schrader took 2nd in the high hurdles in :16.0.

Goldfield's speedy Bill Huisman won the 100 in :10.4 and the 220 in :23.3. Teammate Bill Mandsanger was 2nd in the 100 in :10.6 and took the long jump with a leap of 20-7. Dick Martin was 2nd in the discus with a distance of 126-4.

Mailbox OK? It's time to check up

Meservey's postmaster, Mrs. Sylvia M. Raecker, is asking that all rural residents cooperate with the postal department during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 15-20.

The department designates a week during May each year when residents on rural, city motorized, and box delivery star routes are encouraged to examine, and improve where necessary, the appearance of their mailboxes.

Purpose of Mailbox Improvement Week is to call attention to the need for providing mail receptacles which are designed to protect the mail from the weather, and which are neat in appearance, conveniently located, and safe to use. Neat, attractive mailboxes will make a significant contribution to the objectives and success of President Johnson's natural beauty program.

Mailboxes that meet the above four important requirements contribute to a more efficient delivery operation, and the result is an improved service to the entire route.

DUNKERTON HIGH SIGNS HEARD TO FACULTY JOB

Tom Heard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Heard, has signed a contract to teach mathematics and coach basketball and baseball at Dunkerton Community High school during the 1967-68 school year.

He will graduate on May 27 from Wartburg college, Waverly, where he has majored in physical education and minored in mathematics. He has been a stand-out player on the Knights' highly successful baseball team this spring.

1,313 farms sign for '67 program in Wright County

What's so unlucky about the number 13? Approximately two-thirds of the feed grain farms in Wright county would seem to regard it as not such bad luck. It happens that the number signed up for the federal feed grain program adds up to . . . 1,313.

Operators of these farms have indicated intention of diverting 26,500 acres of cropland from feed grain production this year. Norway township is at the top of the list in regard to percentage of farms participating, though matched by Wall Lake at 78 per cent.

Blaine has the largest number of farms signed up, 103, followed by Norway with 101. Pleasant township will divert the most acres, if intentions are followed out — 2,020. Iowa is next in this category with 1,908 pledged to conservation uses.

Woolstock township is at the bottom of all lists, with only 52 farms (46 per cent) pledged to divert 1,106 acres. Close behind in demonstrating that the farm program is not for them are the farmers of Eagle Grove township. The 60 signed up comprise only 50 per cent of the total farms and they've indicated intention of diverting only 1,124 acres.

Response to the feed grain program in this vicinity was as follows: Belmond township — 87 farms signed up, 69 per cent, for 1,808 acres; Iowa — 88 farms, 72 per cent, 1,908 acres; Grant — 76 farms, 70 per cent, 1,599 acres; Norway — 101 farms, 78 per cent, 1,991 acres; Pleasant — 86 farms, 65 per cent, 2,020 acres.

Sign-up in other townships was: Blaine — 103 farms, 76 per cent, 1,669 acres; Boone — 87 farms, 72 per cent, 1,696 acres; Dayton — 76 farms, 61 per cent, 1,406 acres; Lake — 84 farms, 77 per cent, 1,693 acres.

Liberty — 71 farms, 61 per cent, 1,518 acres; Lincoln — 89 farms, 68 per cent, 1,742 acres; Troy — 77 farms, 62 per cent, 1,563 acres; Vernon — 87 farms, 72 per cent, 1,894 acres; Wall Lake — 84 farms, 78 per cent, 1,827 acres.

Garner gave the North Iowa conference excellent representation in the Class B track and field meet held at Faris Field last Saturday, winning the championship with 59½ points. CAL Community did a most respectable job of representing the North Star loop, too, with 26½ points and a 4th-place finish.

Eldora finished second with 50, Rockwell City third with 43 and following CAL came: North Central 19, Manson 18, Greene and Iowa Training (Eldora) 15, Buffalo Center 14, Nashua 12, Britt 8, Ackley-Geneva 7, Nora Springs 5, Clarksville 4, Sheffield 1.

Outstanding performer of the meet was Lon Cakerice of Eldora. In five attempts, without a miss, he won the high jump at 6-1¼; he took the low hurdles in :20.2; and he ran on the 1st-place mile relay team and runner-up 440 relay team.

Garner had only two individual winners, Dave Formanek in the 100 at :10.6 and Dennis McCabe in the mile with 4:50.8 time. But the Cardinals picked up three individual 2nds and claimed the champ's trophy in the two-mile and medley relays. Only in the 440 relay did they fail to place in the running events.

CAL had three individual champions — Bob Koenen with 19-2 in the long jump; Jerry Letzring in the fine time of :15.2 in the high hurdles; and Don Oleson with a 2:07.6 half mile.

Letzring also took 3rd in the shot put with a good heave of 49-5½ and 4th in the low hurdles in :21.2. Koenen tied for 5th in the 440 with a :56 performance. Coach Darrell Terpstra's mile relay team placed 4th in 3:51.7, winning the second heat.

Buffalo Center's two-mile quartet finished second behind Garner, a half second off the winner's time of 8:33.3. Oftendahl took third in the 880 in 2:08.5 and Costigan placed similarly in the 440 in :55.1.

Versatile Tom McDermott was Britt's only point-winner with 2nd in the pole vault at 10-6 and 4th in the high jump at 5-6.

5 NIC athletes on high school track honor roll

North Iowa conference schools have not been cutting much of a figure on the high school track and field honor roll that is issued weekly by Harry Borrell of the Iowa State university sports publicity staff. It lists a maximum of 10 athletes in each clas that have matched or surpassed certain standard performances in the various high school events.

Osage has three athletes mentioned, Belmond and Northwood each one.

Belmond's Terry Nelson last week was 4th among the Class A discus throwers with his best toss of 150-4½ and Tom Hartwig of Osage ranked two places farther down with 144-3½. Nelson also had the 6th best reported time in the 120-yard high hurdles at :15.6.

Loren Bechtum of Osage was tied for 5th best effort in the 180-yard low hurdles with a time of :21.0 in the Bronco Relays. Dean Hannam of Osage makes the shot put list with a 50-10 toss and Orville Hogen of Northwood with a toss of 50-3.

Eagle Grove was stamped as one of the states Class A powers with three individuals named and one relay team. Mark Blackman's 13-¾ in the pole vault is 2nd best in Class A. Larry Egemo is 4th in the shot put with a distance of 52-5½ and Bill Brauman wins broad jump mention with a leap of 21-4¼.

The Eagles' mile medley team had 5th best Class A time at 3:47.0 and the EG mile relay team missed by just one-tenth of a second with its Bronco Relays time of 3:36.4.

Bill Huisman of Goldfield was tied for 5th best time in he 100 at :10.3 and Goldfield's 440-yard relay team was rated 6th at :46.6.

Center picture shows Daryl Suntken taking a baton hand-off as Wartburg's 440-relay team matched a school record of :43.9 in a quadrangular meet Wednesday of last week in which the Knights defeated Wisconsin State of Platteville, William Penn and Upper Iowa. John Van Gerpen (right) also ran on the sprint relay team and in addition was winner of first place in both the high and low hurdles. Daryl is a son of the Ben Suntkens and John's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Van Gerpen.

Greenhouse wins championship in county Bowl-Down

Wright county's Cancer Crusade benefited to the amount of $363.50 as a result of the annual Cancer Bowl-Down, which was climaxed last Saturday night with the crowning of the Belmond Greenhouse teams as women's county champions and L & H Chevrolet of Dows as the men's champs. The bowl-off was at Hi-Hatt Lanes, Clarion.

Entry fees at Eagle Grove at 50 cents per contestant came to $146.50, at Belmond to $117, Clarion $54.50 and Dows $45 50. All of the proceeds go to the Cancer Crusade, as the county's bowling proprietors contributed the individual trophies awarded members of the championship teams.

Most of the members of the Greenhouse team bowled well over their averages as they posted game scores of 817-805-821 and added 22 handicap pins per line for a gross of 2,509. Alice Busick chalked up 524 actual pins, Judy McLaughlin 502, Olga Rogalla 501, Beulah Ahlstron 481 and Mary Gordon 435.

Second among the women's eight teams competing for the title was the Security Bank of Eagle Grove, which came through with a fine gross score of 892 in the final game for a total of 2,400 Belmond Greenhouse succeeded Courson Agency of Belmond as the women's county champions.

Members of the Dows team that took the men's title bowled over their season's averages, without exception, to win by more than 100 pins with a 3,130 series. Leader of the charge was Fred Sporaa, whose average series is a 417 but who blasted a 551 in the Bowl-Down.

Farmers Grain of Belmond knocked down 2,751 actual pins but had a handicap of only 252 to take second with 3,012. George Sharp tallied a 587, Jack Lobdell 567, Don Busick 546, Harry Nelson 536 and Roger Kinseth 515.

2 "late starters" winners of local Cancer Bowl-Down

Prospects of gaining a place in the Cancer Bowl-Down finals at Clarion on Sunday appeared mighty dim for the men's teams bowling the final shift of the week last Thursday evening. Boyington's team from Rowan already had an excellent 3,135 posted — and in the first shift Thursday, Kinseth Plumbing had chalked up a 3,127.

Nevertheless, two outfits in the Boardsplitters league (which has four-man teams) came through with tremendous performances in the last shift to claim the two Belmond spots in the Bowl-Down tournament that decides the men's and women's county team championships.

Farmers Grain amassed 2,639 pins on a 670 by Harry Nelson, 641 by Don Busick, 635 by George Sharp, 525 on a "blind" score and 168 handicap pins. Adding 25 per cent to arrive at a five-man score, the team got credit for a 3,297. McLaughlin Chevrolet, the opponents of Farmers Grain, lost three games but nevertheless wound up with a gross of 3,224 — led by Dr. A. M. Larson's 614 — to claim the No. 2 spot in the Cancer Bowl-Down.

One "four-man team in the women's leagues lost out on a chance to go for the county championship by failing to contribute 50 cents per bowler to the Cancer Crusade. Ann's Beauty Shop scored a series of 1,863, which with 25 per cent added would have produced a 2,329.

With the Meservey team ineligible for failure to enter, the women's representatives from Belmond were Belmond Greenhouse with 2,360 and Aldinger's Store of Alexander with a 2,307.

Qualify in seven events—

Broncos advance 6 to state meet

Belmond High qualified six men in seven events for the state Class A track meet as the Broncos placed third in the district meet held Friday afternoon and evening at Eagle Grove. A virtually certain eighth qualification was lost when Terry Nelson took a tumble in the 120-yard high hurdles and was eliminated from that event

Despite the bit of bad luck, the Belmond representation at Eagle Grove on Saturday of next week in the Class A state meet will be competing in more events than any Bronco state meet squad in a number of years.

It should be promptly mentioned that Nelson made amends for his failure in the high hurdles by earning his way to the state meet in two other events. He won the discus with a toss of 146 ft. 8½ in. and, despite a muscle pull received in the highs, he came back to qualify in the lows with a second place.

Belmond had three other two-time qualifiers in Bob Rise, Gary Meyers and Dallas Steenblock. In the 100, Rise was given his best time of :10.3 as he won the century dash and he placed second in the 220 with a :24-flat effort.

Both Meyers and Steenblock gave "iron man" exhibitions as they ran excellent half miles to win the two-mile relay quartet a state meet berth and then came back to earn second places in the 440 and 880, respectively, to achieve individual qualifications.

Although the Broncos placed third in the two-mile baton event, their time of 8:30.5 was better than the winner's in at least two other Class A district meets and thus earned them eilgibility for the state meet. Meyers gave Belmond a lead with a fine opening time of 2:03-plus and Steenblock anchored with 2:05-plus Mike Klinefelter traveled his 880 in something over 2:08 and Don Havens in 2:12 and a fraction.

With three events intervening, Meyers took a fling at the open 440 and although he ran in the slow heat against poor competition he posted a :54.2 that gave him second place over-all on a time basis.

Steenblock had a bit more time to rest before competing in the open 880, but anchored the 880-yard relay team to a 1:38.1 time after his stint in the two-mile event. He finished a very solid second in the open half-mile with the excellent time of 2:03.5.

Tim Roberts missed qualifying for the state meet in the long jump when he scratched on an effort of better than 21 feet. He took hird in the event with a distance of 20 ft. 3 in. Tim also tied for third in the high jump at 5-8.

Wayne Smith failed to make the state meet squad, but took fourth in the low hurdles, fifth in the 220 and led 'off he 440-yard relay foursome.

Belmond's 440-relay quartet earned a point toward the team score with its best time of the season, :46.9. Runners following Smith were Lance Campbell, Roberts and Rise. Forest City won the event in :46.0.

Other Bronco performances worthy of note included a :54-plus 440 by Campbell in anchoring the mile relay team; and 2:08-plus 880 by Don Goeman in finishing for the medley quartet; also Randy Turner's 4:59.9 effort in the mile, the first time the freshman runner has managed to sneak under 5:00.

Belmond finished a strong third among the dozen teams competing at Eagle Grove as the host Eagles easily took the championship with 77 points. Humboldt was second with 59. Belmond picked up 41½, followed by: Hampton 23, Forest City 22½, Iowa Falls 20, Sac City 18, Garrigan of Algona 11, Clarion and St. Edmond of Fort Dodge each 10, Emmetsburg four and Algona one.

Cockram defeated in county finals

Donna Cockram went to the finals of the recent Wright county women's bowling tournament at Eagle Grove before losing in the title match to Neola Billman of Clarion, 539-517. Bowling in all flights was on a handicap basis and scores given included the handicap pins.

Betty Suntken of Meservey, in the Bowl-Mor Lanes delegation, won the championship conslation bracket by defeating Marge Harnan of Eagle Grove, 527-520.

Other flight results involving Belmond league bowlers were 1st — Mary Gordon defeated Janyce Kinseth, 553-504; 4th — Ann Downing (Clarion) defeated Minnie Meints (Meservey), 545-512; 6th — Ethel Brunes defeated Ruth Suntken (Meservey), 559-474

Edge Indians for Relays title—

Crown to Broncs on squad strength

Relay strength that brought them trophies in four events could not suffice in the Forest City Indians' bid to upset the Belmond Broncos for the Class B championship in last week's Bronco Relays. The trouble was, Belmond won one of the other two baton events and placed second in all the other five.

Also helping to thwart the Indians' challenge was the fact that they managed to capture only one individual 1st place, while the Broncos picked up three.

Terry Nelson got two of the top spots, taking the discus and low hurdles, the other went to Tim Roberts in the high jump, when his leap of 5-8½ beat by an inch a Class B record he shared with Neal Waddington.

Two of Belmond's relay defeats came by very narrow margins. The Broncs were barely shaded by Rockford in the shuttle hurdles, having the same time of :50.2. Bob Rise took up a good deal of slack in his anchor battle with Ron Tannahill of Forest City in the 440 relay but the Broncos' time was a tenth of a second slower than the Indians'.

Event winners and Belmond placers were as follows: broad jump — Tom Barker (C) 20-1½, 2nd Roberts (Bel.) 19-10; shot put — Ken Groh (FC) 44-6¾, 4th Doug Mennenga (Bel.) 40-11½; discus — Nelson (Bel.) 140-7½; high jump — Roberts (Bel.) 5-8½; pole vault — Martin (C) 11-11, 2nd Doug Thompsen (Bel.) 11-0.

Two-mile relay — Belmond (Gary Meyers, Don Havens, Mike Klinefelter, Dallas Steenblock) 8:49.8; 880-yd relay — Forest City (Branstad, Clouse, Schleusner, Tannahill) 1:38.0, 2nd Belmond 1:38.2; shuttle hurdles — Rockford (Kelsey, Mohring Demary, Schweizer) :50.2, 2nd Belmond :50.2.

Medley relay — Forest City (Davis, Branstad, Groh, Johnson) 3:58.8, 2nd Belmond 4:03.0; 440-yd. relay — Forest City (Branstad, Clouse Schleusner, Tannahill) :47.1, 2nd Belmond :47.2; mile relay — Forest City (Schmidt, Davis, Clouse, Schleusner) 3:43.2, 2nd Belmond 3.44.5

Five of the nine records set during the evening were in Class A, three of them being chalked up by Osage entries. Dean Hannam pushed the shot 50-10 to wipe out Bob Whipple's 49-¼ mark; Tom Hartwig sailed the discus 144-3½, which was a 10-3½ improvement; and Loren Bechtum clipped the lows in :21.0, seven-tenths of a second under his own mark set last year.

Mark Blackman (EG) did 13 feet in the pole vault, five inches over the record he himself held; and Eagle Grove's mile relay quartet — Bruce Hill, Steve Hoath, Bob Taylor and Bill Brauman — nicked three-tenths of a second from the record with a 3:36.4 time. Brauman also anchored the Eagles to 1st in the two-mile relay and ran third leg on the winning 880 quartet, along with taking 2nd in the broad pump.

Clear Lake won the shuttle hurdles and medley relay as the Lions and Eagles monopolized the baton events.

Class B scoring was Belmond 85, Forest City 78½, Rockford 57, Clarion 39, St. Ansgar 21½, Britt 17. Class A scoring: Eagle Grove 90, Clear Lake 66, Osage 60, Garrigan of Algona 34, Algona High 23, St. Edmund's of Fort Dodge 22.

A review of Class C proceedings in the Bronco Relays will be found in the Kanawha section of this issue.

Example No. Umpteen-Eleventy-seven of the impracticality of trying to draft general legislation intended to fit all cases equally well is pointed up by the untenable situation into which small-town ambulance services have been plunged by the newest wage and hours provisions. Actually, the ambulance operators have — technically, at least — been exposing themselves to costly penalties for some time by continuing to serve their communities. They have now decided that they can no longer afford to take that risk.

Underlying the decision is the obvious fact that wage and hours provisions that might be reasonably applied to a full-time ambulance service operating in a metroplitan area are a killing proposition for a part-time service made available to a small community as an accommodation.

Running an ambulance service in town the size of Belmond — or several times larger — is simply not a profitable undertaking. As an adjunct of a funeral home, it may break even in a "good" year. But essentially, in small communities, it has been JUST that — a service rendered much more specifically to the community's benefit than to the operator's.

Now, faced with the necessity of paying stand-by drivers a minimum weekly wage simply to be "available," the ambulance owners in rural territories see no way to continue the service that they have traditionally provided for so many years.

It is with marked reluctance that the local ambulance operators face the necessity of joining others in Wright county in the intention of discontinuing service as of July 1.

Part-time or not, ambulance service is a very essential service, as no one recognizes better than the men who have been providing it. When a bad crash occurs on Highway 69 or elsewhere near-by — when a heart attack or other medical emergency calls for a quick trip to the hospital — when a patient critically requires the attention of specialists such as Mayo Clinic offers . . . there is need for ambulance service, HERE and NOW.

That explains why at least some of the ambulance operators who have tentatively agreed upon the July 1 deadline for discontinuance of service are at the same time resolved that a satisfactory substitute arrangement MUST be made in the meantime — or they will regard it as obligatory that they continue service until such an arrangement HAS been made.

Others, less concerned with their self-assumed obligation to the public than with their risk of costly liability under the wage and hours law, are ostensibly resolved that the deadline will be observed regardless of consequences.

The alternative to a privately conducted ambulance service does not readily present itself.

Legislation passed by the current Iowa General Assembly "permits" such service to be provided by local government. It would be costly for either the city or county government to undertake. Perhaps even more important, the safe handling of sick — and, particularly, injured — persons requires know-how. If even some doctors hesitate to lend aid to the injured at the scene of a highway accident at the risk of exposing themselves to liability, it can be appreciated that a volunteer fireman or other person untrained in proper handling of injured individuals might want no part of being an ambulance driver or attendant.

Some thought has been given to the possibilty that ambulance service might have to become an adjunct of hospital operation. Without fuller investigation, the feasibility of the suggestion cannot be evaluated.

But if the funeral homes are getting out of the ambulance business, SOMEONE else will HAVE to be getting into it. Prompt availability of an ambulance can often be a matter of life or death.

It is a problem that does not rest entirely with the funeral homes. It is one that warrants the deep concern of the public. There must be an answer, if it sought determinely enough. . . . In fact, there HAS to be.

Price is clear; what ARE we "buying" in Vietnam?

Last week in Vietnam a nameless elevation identified as Hill 881 was in the process of taking its place along with Porkchop Hill and Cemetery Ridge in the annals of American history as another mound of earth dearly won at the price of American lives. Basically, there was little difference in the operation from that which more than a century ago that found Cemetery Ridge at Gettysburg as the military objective.

It seems not to be popular to harbor any doubts as the whys and wherefors of the war now being waged in Vietnam — or the manner in which it is being fought. We are asked simply to accept that a civil skirmish which a few brief years ago involved the U. S. simply in an advisory capacity has "escalated" into a full-fledged war that before long will involve a half million American military personnel.

We are asked to believe that this huge military force represents the Dutch boy with his thumb in the dike; and that if the thumb is withdrawn, the tide of Communist domination will sweep over all of southeast Asia and roll on unhampered — until another thumb is thrust into another dike.

Maybe this is how it is. Certainly the young men fighting so bravely and laying down their lives on Hill 881 MUST have been convinced of it. SOMETHING is inspiring them to fight the good fight. Or do they not think beyond their orders for the day, refusing to conjecture on the purpose of their sacrifices lest the whole affair assume the appearance of a ghastly joke ON THEM?

Perhaps the whole hypothesis behind our military action in Vietnam is as sound as two-plus-two. Maybe it IS an inevitable confrontation with the totalitarian aims of Communism — and if it were not occurring now, in South Vietnam, it would be bound to take place another time at another place. Those — like ourself — perplexed as to the significance of Hill 881 can only hope that this is really so.

But to anyone who is not satisfied to accept complacently the necessity of an ever expanding engagement, as reasoned by our military leaders, the whole situation has a painful resemblance to a Pandora's box flung ruthlessly open.

Where we once sat cautiously on the lid, in an "advisory" capacity, we now see the evil contents irretrievably unleashed. We can only hope and pray that the perspective of history will prove the necessity and wisdom of it all. That, alone, will make the price paid for Hill 881 a reasonable one; not to mention the continuing price to be exacted in months and years that lie ahead.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

Head-on encounters with the biggest of the major issues occurred in both the House and Senate since my last report. In the House, the subject was property tax relief; in the Senate it was education and government reorganization.

The Republican-controlled House started with a broad bill to sharply increase state aid to education to relieve the burden on real estate taxes. But the title of the bill was deliberately left wide open so that proposals dealing with various kinds of property tax relief could be debated.

To further allow full debate, the House formed itself into a committee of the whole, which allows free discussion and non-binding votes on amendments. In this way the House hopes to come up with a property tax relief measure which has wide support.

THE BASIC BILL WHICH AT this time is receiving the most support is known as the Petersen plan. Its calls for a new concept of state aid to local school districts. Under the plan, it was estimated that the state would be paying an average of 41 per cent of local school costs. At present in Iowa the state pays only about 13 per cent of school costs. The national average is about 40 per cent.

The Petersen plan provides for the creation of a larger district (which would be essentially on county lines) and makes provision for this district to draw up a budget for all the schools within it and levy a tax on property to pay 40 per cent of the costs.

THE STATE WOULD RETURN to this new, larger district, 40 per cent of the income tax collected within that area. The property tax monies and the income tax money so generated would be distributed to the local districts to pay for local school costs. The state would determine the statewide average per-pupil costs of educating each student and after applying the funds raised by a property tax levy equal to 40 per cent of the budget and applying the funds generated by a return of 40 per cent of the income tax, would then guarantee sufficient additional state funds to pay 85 per cent of this amount.

THIS MONEY WOULD COME from a state equalization fund. Any additional local needs would have to come from an additional local property tax levy.

The funds to finance the Petersen plan would come from increases in other taxes, such as sales, personal and corporate income, and intangibles. The Petersen plan recognizes that Iowa's tax structure is based too heavily on property, and that the time for doing something about it is long overdue. The final result is not yet known, but action is underway.

THE SENATE RETURNED TO its debate on the controversial area vocational-technical and community college system, and reached an agreement, 56-3. The final vote on a compromise plan would create a separate division under the State Board of Public Instruction to oversee the administration of the schools.

The bill also appropriates $4.5 million to help see the schools through current financial problems, which raised the controversey in the first place. The proposal also puts state aid payment on a current basis, rather than having the aid paid after the school year is over.

THE NUMBER OF ALLOWABLE schools under the plans was reduced from 20 to 17, allows the area boards to set tuition rates at no more than $150 a semester for Iowa students, and establish tighter budgeting practices.

Enroute to adoption of this plan, three other approaches were rejected. One called for a new board to oversee the schools, another sought to place the area schools under the jurisdiction of the Board of Regents, and a third advocated splitting the vocational-technical schools away from the community colleges, and turning the latter back to the local communities if they wanted them. The approved bill now goes to the House.

THE SENATE ALSO PASSED, and sent to the House, a bill abolishing the present three-member State Tax Commission and replacing it with a one-man director of revenue. Several other bills passed along with the reorganization measure centralize the collection of all money within the director of revenue's department.

On Thursday the Senate passed its second major governmental reorganization bill. By a vote of 52-5, the Senate approved a bill which merges the present state board of control, department of social welfare, state parole board and several minor agencies into one large department. The new agency would be known as the department of social services.

THE AIM OF THE BILL IS similar to all other governmental reorganization measures — to streamline Iowa's government so it can operate more efficiently and economically. A study made within the last two years called for Iowa's 120 agencies and departments to be merged into 13 larger agencies.

Thus far, the Senate has approved a reorganization of the tax commission and the latest action.

Capitol News Letter

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS—

Although the legislative pace has picked up, much work remains to be done before the lawmakers can call it a session. The most important item on the legislative agenda is what to do about taxes. Many proposals are floating around the legislative chambers, but whether any of these will be passed remains to be seen. There is a clamor for abolishing the personal property tax on livestock and business inventories and also to revamp state aid to schools.

Gov. Harold Hughes, serving his third term, says if there is to be any modification in our tax structure there should be a "total plan." Hughes emphasized that he is neither supporting nor opposing any particular tax plan.

"WHAT I'M TALKING ABOUT is a more permanent solution once this adjustment (to correct tax inequities) is made. With the increase in our growth and economy it ought to be a solution for the next 30 years on what the state's needs are in every area."

But the governor, in his usual candor, questioned whether a "total plan" could be passed at a regular session of the legislature. He said it's possible, "but it would be mighty close to a miracle if it were."

ASKS HIGHER TUITION—

Hey Dad, there's a new approach to financing the kid's college education. Rep. Maurice Van Nostrand (Rep., Avoca) wants to increase tuition at the three state schools — Iowa, Iowa State and State College of Iowa — so that resident students pay 30 per cent and non-residents pay 65 per cent of the instructional costs.

Van Nostrand contends that at the University of Iowa, at Iowa City, resident students are paying only 19 per cent of the instructional costs. If Van Nostrand's idea is adopted, this would mean an increase in tuition at Iowa of $172 next year for resident students. The present tuition is only $278 a year.

Tied to this proposal, however, is a plan to set aside revenue gained from the tuition grants at the three state schools and use it to guarantee student loans on a large scale.

IT'S ESTIMATED THAT NEARly $12 million could be raised through this tuition increase during the next two years. Van Nostrand says $6 million of state money will generate $60 million in student loans. For every guaranteed $1 the banks will put up $10.

This money would be channeled through the United Student Aid Fund, Inc., a private organization created by the federal government to provide student loans. The student borrows money at no interest while in school. The federal government will pay up to six per cent interest on these loans. An undergraduate can borrow up to $1,000 a year for five years.

END OF TAX COMMISSION?—

For a long time now, politicians and others have been talking about governmental reorganization. One oft-repeated proposal has been to abolish the present three-member tax commission and replace it with a single administrator. The governor, at the direction of the last legislature, had a study made on state's 126 agencies. Among the recommendations of the Public Administration Service (PAS), a Chicago firm, was one to abolish the tax commission.

The Senate in a major reorganization step has voted to adopt this recommendation. The vote was something of a surprise, 57 to 4. Many thought there would be more opposition to this change. The present tax commissioners would go out of office next January and the director would be appointed by the governor. The job is expected to pay between $25,000 and $30,000. The measure now goes to the House.

STILL NO DEATH PENALTY—

Four years ago one of the most controversial bills in the legislature was one to abolish capital punishment. The bill was enacted into law. This session a group of House members decided to introduce a bill to impose the death penalty for killing a police officer. This triggered a sometimes heated debate over capital punishment. The bill was defeated 66 to 54.

STATE TV SYSTEM—

After two days' debate, the Senate has voted 38 to 23 to establish a statewide educational radio and television system and a new state department of communications Although the bill contains no appropriation, another bill is pending in the legislature to appropriating in the legislature to appropriate $3 million to get the system started. Opponents charged that eventually the system may cost $15 million.

NO PHOTO MONEY—

There were indications that Gov. Harold Hughes would veto a bill passed by the legislature to require color photos on drivers' licenses. He did. One reason was the cost. Hughes said it would cost between $500,000 and $1 million a year to put color photos on the licenses.

He also raised a number of other questions. For example, how would servicemen who are serving out of the state get their licenses? The bill had strong support from retailers, who said it would be a help to identify check-cashers.

Twenty-second chosen for honor—

Minnie Mennenga selected "Mother of Year"

• • •

MRS. MINNIE MENNENGA

Twenty-second in the series of "Mothers of the Year" selected by the publishers of The Independent is Mrs. Minnie Mennenga. The "Mother of the Year" for 1967 reached the age of 91 last Jan. 3rd.

At this advanced age she has just about as impressive credentials for motherhood recognition as could be required. All of the eight children born to her and her late husband, Heiko H. Mennenga, are living; and her direct descendants now include 23 grandchildren and 42 great grandchildren.

Although an invalid in recent months due to a circulatory ailment that make its very difficult for her to walk, Mrs. Mennenga still lives in her own home at 412 Fourth avenue NE. Cecilia Holtzbauer is her day-and-night companion during the week. From Friday night through Sunday night, members of the family divide time with her so she is not alone.

Still alert at age 91

This serves a double purpose, providing her with what assistance she might need and giving her ample opportunity to have "family" about her — in which she takes much delight.

Minnie is an alert lady, for all her years. She enjoys knitting, reads quite a bit — mainly from religious publications, and finds pleasure in favorite radio programs. She does not have a television set, because she has flatly forbidden the children to buy one for her.

She was born in Germany on Jan. 3, 1876, and emigrated to this country when a young woman of 17 or 18 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reint Boelman. The family settled at Meservey and she has spent all of her lifetime since in the Meservey-Belmond area.

Was married in 1895

On Feb. 19, 1895, she was married to Heiko H. Mennenga and they had the privilege of celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary together more than two years before his death in June of 1957. They farmed for about 40 years before retiring during the depression period of the middle thirties and moving to town.

Besides raising their own eight children, the Mennengas took into their home a niece in her early babyhood and gave her the same love and care as their own brood. The child of a brother of Heiko's, Jeannette, who today is Mrs. Jelto Boelman, cherishes her foster mother fully as much as her "brothers" and "sisters".

Mrs. Mennenga's sons and daughters are: Magdalene, the widow of Walt Braner; Grace (Mrs. D. A.) Pals, Henry, Rena (Mrs. Andrew) Pals, Al, George, Edwin and Carl. All have continued to make Belmond their home, with the exception of Edwin, who lives in Chicago.

She saw chores were done

Her children agree that their father left the immediate responsibility for family discipline up to their mother — and that she did a competent job of it. Each child had his or her tasks to look after, as MUST be the case in a large family, and "Mother" saw to it that those tasks were performed.

That Minnie was not a severe taskmaster, despite her efficiency in seeing that chores were promptly and satisfactorily done, is made very apparent by the deep affection in which she is held by all the children.

Looking after a family of such a size did not leave Mrs. Mennenga with time to cultivate "hobbies" that were not essential to operation of the home and did not contribute to meeting its needs.

Took pleasure in knitting

But knitting, even if it were to the purpose of producing mittens, scarves and other necessities, was an enjoyed "pastime" of evenings when other work had been completed.

Minnie was also a gardener on a rather ambitious scale. She loved to make things grow, and was good at it. Not only did the garden provide table provender "in season," but it also supplied the contents of hundreds of jars or vegetables and fruits that were important to the family larder during the rest of the year.

Baking also claimed some hours of "housekeeping time" each week, not only to turn out such goodies as cookies, pies and cakes, but the family's bread supply as well. The children recall that the preparation of daily school lunches was no small undertaking; and that their lunch boxes were always plentifully and appetizingly filled.

Immanuel church member

Busy though she was kept with her household duties, Mrs. Mennenga always found time to talk over the childrens' problems and give help or advice when either were needed.

A long-time member of the Immanuel Reformed church, Minnie has always had an important place in her life for religion. During her more active years, she was a willing worker in church affairs and views with some dismay the obstacle that her recent disability represents in "getting around" to church activities.

The Independent's publishers take much satisfaction in having so deserving a claimant for this year's selection as "Mother of the Year." She has earned the accolade, as not only her children but her great host of friends will readily vouch.

Farmers urge assembly: get taxes revised now!

Firm requests for action in this session on tax revision to reduce the heavy burden on property taxes were sent recently to Wright county's state representative and state senator by a Wright county rural group.

Willis Kuecker, Wright county Farm Bureau president, said more than 20 farmers attended a meeting in which letters were sent to Rep. Ray Bailey and Sen. Hugh Clarke. He added that many other farmers are being contacted and urged to express their views on the need for a change in the Iowa tax structure.

"We hope that others in the county who agree that this is the session where action must be taken will also write to the legislators," said the Farm Bureau leader.

The action program, he emphasized, is not to support any specific tax revision proprosal but to stress to the legislators that Iowa farmers and other property taxpayers can no longer stand the year-after-year spiral in property taxes.

He stated that the legislators have discussed this issue for at least 10 years. "The time for talking is past . . . it is time for action."

There is presently a bill before the House that can be used as a vehicle for legislation on tax revision and the legislators should show their concern on this important issue to the state by taking positive action soon, he added.

Farmers are insisting that the legislators do not adjourn this session until they have taken appropriate action to provide substantial property tax relief, Kuecker said.

He declared, "We are willing to support raising revenue in several different ways and distributing these funds in different methods. But we can no longer bear the inequitable burden of property taxes."

County sheepmen receive incentive pay from ASCS

The Wright county Agricultural and Conservation committee announces that Wright county producers have received $12,275 in incentive payments for wool and unshorn lambs sold in 1966. Payment was made last week to the 379 persons in the county who applied for incentive payments based on the 1966 marketing year.

Payment rates for 1966 were 24.8 per cent of the dollar sales for shorn wool and 52 cents per hundredweight for unshorn lambs. These rates were determined by the USDA as the rates needed to bring the national average wool price of 52.1 cent per pound up to the incentive level of 65 cents per pound which was established for the national wool program.

Under an agreement approved last year by the nation's wool and lamb growers, deductions of 1½ cents per pound for shorn wool and 7½ cents per hundredweight for unshorn lambs were set aside for advertising and promotions.

The National Wool Act was first established in 1954 to encourage the production of wool in this country.

In tests at the Twin City Testing and Engineering Laboratory, Inc., loads in excess of 20,000 pounds were successfully applied to the top surface of this vault. That severe stress was 300 per cent over the maximum encountered in burial conditions. Joining this proven sturdiness and the durability of fiberglass composition, the hermetic sealing process is applied to weld the entire vault into one airtight, waterproof unit.

Our vaults are available in a variety of attractive, dignified shades. No mere surface finish, the intrinsic built-in color has beautiful depth that is not vulnerable to marring. The specially elite Eterna Mausolea, pride of our line, is a vault of unusual distinction.

This week we salute the more than 40 young people who took part in the annual recital of the Forest City School Of Dance last Saturday Evening. Included in the presentation were the ballet excerpts from the famed "Swan Lake." A typical group are these acrobatic performers: holding their hats are Janet Nielsen and Kerry Langerud; middle row includes Kerry Schnebly, Kirby Schnelby and Joyce Nelson; lower row include Jeffery Wing, Kathleen Wing, Rose Marie Keough, Valerie Swanson and Ricki Srock.

You may be surprised . . . but it's the girl at the photo copy machine. She's making an extra copy of an invoice . . : at eight to ten cents a copy plus her time. Now, copying machines are just fine. But this particular problem could have been solved for a fraction of a cent . . . with a 4-part invoice instead of the 3-part set she's always used. If she has to make 10-cent invoices very often . . . she's wasting your money.

Just one example of why it's important to review your printed forms from time to time.

We'll be happy to help you update them. Not just your invoices . : . but your purchase orders, sales orders, statements . . . all your office forms. Call us today.

The Belmond Independent

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL 43 NO. 34 · OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER · WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1967 · OFFICIAL CITY PAPER · 8 PAGES THIS SECTION · 16 PAGES AND SUPPLEMENT

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

After publication last week that the Wilbur Lieberknecht home is the only "Gold Medallion Home" in town, we received objections from several sources on the grounds that the dwelling occupied by John Halfpap holds a similar distinction. We were right — and we were wrong.

We were right that it IS presently the ONLY "Gold Medallion Home" in Belmond; but wrong in stating it was the first. When Harvey Harberts built the residence Mr. Halfpap now owns, it WAS qualified for the medallion.

But for eligibility, a home must have electricity as its ONLY source of heat, lighting and power. Seems that Harvey had a gas line run into the house to serve a space heater, and "ruint" the house's qualification. Sounds as if GMH designation is harder to keep than a good reputation!

If, on some dark night, Ye Ed is found prone in a back alley with a knife of sufficient length protruding from between his shoulder blades — the first step to be taken is to determine where Maurice Fahrney was at the time of the crime. And if he WASN'T home, we ask that the matter be pursued no farther. No prosecution, please. You've heard of justified homicide?

In plenty of time for last week's issue, Maurice brought us in the dope for a story on his concert (junior and senior bands, along with the junior high chorus) at 8:00 p. m. Wednesday of this week — last night, sad to say.

We praised him for his promptness; and three or four times were at the point of converting his notes into a story, only to be diverted from the task. When Maurice called up after the paper came out, and asked, "Where was it?", we were left without a case. Saddest of all, this is about the THIRD time we've so victimized him. We can hardly blame him for beginning to suspect a "plot."

Speaking of protruding knives, we were in the audience of 250 or 300 that braved the deluge of Wednesday night, last week, to take in the BHS spring play, "Out of the Frying Pan." . . . It was worth it. . . . Lynn Sorum has a remarkable knack for extracting fine performances from his young Thespians; and a considerable amount of genuine talent is exhibited in the process.

While a number of the performances especially impressed us (there wasn't a poor one in the lot, for that matter), we took particular delight in Deb Misner's portrayal of "a dumb blonde." For a gal who's habitually on the honor roll, that HAD to be acting of the first water.

Glen and Mack Gabrielson always seem to be having a ball, when on the stage; and their joy in their work infiltrates the audience. That Steve Courson always seems himself, even while immersing himself in his role, suggests he's a gentleman of many facets. Jerry Boelman, Luanne Paule, Sue Thompson, Gloria Porter, Ed Dana, Larry Sorenson, Dudley Thompson — every one earned a bouquet.

That leaves two names unmentioned. On Wednesday night, Delores Hauge played "the landlady" in excellent fashion. We understand that Nancy Smith did just as capably on Tuesday. They shared the role, because Nancy was among the mumps-smitten Rowanites while the play was in rehearsal, and Delores was drafted for the part — just in case. Since the play fortunately was scheduled for two nights and Nancy was by then "available," each got a chance to show her talents . . . and came through like a "pro."

We received a little while back from the Stanley Shahans, now living in Las Vegas, an issue of the Las Vegas Sun which carried a three-colum picture of them with a copy of the Jaycees' tornado book plus an interview with the former Belmond couple.

In the picture, they are showing two of the album pages that reprinted headlines concerning the tornado that appeared in metropolitan newspapers — including one from the Sun, itself.

Stanley and Edith say they look forward to the regular Monday morning arrival of The Independent; and after they've read it, they pass it on to the Earl Hammerslands (Mrs. H. is Bill Dempsey's sister, and for a time Earl was in the electrical business here).

It was embarrassing! Earl Mullins, Goldfield school istructor, was shooting blanks for a student in the high school gym who was practicing track starts last Thursday. When the lad had had "enough," the teacher emptied the pistol. Then he picked up what he thought was one of the empty shells, replaced it in the gun and gave the cylinder a spin. Then he looked to see what sort of audience was left in the vicinity.

"Now," he said to a couple of youths standing near at hand, "we're going to play Russian roulette."

He put the gun to the right side of his head, pulled the trigger, and "Pow!" It was a darned good thing it was a blank, because the shell WASN'T empty; and Mr. M. went to see the doc regarding a fried ear lobe. Deputy Bob Shaw investigated the next day. His report said: "Talked to subject. He was aware of his mistake and I saw no reason to add anything — so I told him to be careful, and left.

ATTEND CONFIRMATION

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bloemke and family spent the weekend in Wayzata, Minn., with Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Schultz and Larry. They attended Larry's confirmation services Sunday morning. Mrs. Bloemke was a sponsor for Larry.

Council gives approval to change in road tax

A resolution was passed by the Belmond city council Monday night expressing that body's approval of the move to alter the present division of Iowa road use tax funds so that cities and towns will receive 15 instead of 13 per cent. The action will be made known to local representatives in the General Assembly for their consideration when the matter comes up for a vote.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found remarks of the Wright County Farm Bureau on the subject. The suggested redivision would reduce the share to secondary roads from 30 to 28 per cent, which rural taxpayers in general do not favor.

The councilmen approved a suggestion by City Clerk Lois Hammond that $8,000 on hand in special assessment street tax funds be invested in a certificate of deposit until needed for payment of bonds.

Another Monday action found the council approving the election of Bill Dirks as a member of the volunteer fire department, replacing Leland Jenison, who has resigned.

Assignment of Tony Ennen, dump superintendent, to do some leveling work on the city park grounds was okayed by the council.

It was noted that the city street crew has in the past week or so been scarifying oil-surfaced streets in town that were badly broken down by heavy machine traffic following the tornado. New oil will be applied to provide reasonably dust-free surfaces as soon as the weather is favorable.

Closing functions for grade school students mapped

Owen Bateson, elementary principal, announces that all dates have been fixed for grade school end-of-the-year activities, which will start Thursday of next week with kindergarten graduation ceremonies for the afternoon class at Ramsay school at 10:00 a. m. and for the Goodell class at 1:30 p. m.

At 3:30 p. m. the same day, the annual party for School Safety Patrol personnel drawn from the 5th and 6th grades will be held under auspices of the peace officers. The highway patrol this year will be responsible for providing refreshments and presenting awards.

Friday of next week at 10:00 a. m. the Ramsay morning kindergarten class will have its graduation program. Open house will be held from 1:00 to 3:00 p. m. at the Ramsay kindergarten room for all tots who will be enrolled there in the fall. Rowan's kindergarten graduation will be at 1:30 p. m.

There will be no school on Monday, May 29, for elementary pupils (or for junior high and high school students) as that has been set aside as a work day on which the teachers will be preparing final reports and making out report cards.

"No school" will also be the order of the day on Tuesday, May 30 — Memorial Day; but regular classes will take up at 9:00 a. m. the day following for the purpose of handing out report cards. School busses will return the rural children to their homes a half hour later.

LEAVES FOR CALIFORNIA

Did you "order" album? Go get it

With appearance of the second printing of Jaycee tornado albums on sale last Saturday, the Jaycees are finding it difficult to determine where they stand due to reserve orders that have not been picked up.

Dick Bloemke says, "A number of business places are holding reserved copies as requested between printings of the album. The Jaycees would appreciate it if persons asking that copies be held for them would pick them up now."

Such reservations will have to be disregarded, within the next few days, so the Jaycees can make an accurate estimate of whether they should contemplate another printing of the albums.

GOLFERS TROUNCE DOWS

Dudley Thompson was medalist with a 38, followed by Don Havens with a 39. Other Bronco scores were a 42 for Lee Gordon and 43 for Doug Thompsen, Playing as alternate, Steve Courson also posted a 43.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson of Mount Horeb, Wis., were Wednesday overnight guests in the Leland Dorr home.

Jaycees struggle and bring forth a president — after 13th ballot

Belmond's Jaycees, who take their politics right seriously, struggled through to the election of a new president Monday evening — requiring 13 ballots to get the job done.

Larry Flanagan, the president-elect who will take office July 1, will succeed Terrell Baker, who won the office a year ago on the seventh ballot. Flanagan's opponents were Dwight Beavers and Dennis Pastour.

Beavers withdrew after the 10th ballot, but write-in votes prevented Flanagan from reaping the necessary 14 out of 27 votes cast until the 13th go-around.

With that matter settled, the remainder of the election proceeded without incident. First vice presidency went to Beavers, who lost the presidency to Baker a year ago; and the second vice presidency to Gary Garvin.

Lynn Sorum will be the new secretary; and another BHS teacher, Bob Gray, treasurer.

Elected as directors were: Vernon McLaughlin, who will also serve as the local Jaycee chapter's director on the state board; Bruce Schroeder, Tom Hill and Dennis Pastour.

Sharp re-elected head of bowlers

George Sharp was re-elected president of the Belmond Bowling association as members of the men's leagues at Bowl-Mor Lanes gathered there Monday evening for the annual business meeting of the association.

Gary Gabrielson was also renamed as vice president. Arlo Stoltenberg was elected to serve in the position of secretary-treasurer when the incumbent, Vern Dippel, declined to be a candidate for that office.

Chosen as directors from out-of-town were: Vic Nordman, Meservey; Edgar Mayhew, Goodell; Jack Freese, Rowan, to succeed Don Mathiason; and John Schulte, Alexander, to succeed Rev. Larry Arends.

Prize money and trophies earned during the season just ended were awarded to the bowlers and teams who had won them.

It was voted to pay Vern Dippel a full year's salary of $150 for the services rendered the association after Maynard Holmgaard had been unable to carry on the secretary-teasurer's duties after being injured in the tornado.

To recognize what work he had done prior to mid-October and loyal service to the association in previous years, a payment of $50 was voted to Mr. Holmgaard.

Pool will open on 3rd of June

With Bob Davis, former BHS vocal music director now teaching at Boone, as manager Luick Memorial Swimming Pool will be open for use on Saturday, June 3, according to present plans. Should unseasonably cold weather make opening on this date impractical, the pool will open on the first "nice" day thereafter.

Since the pool water has been heated for the past several years, weather is not the factor it once was — but a "too cold" day is still "too cold."

Season tickets are available at the office of City Clerk Lois Hammond at the same prices as a year ago: family $12.50, adult $6.00, high school student $5.00 and grade school, $4.00. Single admissions are: adults 35 cents (50 cents on Sunday); high school, 25 cents; grade school, 15 cents.

VAN GERPEN SCORES WELL

John Van Gerpen earned nearly a third of Wartburg's 32 points in the annual Iowa conference track and field meet meet held last Saturday at Dubuque. The former BHS star nosed out the defending champion in the 220-yard low hurdles, his team mate Jack Fistler, winning the event in :24.7, and took second in the high hurdles to account for 10 of the Knights' total.

ON SOCIAL WELFARE BOARD

Walt Weidemann, supervisor from District 4, has been named a member of the county board of social welfare on a pro tem basis. The Dows man takes the place of Supervisor Wendell Duitscher, Clarion, while the latter is recovering from recent brain surgery.

Morris completes 45-day furlough

SP4 Dwight Morris on Wednesday of last week concluded a 45-day furlough spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Morris, and took a plane from Mason City to report back to Fort Dix., N. J., for reassignment.

He had been on leave since returning to the States in late March from a year's duty in Vietnam. He was assigned to a Hawk missile crew near Bein Hoa.

SP4 DWIGHT MORRIS

A '64 graduate of BHS, Dwight enlisted in the Army not long after his graduation and has only about 5½ months still to serve in uniform.

He had asked for assignment to Germany, but because of the short time he has remaining he was told he'd have to re-enlist to draw foreign duty. Dwight decided he would settle for domestic duty for the rest of his "hitch."

Jennie Hammond funeral services held on Friday

Mrs. Jennie Hammond, who had lived almost all of her 83 years in Belmond, died early Wednesday morning of last week at Belmond Community hospital after a several months' period of failing health.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. M. L. Jones officiating and Johnston Funeral Home in charge. Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Pallbearers were Carroll Bamford, George Christenson, Alex Zeiger, Stanley Moe, Hale Mason and Ben Heginger.

Jennie Sorenson was born here on May 23, 1883, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Sorenson. She graduated from Belmond High school and later attended Upper Iowa university at Fayette.

She taught school for some years before her marriage on Dec. 24, 1904, to Homer Hammond. They farmed near Belmond for two years, then made their home in Montana for 11 years. At the end of that period they returned to Belmond, which was thereafter their home. Mr. Hammond died in 1963.

Two sons were born to the Hammonds. One, Harley, preceded his parents in death in 1941; the other, LeRoy, lives at Estherville. Mrs. Hammond also was preceded in death by two sisters.

210 kids enjoy jaunt to circus

Approximately 210 youngsters attending 6th grade in the Belmond school system and other schools of this vicinity were guests of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce last Saturday at a performance of the Shrine Circus at Des Moines.

Five buses, plus some accompanying cars and escort supplied by the sheriff's office, made the trip to Veterans Auditorium — and the customary "grand time" was reported by all.

Included in the party, besides Belmond, Goodell and Rowan children, were students from the Kanawha public school and Christian Reformed parochial school, Meservey-Thornton and CAL Community systems.

Secretary Ellis Elliott reports a surplus of chaperones volunteered to go and expressed the hope that none of the adults were disappointed because their welcome offers to help ran to too many in number.

RECOGNITION TO LANELL

LaNell Bailey, '63 graduate of Belmond Community High school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bailey of Rowan, this week was cited at a special Honors Convocation held at Wartburg college, Waverly. A senior in music education, LaNell received recognition for special achievement as a member of the Wartburg choir.

Conference talk by Miriam Gowdy

Mrs. R. H. (Miriam) Gowdy, as Iowa State Hospital Auxiliary leader, will be featured speaker on the program of the Upper Midwest Hospital conference May 24-26 at Minneapolis.

Her appearance on the auxiliary program will be Friday of next week, May 26, when she will have has her topic, "You Can Take It With You."

On the preceding Wednesday she will serve as moderator of a Power Panel which will discuss membership recruitment plans that have proved successful at various hospitals.

More than 7,000 persons are expected to attend the various occupational sections of the 20th annual meeting of the Upper Midwest Hospital conference in Convention Hall at Minneapolis.

DIANA, MERRI INITIATED

Two Belmond Community High school alumnae last Saturday at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls, were initated into Epsilon Mu chapter of Alpha Delta Pi, national sorority. They were Diana Andrews and Merri Bamford.

SBA MAN HERE MAY 23RD

A representative of the Small Business Administration will be at the First State bank on Tuesday, May 23, for interviews in regard to tornado disaster loans.

DR. WILLIAM F. BERNER

Title I program drastically cut

Under reduced financing available via Title I funds this year, Belmond Community School district will have to reduce its developmental summer reading program to just two weeks, according to Principal Owen Bateson. Last year, the program extended through six weeks.

There will be no program this time for junior and senior high school students who need assistance in developing reading skills. The classes will be limited to youngsters in grades one through six.

Mr. Bateson says classes will consist of not more than nine pupils per teacher, with the present plan being to hire nine remedial reading instructors for the two-week period.

Classes, including Rowan and Goodell as well as Belmond youngsters, will begin June 19 and end June 30, starting each morning at 8:45 o'clock and concluding at 11:15. Transportation from rural areas will be provided.

Parents whose children will have an opportunity to take part in the program will be notified.

"Twister" funds may go to bank

Mrs. E. J. Elliott reports having received inquiries, as local Red Cross disaster chairman, regarding a fund for the assistance of families who recently suffered extensive tornado damage to property in the Northwood-Manly area of Worth county and in the vicinity of Albert Lea, Minn.

A gesture of sympathy for the Worth countians was made by the city of Belmond when a truck accompanied by workers was sent there to assist with clean-up.

Luin Cox has agreed to have the First State bank receive any cash contributions that people of Belmond might wish to make to help these areas. Mrs. Elliott and her husband have made a $5 donation. Others will be welcomed, and channelled through the Red Cross to help with disaster relief.

WRONG IDENTIFICATION

In the Mother-of-the-Year story in last week's issue of The Independent on Mrs. Minnie Mennenga, an error was inadvertantly made in identification of one of her daughters. Magdalene, it should have correctly noted, is the widow of Wessel Braner. The Independent offers its apology for the mistake.

It marked a return to former haunts when Dr. William F. Berner, who will be BHS commencement speaker next Wednesday evening, was elected last year as president of North Iowa Area Community college at Mason City.

A native of Mason City, he had received most of his elementary and secondary education there before completing high school at Charles City and receiving his diploma from the high school there.

BHS groups vote on new officers for coming year

Doug Thompsen is doffing "two hats" as a result of elections lately conducted at BHS to select new officers of the Student Council, National Honor Society and B club. The popular senior is retiring president of the NHS and the lettermen's organization, being replaced in those respective posts by Kermit Bohning and Don Havens.

Other officers elected by the National Honor Society were: Eugene Pals, vice president; Luanne Paule, secretary; and Rae Jean Willey, treasurer.

In the B club election Monday night, the entire officer slate was monopolized by Gabrielsons except for the new president, Havens. Glen Gabrielson was named vice president; Joel, secretary; and Mack, treasurer.

Glen Gabrielson will be doubling in brass, for he is also the new president of the BHS Student Council, the retiring incumbent being Charles Christenson.

Also elected to council offices were: Mack Gabrielson (that name again!), vice president; and Deb Misner, secretary-treasurer. Chosen as carry-over members of the council to form a nucleus for next fall with the officers-elect were: Paul Bamford, junior; Preston Kessler, sophomore; and Lenny Johnson, freshman.

They took the Class C division at the Eagle Grove Relays and the Class B crowns at Humboldt's Wildcat Relays and the 10th annual Bronco Relays here. In addition, this year's crop of thinclads broke three school records and four North Iowa conference marks. Six of the boys pictured above will be competing in the state Class A track meet at Eagle Grove this Saturday to conclude the season.

ALL-OUT Yielders

Pioneer's New Generation hybrids make the most of today's corn growing advances

Pioneer offers you a New Generation of hybrids—exceptional performers to fit your specific corn growing needs.

These varieties are especially suited to top-level farming where high fertility, weed and insect control, and top-level management open the way to new yield goals.

Supplies of these top performers won't meet the demand. See me soon for hybrids that can help you get all-out yields.

A reminder to all customers of the savings they can make on each extra bag of corn picked up during the planting season. If the customer picks up only part of his order early, or needs extra corn, he can save $1.10 per bag, or more, on each extra unit. So come back to me for those extra units needed and you will have the best hybrid selection for those extra acres.

You may be surprised . . . but it's the girl at the photo copy machine. She's making an extra copy of an invoice . . . at eight to ten cents a copy plus her time. Now, copying machines are just fine. But this particular problem could have been solved for a fraction of a cent . . . with a 4-part invoice instead of the 3-part set she's always used. If she has to make 10-cent invoices very often . . . she's wasting your money.

Just one example of why it's important to review your printed forms from time to time.

We'll be happy to help you update them. Not just your invoices . . . but your purchase orders, sales orders, statements . . . all your office forms. Call us today.

KELLY GREEN, JIM PETERSON WITH CONCRETE ITEMS

Carlson declares concrete making "hardest" subject BHS provides

While his students find the subject "hard" — true enough — Keith adds, with a grin, that they also find it highly useful because concrete finds a whole host of applications on today's farms. Working with concrete also develops talents that are applicable to numerous job opportunities in this area, he notes.

Methods of instruction he employs are based on a combination of theory and application.

First, a study is made of the selection of satisfactory aggregate, proper mixing and placing of concrete. These theories are checked by actual casting of concrete in the ag-mechanics laboratory.

Such articles as splash blocks (to go beneath eaves spouts), hog troughs and concrete slats for livestock buildings are made. Also, the boys turn out concrete cores using five, six and seven-gallon mixes.

These cores are air-cured, water-cured, or frozen; and their strength is measured at seven, 14, 21 and 28-day intervals. These tests enable the students to determine, by their own research, the best methods to use in concrete construction.

Margaret Downs, Jerry Steenblock repeated vows at Trinity church

Miss Margaret Jane Downs of Clarion, daughter of Mrs. Naomi Downs of Clarion and Grover H. Downs of St. Paul, Minn., became the bride of Jerry W. Steenblock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Steenblock of Goodell, Saturday afternoon, April 29, at St. John Lutheran church. Rev. O. Laaveg performed the double-ring ceremony.

Two sprays of yellow giant mums and white spider mums decorated the chancel.

Mrs. Bert Kalkwarf, organist, played the nuptial music and accompanied Mack Gabrielson as he sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride wore a floor-length sheath gown of ivory peau de soie, featuring a chapel train and bell-shaped sleeves trimmed with brocaded flowers. Her veil of silk illusion was held in place by three full-bloom white roses. The single strand of pearls and earrings she wore were a gift of the groom. She carried a cascade of baby yellow roses and white spider mums.

Kathleen Plath of St. Paul, Minn., was maid of honor and Beth Steenblock, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. They wore floor-length sheath dresses of gold lace and maize yellow, styled with empire gold lace trains. They carried baskets of baby yellow roses and white spider mums. Mrs. Russell Beenken was the bride's personal attendant.

Jim Pals of Meservey was best man and Tom Downs of Clarion, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Ushers were Tim Downs of Rowan, brother of the bride, and Gary Steenblock of Kanawha, cousin of the groom. The men wore black suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 150 guests was held in the church parlors with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Trostem of Walters, Minn., brother-in-law and sister of the bride, as host and hostess. Diane Draper registered the guests.

Tony Trostem of Walters, Minn., nephew of the bride, and Darrell Thada of Thornton, cousin of the groom, were gift pages. Susan Potter of Des Moines, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. Dick Smith of Cedar Falls, cousin of the bride, opened and displayed the gifts.

Mrs. Tim Downs of Rowan and Mrs. Jean Steenblock of New Hampton, aunt of the groom, cut and served the wedding cake. Mrs. Eleanor Vye of St. Paul, Minn., aunt of the groom, poured coffee. Rita Door and Jane Hill dipped punch.

Waitresses were Janice Steenblock of Kanawha, cousin of the groom, Mrs. Louie Smith of Britt, Barbara Ahlstrom of Goodell and Phyllis Mosiman.

Clarion, Iowa

The Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa, met in adjourned session at the Court House in Clarion with the following members present: Ed Kennedy, Chairman, Wendell Duitscher, George E. Heard, Walter Weidemann and G. C. Whyte, with the County Auditor in attendance.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Bessie Johnson, Clerk of the District Court, submitted the following letter dated April 24, 1967, addressed to the Hon. Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa c/o County Auditor:

"Gentlemen:

"This letter is for the purpose of calling your attention to the fact that the floor in the vault of the clerk's office is disintegrating. Will you please examine it and then take such action with reference to it as you find to be proper.

"Please make this letter a part of your minutes."

Signed by Bessie Johnson, Clerk of District Court.

The Court House Committee will make an investigation and will report to the Board as soon as possible.

The drainage records were discussed and the following Resolution was introduced and read:

RESOLUTION

Whereas, the McClure Engineering Company of Fort Dodge, Iowa, has been appointed to do an audit of all drainage districts within Wright County, Iowa, and to make a study of all records pertaining thereto.

BE IT RESOLVED that no more reproductions of drainage records will be made and the County Auditor is hereby directed to notify the Mason City Blueprint Company of the Board's action.

Motion by Duitscher, seconded by Weidemann, that the foregoing Resolution be adopted. Upon roll call the vote was as follows: Ayes, Duitscher, Heard, Whyte and Weidemann. Nays, None. Whereupon the Chairman declared the motion carried and the Resolution duly adopted.

Motion by Weidemann, seconded by Whyte, to adjourn. Motion carried.

Ed Kennedy, Chairman
Ethel C. West, County Auditor

May 1, 1967
Clarion, Iowa

The Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa, met in adjourned session at the Court House in Clarion with the following members present: Ed Kennedy, Chairman, Walter Weidemann, George E. Heard and G. C. Whyte, with the County Auditor in attendance. Supervisor Wendell Duitscher was absent.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Seven funeral directors from Wright County met with the Board to discuss ambulance service. Dr. Robert McCool of Clarion was also present. Jack Eyler of Clarion was spokesman for the directors and informed the Board that they are discontinuing ambulance service as of July 1, 1967. The suggestion was made that possibly some arrangement could be made for the fire departments to provide this service — that legislation passed this year permits county boards of supervisors to provide ambulance service. A further suggestion was made that the Board of Supervisors call a meeting of the hospital administrators and directors, mayors and councilmen and fire departments. This matter was later discussed with the County Attorney who has been asked for an interpretation of the law that was passed. This matter will be brought up at a later meeting.

Bill Eagleson and Roger Sumners, representing the Wright County insurance commission, met with the Board for the purpose of going over the county's insurance requirements, prior to the renewal period which begins June 9, 1967. Motion was made by Whyte, seconded by Heard, that the bonds of deputies shall run concurrently with those of the officers and that premiums on all bonds shall be paid for the full term of the bond; also that the Board approve the statement of values for fire insurance policy in the agreed amounts. Motion carried.

Clay Kramer met with the Board and asked to have his lease for the county farm extended for another five years, subject to sale. Inasmuch as the present lease does not expire until the last day of February 1969, this matter will be brought up at a future meeting.

George Cummins, Blue Cross- Blue Shield representative, met with the Board and asked that the County participate in the county employees' health insurance coverage by paying he cost of the individual contract. The Board will consider this and will render its decision on May 15th.

Moton by Weidemann, seconded by Whyte, to approve the 1967 1st quarterly reports of Guy M. Peters, Justice of the Peace in and for Pleasant Township, and Mayor Larson of Eagle Grove. Motion carried.

Motion by Heard, seconded by Weidemann, to authorize the Treasurer to accept $1,464.64 in payment of the 1964 personal taxes of Kennedy Furniture Company of Belmond. Motion carried.

Shift in dividing road taxes would cost this county

Wright county will lose $28,939 in secondary road funds if a proposed change in the state road use tax distribution formula is adopted by the Iowa legislature, according to Willis Kuecker, Wright County Farm Bureau president.

Even though cities and towns would receive an increase under the proposed change, he says, the county would still have a net overall loss of $10,789 in funds.

The proposed legislation — SF 696 — would increase the cities' and towns' share of the fund from 13 to 15 per cent and would decrease the secondary road share from 30 to 28 per cent.

In the state, the total loss to secondary roads would be $2.9 million with 81 counties showing a net loss in funds when the increase for cities and towns is compared with the loss for secondary roads.

Mr. Kuecker says recent road studies show the greatest deficit in needed road funds is in the secondary road system. This deficit, he adds, is expected to increase more rapidly than the other two systems — primary highway and cities' and towns' streets — even under the present division of funds.

The farm leader declares rural areas are already carrying a heavy burden of property taxes to support secondary roads. The levy for secondary roads is rural areas in Wright county of 1966 was 6.403 mills.

"We cannot afford the increase in property taxes that would be necessary for the maintenance of secondary roads and bringing bridges up to the minimum standards if the distribution formula is changed," Mr. Kuecker insists.

He notes, "We are in sympathy with the problems of cities and towns and have no objection to increased funds for their streets from other sources."

Belmond, Meservey-Thornton and CAL Community High Schools

Thomas Carlyle said: "An educated man stands, as it were, in the midst of a boundless arsenal and magazine, filled with all weapons and engines which man's skill has been able to devise from the earliest time."

Applying these words to the American scene they become more important than when written. More than ever before in the world's history, it is the educated man and woman, the trained young people, who will find themselves working and participating members of an exciting society in the next few decades.

If you take advantage of the opportunities offered young people today, you will, as Carlyle indicated, stand in a boundless arsenal, equipped to meet the problems of the future as an individual.

That is why your graduation is so important. You have completed a part of your education and training but it must not stop. You must seek more education and training if you are to find a place for yourself in the era of great technological change now taking place in this country.

We urge you to prepare yourself to the full degree of your ability.

And now we join your family, friends and the entire community in wishing each of you well in whatever endeavor you may plan for the future.

His business is putting to best use the talents of such big bruisers as the pair of gridders who flank him, Ex-Bronco Stars Neal Waddington (left) and Craig Boller. The former Belmond High luminaries are attired for the Cyclone full-scale scrimmages that last weekend and the weekend before climaxed spring gridiron drills at Iowa State, Neal as one of the "Red Shirts" and Craig as one of the "Whites". Waddington, 6-4 and now a "slim" 195 pounds, has posed something of a pleasantly perplexing problem with his variety to talents. Stapleton has used him at quarterback, as a flanker and left end. Boller, a fullback during high school days, has seen his 6-1, 210-lb. physique converted to use as a defensive left tackle. Both are being counted on importantly for varsity duty this coming fall.

Five earn 3rd monograms—

21 Broncos win letters in track

Twenty-one Belmond High track men, plus Manager Jim Boelman, have been designated by Coach Chuch Stalker as letter-winners during the season that ends Saturday with appearance of a six-man Bronco squad in the Class A state meet at Eagle Grove.

Ten of the B-winners are seniors, all but one of whom had previously earned monograms in track It was a third letter for Bob Rise, Dallas Steenblock, Gary Meyers and Lance Campbell.

Lettering for the second time were Tim Roberts, Wayne Smith, Doug Thompsen, Ken Busick and Doug Mennenga. A first-time winner, as a weight man, was Karl Olsen.

—SPORTS—

Only winner of a third letter among the returning athletes is Mike Klinefelter, a junior who was used in a variety of events ranging from low hurdles in the shuttle relay to the 880 as member of the record-breaking two-mile baton team.

Makings of another better than fair two-mile team is represented among the boys returning next year, with Mike Klinefelter, Don Goeman and Don Havens all having run in that relay event during the past season. Greg Steenblock could fill the fourth spot, should he show more improvement than he did during the campaign just ending.

Nelson will be on hand to supply strength in the discus, high jump and hurdle events. Turner also showed promise in the discus and was a point-getter in the mile run.

Hawley and Middleton proved their usefulness in the sprints, while Gallagher, Korthas and Boelman showed potential in the longer sprints through the 440.

Although Dennis Followwill, sophomore pole-vaulter, fell short of lettering he exhibited promise of being a regular point contributor in the seasons he has ahead of him.

Local pin teams post top scores

Three Belmond bowling teams were among nine that qualified for district action in the annual Iowa BPAA (Bowling Proprietors Association of America) tournament last week at Rose Bowl in Mason City. Thirty-six teams bowled, with one out of four advancing. A state handicap team championship will be determined when district winners compete against each other.

Best score in the preliminary tournament at the Rose Bowl was posted by one of the Belmond entries, an excellent 3,219. This was comprised of 2,944 actual pins plus a 275 handicap.

Making up the team were former Belmondite Gary Brothers with a 615, Ed Albers 657, Larry Kinseth 591, Larry Schimp 549 and Mike Armour 532. Albers had a high game of 247, Brothers a 231 and Kinseth a 225.

A gross of 3,051 won a qualifying spot for Jack Lobdell, George Sharp, Larry Schimp, Roger and Larry Kinseth; and a 3,038 did likewise for Larry Kinseth, Larry Schimp, Vern Schmale, Carroll Morris and Fred Lemke, the latter two from Meservey.

4 of Bronc 1st-placers made new NIC records

Belmond High tracksters this week were still viewing disappointedly the handful of bad breaks that were decisive in costing them the North Iowa conference track championship Tuesday of last week at Osage as the host Imps claimed the crown with 74 points to the Broncos' 64.

Failure of Terry Nelson to be up to physical par on account of a leg injury and several unexpected disqualifications in the preliminaries were factors as Coach Fred Schadle's Green Devils upset the defending champs. It was Osage's first NIC title in any sport since the Imps took the track title in 1959.

Four of Belmond's six 1st places were won on record-breaking performances. Nelson bettered the discus mark with his 144-8½ toss; Doug Thompsen's 12-0 in the pole vault (tied by Lake Mills' Steve Pedersen, but won by Doug on least misses) was a new high; and Dallas Steenblock's 2:04.8 was best ever in the 880.

Steenblock joined with Mike Klinefelter, Don Goeman and Gary Meyers in wiping out the old two-mile mark with what was also a new BHS record time of 8:24.8 in the distance relay.

Tim Roberts and Bob Rise got the other Bronco 1sts with 5-8½ in the high jump and :23.7 in the 220.

Other Belmond point-winners were: Dennis Followwill, 4th in the pole vault; Rise, 3rd in the 100; Wayne Smith, 4th in the 220 and 4th in the 180-yard low hurdles; Randy Turner, 4th in the mile run; Meyers, 3rd in the 440; and Goeman 4th in the 880.

The 880-yard relay team of Marc Middleton, Lance Campbell, Roberts and D. Steenblock took 3rd; 4th places went to the 440 team of Smith, Campbell, Roberts and Rise, to the medley quartet of Kevin Gallagher, Middleton, Rick Hawley and Don Havens, and to the mile foursome made up of Middleton, Klinefelter, Stan Korthas and Campbell.

CardPac shows half of high-schoolers college bound

Would you believe that, among typical Iowa high school students mathematics is with fair frequency either the "best-liked" OR the "least-liked" subject they are studying? (Like olives, either you do or you don't.)

That 37 per cent of the seniors have a car of their own? (Some parents would probably just as soon this statistic were forgotten.)

That 32 per cent of the seniors plan to attend a four-year college; 16 per cent have in mind attending a junior college; that only 22 per cent have no intention of furthering their educations (the unaccounted for 20 per cent favor trade or business schooling or continuing their educations in service)?

That working and/or borrowing is an essential part of the planning of a third who are college-bound?

These are some of the things that have been learned through the much discussed CardPac questionnaires that more than 199,250 pupils in grades 7-through-12 in 617 schools filled out last spring for the Iowa Educational Information Center at Iowa City.

Other facts learned were: that only nine per cent of the students' fathers and six per cent of the mothers have college degrees (figures that will take a decided upturn if CardPac questionnaires are still be administered a generation hence).

That almost one-fourth of the mothers work 30 or more hours per week outside the home (double incomes help, with college educations acquiring increasing importance).

That "student x" neither likes nor dislikes studying; that he spends one to four hours weekly on homework; and that his teachers — in his own estimate, at least — view him as an "average" student.

Probably the most striking trend emphasized by the information derived via the CardPacs has to do with the awareness of how important education is becoming. Only a third of the students' fathers acquired so much as a high school diploma; and 40 per cent of the mothers — whereas more than half of the youngsters are determined to complete at least two years of college, and nearly half aspire to a Bachelor's degree or beyond.

All in all, dat ol' debbil "CardPac" — which was pretty thoroughly condemned in some quarters for "nosiness" — is regarded by educators to be achieving some rather important objectives that can be useful on a local level as well as in arriving at some significant educational generalities.

Ralph Van Dusseldorp, director of the Iowa Educational Information Center and also association state superintendent of public instruction, says:

"Perhaps most important, this is information the schools have never had before in such a convenient form. The more information a school has about its pupils, the better equipped the school staff will be in evaluating their own performances and the school atmosphere in general."

Like — if 37 per cent of the seniors are to have cars of their own, do we have enough parking space?

Frank Gates, who was editor of The Belmond Herald 90 years ago, on this equivalent week in in 1877 expressed his disapproval of the prevailing weather by observing that it was guilty of a superfluiosity of "flying air." Which simply goes to suggest that over nearly a century's time there has been no marked improvement in Iowa weather. This spring has certainly been guilty of the same shortcoming.

One change that has come with the years, though, is that the "flying air" of today brings with it "flying farmland" — whereas 90 years ago the soil was tightly tied down with prairie sod for the most part; and such meadowland as HAD been "broken" was not plowed for planting until spring arrived. What Mr. Gates' comments might have been if the "flying air" had been liberally accompanied by top soil from South Dakota, Nebraska and points west, we can only conjecture.

As springs go, however, there is no denying the current example has been distinctly below par. Not only has there been an over abundance of "flying air," but on such rare occasions as the temperature has momentarily risen to a height appropriate to the season, the elements have been so indignant over the development that they've wiped out the oversight with a corrective cold front that has created tornadic mayhem. Which is a heck of a price to pay for a few hours of genuine spring weather.

Donald Kaul, the caustic-penned successor to pompous Harlan Miller as writer of the Des Moines Register's "Over the Coffee" column, summed up the public attitude quite adeptly last week, we thought. Said he, "Another year like this, and spring in Iowa will be cancelled for lack of interest."

Usually we're apportioned a reasonable number of days by mid-May when we can enjoy the relaxing luxury of "spring fever," induced by a warm sun and dulcet breezes that repose the spirit and pleasantly addle the mind. The only kind of "spring fever" noticable in quantity this season has been of the kind that's accompanied by drippy noses and sore throats — which isn't the idea, at all.

There's not much to be done about it at this point. Like so many other kinds of shipments of the present day, while properly placed on order in plenty of time, "Spring, 1967" was clearly "lost in transit." It'll probably wander in, given due time. . . . Don't be too surprised if we have a typical April shower on the 4th of July.

If a long story's to be made short—then shorten it!

A brief editorial in a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor set forth some questions in regard to all-too-familiar remarks that seem invariably self contradictory. We found ourself nodding our head in agreement as the writer asked:

Why . . . when a speaker says, "to make a long story short," does he inevitably prolong his discourse by doing exactly the opposite?

Why . . . after someone solemnly declares, "Now, I don't want to get personal," or "I know it's none of my business," does he proceed to get painfully personal and make the matter his urgent business?

In the same vein, the Monitor interrogator inquires, why — if "it goes with saying" — does the speaker insist upon saying it? And if "it is perfectly obvious," why does lengthy elaboration inevitably follow?

Sums up the Monitor scribe: "And why does half the human race protest, 'I simply haven't a thing to wear,' when — now I won't want to get personal, but it is perfectly obvious that — I mean, it goes without saying that (no pun intended) — their wardrobes are crammed with the latest fashions?"

Yes, why?

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

One question continuously returns, as the legislature focuses its attention on money problems, "Whatever happened to the state's $94 million surplus?"

This is a legitimate question because if Iowans are going to pay higher state taxes to realize property tax reductions, then they have the right to know that the surplus is being used wisely for the benefit of all the people. But there are indications that the Governor's proposals for the use of the surplus seriously threaten our state's future financial wellbeing.

IT IS GENERALLY AGREED that the surplus should be spent on items which have only a one time cost, such as new buildings. If the surplus money is used for recurring expenses, such as for property tax relief, then the legislature would be forced to raise that much money in the next session just to stay even — or scrap the program.

Figures made available within the last few days showed that the governor's budget is using about $40 million of the surplus for programs which require more money, year after year. If the legislature approved this budget, this would mean that the next General Assembly, meeting in 1969, would have to raise $40 million more to continue the same level of spending.

THIS DEFICIT SPENDING HAS resulted in worry to many legislators. As a result, legislators in both the House and Senate have called for the governor's budget for running the state government be cut by some $17 to $20 million a year. Cutting the budget would give greater insurance that the surplus funds would be used on one-shot items, such as building programs at various state institutions.

The reduction in the operating sections of the budget — which would not include any cuts in capital improvements or aid to local communities, schools and counties — would still allow an 18 per cent hike in appropriations. The appropriation increase would still provide enough money to grant necessary pay increases, and to fund some carefully selected, new programs.

THE 18 PER CENT HIKE would more than offset the loss due to inflation. It would mean that state department would have to be more careful in expenditures, and that certain "pet" projects of both officials and legislators could not be fully funded.

The budget cuts could also help provide the money to fund the House-approved school aid plan, which would provide local school districts with about a 300 per cent increase in state aid. This would bring about an average of a 20-mill decrease in real property taxes.

Most Iowans will demand budget reductions when they learn of the Iowa Employment Security Commission figures which show that the state payroll has risen about 1,800 employees between 1965 and the end of 1966.

THE FIGURES SHOWED THAT since 1959 the state payroll has jumped from 25,200 to 34,400, an increase of 9,200 employees. In each of the past four years, the increase has been 1,200 . . . 1,100 . . . 1,600, and the earlier mentioned 1,800. All of this has occurred in a period when Iowa's population is only holding its own.

It is reasonable that new programs require additional workers, but when the population is not growing it does not necessarily mean that established departments should continuously require more help.

THESE ARE SOME OF THE economic problems being raised as the legislature moves into the home stretch and turns its attention to taxes and budgets.

Last Thursday the Lieutenant-Governor honored me by requesting that I preside over the Senate. I was pleased that he would allow me, a freshman legislator, to serve in this responsible job. During the time that I acted as presiding officer, five bills and one concurrent resolution were debated, amended and passed.

PETERSEN TAX PLAN—

The Iowa House gave a preview of its intentions on tax revision during the past week. First it passed the "Petersen plan," named for its chief sponsor, Representative Leroy Petersen of Grimes, under which the state will pay 40 per cent of local school operating costs instead of the present 12 per cent.

Incorporated into the plan are restrictions which are intended to keep local school boards "in line" on the matter of budgets. In effect, the plan would mean that each school district would rely less on local property tax, which would be cushioned by the amount of state aid furnished.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS IN CAUcus have agreed generally on the following methods of raising additional taxes:

— cut the governor's budget (based on the askings of various state departments) by from $30 million to $35 million annually.

—increase the personal income tax to 100 per cent and eliminate the federal income tax deduction, two measures which would raise about $54 million.

— increase corporation income tax from four per cent to six per cent and eliminate the federal income tax deduction, providing an estimated $12 million.

— increase the sales and use taxes to three per cent and put some additional services under the tax, such as auto and farm equipment repairs, laundries and dry cleaning establishments.

THE ADDITIONAL REVENUE, estimated at about $162 million, would be used to finance the Petersen plan; to provide some sales tax credit on each person filing an income tax return and to provide up to a $2,500 exemption on assessed real property valuations.

Meanwhile, Senate Democrats show little enthusiasm for the Petersen plan but have indicated they will support a proposal to provide at least 25 per cent school aid and will pass the revenue measures necessary to provide such relief.

Since the Democrats have only a four-vote majority in the Senate, floor leader Andy Frommelt of Dubuque faces a substantial problem in keeping his troops in line. In the House, only nine of 35 Democrats voted against the Petersen plan.

COMMUNITY COLLEGES—

Part of the legislative financial controversy is what to do about the newly developed area vocational schools and area community colleges. The Senate tackled this one first and after several days' debate approved a bill to appropriate $4.5 million to aid the financially distressed vocational schools and community colleges, which have developed almost overnight.

A key vote was on an amendment offered by Sen. Roger Jepsen (Rep., Davenport) which would have created a new state board to oversee the new area vocational schools and community colleges.

THEY PRESENTLY FALL UNder the domain of the state board of public instruction. The amendment was defeated by 42 to 18.

Perhaps the biggest surprise was an 11th hour amendment giving the governor the power to appoint all nine members of the state board of public instruction. Now, eight members of the board are elected in conventions and the ninth member is named by the governor. The appointments would be subject to confirmation by the Senate. The amendment carried. The bill was then passed by a vote of 56 to 3 and sent to the House.

MERGER—

For years there has been talk of reorganizing state government. The Senate has taken a giant step in this direction with passage of a bill to create a department of social services. If the bill clears the House, this would result in consolidation of the state board of social welfare and the board of control under a full-time director.

One of the big arguments was what to do with the parole board. The Senate finally decided to place the parole board in the new department for administration only. This means the three-member parole board will continue to handle paroles. However, the director of the division of correction would set rules and conditions for the parole agents

As there has been an effort made on the part of some to force a road through our farm and our neighbors' also, we feel constrained to offer a few words in defence and explanation thereof. We have always been willing to contribute our portion toward making and keeping up the public roads; but when it comes to appropriating a strip through the center of the farm to public use, thus depriving us of the conveniences of garden and yards, and grounds around and near our residence, it is far too much. Stadtlander 12, Thompsen 9—

31 seniors won 110 varsity sports letters

Thirty-one seniors who are concluding athletic careers at Belmond Community High school next week were letter winners in one or more sports, reports Athletic Director Jack Steinberg. There remains the possibility that a few of this number could add yet another Honor B to their collection by participating in summer baseball.

Altogether, boys in the Class of '67 accumulated 110 varsity letters, which was 26 more than those in the graduating class a year ago.

Broken arm stopped Rich

Last fall, Stadtlander was chosen North Iowa all-conference quarterback, made the Iowa Daily Press association's 5th all-state team and the Des Moines Register's 6th. Highlighting Thompsen's Bronco career was a new NIC record in the pole vault when he cleared 12 feet last week at Osage.

Stadtlander missed a certain 13th letter when an arm injury suffered when ice skating last winter prompted him to pass up track this spring. He nevertheless wound up with a dozen B's — four in football, three each in basketball and baseball and two in track.

Thompsen A-1 Blocker

Thompsen, disadvantaged by slow speed, made up for his one athletic shortcoming with determination and grit and was important to every team he played on. He was one of the finest blockers any BHS football team has had. His vaulting record gave him a place in NIC annals that he most genuinely deserved. He lettered three times in football, twice each in basketball, baseball and track.

Wayne Smith, Dave Dirks and Gary Meyers each won seven letters during their versatile high school careers.

Smith was twice an all-conference 1st team choice as a backfield man in football. He won two monograms each in football, baseball and track and won a wrestling letter as a senior.

Gary good "little man"

Dirks was an all-conference center in football as a senior and three times lettered in the sport. He also won a pair of B's in both basketball and baseball.

Meyers picked up three letters in track, two apiece in football and basketball. He was an NIC 2nd-team choice at guard after his senior basketball season and held a share in the new conference two-mile relay record as highlights of his career as one of Belmond's best "little fellows."

Les Steenblock and Lance Campbell each won a half dozen monograms. Last fall, Les was all-NIC tackle and an IDPA 5th team all-stater as he lettered a second time in football. He won three wrestling B's and gained the state meet as a senior heavyweight. Les also lettered once in track.

Four won five apiece

Lance divided his six letters between wrestling and track. He was one of the hardest workers on either squad and will be missed in both sports.

Four athletes stacked up five letters apiece: Jim Dickson, Bob Rise, Dallas Steenblock and Tim Roberts.

Jim, despite missing the state meet, was one of the finest matmen BHS has boasted and won four B's in that sport. He also lettered as a defensive end his senior year in football. Rise lettered three times in track and twice in basketball. He was conference 220 champ this spring and one of the Bronco cinder squad's heaviest point-winners.

"Dal" set 880 record

"Dal" Steenblock earned three track monograms and two in football. He was an all-conference 2nd team end in football last fall. In track this spring, he set a new NIC 880 record and contributed importantly to the new loop mark in the two mile relay, He, like Meyers and Rise, qualified for the Class A state track meet and will be running at Eagle Grove this Saturday.

Roberts lettered twice each in track and baseball and once in basketball. He was NIC high jump champion this spring, also won a good many points in the broad jump and was a key member of the sprint relay teams.

Other senior B-men

Three boys won three B's apiece — Earl Kalkwarf, Neil Kalkwarf and Greg Kessler. Earl and Neil each won B's twice in football and once in baseball. Kessler lettered twice in football, also, and once in track.

Athletes who won two varsity letters apiece were: Dave Riedel (w), Ed Dana (fb), Bob Vander Schaaf (basketball), Ken Busick (t), Dave Moe (fb, w), Dennis Finn (fb, w), Fred Whipple (fb, w).

One-time winners were: Mark Brinton (w-mgr.), Bruce Smith (fb), Dennis Dougherty (t), Art Larson (fb), Bob McNutt (w), Tom Swarott (w), Frank Quigley (w), Cra Mennenga (w) and Karl Olsen

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 43 NO. 35 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 8 PAGES THIS SECTION 12 PAGES AND SUPPLEMENT

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Mike Olson, former BHS wrestling coach and assistant in football, would seem to be doing a bit of all right as a mat mentor in the college ranks. Last week the publication Amateur Wrestling News reported that Mike was runner-up in nationwide voting on who rated as "rookie coach of the year."

This recognition was based on the excellent season he had as first-year coach at Upper Iowa university, Fayette.

Only five mat coaches in the entire nation were finalists for the "rookie" honor. It may be recalled that, upon leaving BHS, Mike returned to Wayne (Neb.) State College — his alma mater — to obtain his Master's degree and then remained for a year on the athletic staff there before going to Upper Iowa.

Another Belmondite made the sports news last week, Harold "Bud" Shobe making print with his trusty firing arm. When the Ventura Gun Club held its first handicap shoot of the season, Bud was up there cracking targets with the best of them. In fact, he WAS the best of them; for after tying with three other shooters for best score of 47 out of 50, he succeeded in winning the shoot-off to take top money. Three dozen gunmen participated.

It was sort of embarrassing. . . . You remember the generator borrowed at tornado-time from the Hampton Fire department, that got lost — and the City of Belmond bought a new one to replace it — and the Red Cross subsequently met the $484 cost? It had been assumed that looters had gotten away with the machine. But they didn't.

About a month ago, Joe McLaughlin noticed a piece in a newspaper that Belmond had had to pay for a lost generator. He got to wondering if it could possibly be the one he'd put out of the way in a storage area in his new Skelly Service Station.

The generator had come to light when the old Coburn building was torn down to make additional room for the station. It had been used for emergency lighting down by the highway during the post-tornado black-out; and when no longer needed was simply "tucked away." No looters involved — leaving the question, "What now?"

This was an eventful week in Belmond, from the standpoint of industrial development outlook. The first trailer came off the production line at the Forest City Industries plant. National By-Products started preparations for establishing its collection station here by levelling the land north of town where its facility will be erected. And Nelson Gravel caterpillers have been levelling the old dump grounds for the Belmond Industrial Development corporation to the end of possibly converting that land to a new, useful purpose. . . . So it goes. . . . Belmond on the move.

Among quite a number of persons who wrote Ye Ed following the tornado for details of the disaster and how resulting problems were met was Jeanne Bernhardt, daughter of Extension Director Bob Bernhardt of Clarion. Jeanne is a senior in the St. Mary's School of Nursing at Rochester, Minn., and wanted the information for a school paper.

She's the only one we've heard from, expressing thanks for information passed along.

In a note from her received Monday, she said: "I used every bit of information you sent me and cut out some of the pictures in the papers and included them in my term paper. I received an 'A' on the paper. I'm going to save that paper to put in my scrapbook because I think in future years it's going to be of interest to look back on."

HELLO, WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Minor of Muscatine announce the birth of a baby girl, Annette Kay, on May 18. She weighed 7 lbs. 14 oz. at birth. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Minor of Clarion and Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Hopkey.

Chamber rehires Elliott as aide

Ellis Elliott will be retained as paid, full-time secretary of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce as a result of a vote of that organization at its annual election meeting on Wednesday evening of last week.

Mr. Elliott took up his present duties on May 1 of last year as the first full-time secretary the Chamber has had. It was agreed that the many problems still to be resolved that resulted from the tornado, plus plans for trade development and industrial development make it essential to have someone to serve the Chamber's interests full-time.

Because his duties have been so varied, Mr. Eliott's salary has been paid in part by the city and the Belmond Industrial Development corporation. Whether this arrangement will continue depends on action by those two agencies. The Chamber's fiscal year begins July 1.

Two new Chamber directors were elected to succeed Frank Pollitt and Dale Kessler on the board. They were Erv Redder and Jim O'Brien, the latter being auditor for the Belmond division of Armour Agricultural Chemical company.

The Chamber approved a resolution expressing its desire that the proposed re-division of Iowa road use tax funds be approved by the legislature, which would give cities and towns 15 per cent of the road money for street purposes instead of the present 13 per cent.

New church going into use—

Immanuel church dedication Sunday

Services of dedication for the newly completed house of worship of the Immanuel Reformed church east of town will be held this Sunday, starting at 9:30 a. m. at the old church which the edifice is replacing.

After a brief program there, the congregation and guests will move in a body to the $116,000 church being put into formal use by the ceremonies of the day. The dedicatory message, "What Mean These Stones?", will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. Robert Vander Schaaf.

Regular morning worship will follow the dedication, with Rev. Henry Poppen of Denver, Colo., taking as his sermon topic, "God's Plan for Immanuel." Also having parts in the service will be Rev. George Poppen of St. Anne, Ill., and Rev. James Rozendaal, pastor of the Bethany Reformed church.

Open house, with the senior group of the Reformed Church Youth Fellowship in charge, will be held at the new church from 2:00 to 4:30 p. m. The general public is extended a cordial welcome to attend the open house and inspect the new building.

Evening service will be held at 7:30 p. m., Rev. George Poppen delivering the sermon on the topic, "I Will Build My Church." Rev. Elzo Buschman of Grundy Center will have a part in conducting this service. Those in the audience will then be invited to enjoy a time of refreshment and fellowship.

A special service will be held on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, will have a part in conducting this land, Mich., delivering the sermon, "To Worship or Not to Worship." Rev. Delmar Thiesse of Sheffield will read the Scripture and Rev. Peter Yff of Meservey will offer prayer.

A taped message from Rev. Julius Brandt of Lynden, Wash., who preceded Pastor Vander Schaaf as minister of the church, will be heard; and a letter from Rev. Bruno Bruns of New York, a son of the church, will be read.

Following this service, slides of the entire building program will be shown and the Couples' club will serve a light lunch.

Besides sons of the church who are taking part in the events related to the church dedication — the Reverends Henry and George Poppen, Elso Buschman, Bruno Bruns and Wilbur Daniels — Immanuel Reformed has seen two other former parishoners enter the ministry, Rev. Hans Meinders and Rev. Merle Wessels.

Only nine ministers have served the church in the 83 years of Immanuel Reformed's existence:

Immanuel Reformed church was organized on Sept. 17, 1884, with the charter members numbering 36. Soon afterward another 47 persons became members The first year, services were held in a schoolhouse located on the site of the present church cemetery. A parsonage was built in 1884, but the first small church was not erected until 1886. This first building is still integrated in the structure that has served as a house of worship over all the intervening years.

In 1895 and again in 1912, the church was enlarged. In 1919, a basement was placed under it and in 1941 both church and basement were remodelled and enlarged. The church was extended to the east and a large kitchen added in 1953.

The parsonage was completely remodelled in 1957 and two years later the basement was redecorated and new chancel furniture was purchased.

On June 8, 1964, the congregation voted to build the new sanctuary and ground-breaking ceremonies were held on April 17 of last year.

Members of the building committee were Harold Smith and Jelto Boelman, co-chairmen, Bob Wenzel, Arnold Barkema, Rev. Robert Vander Schaaf, Lambert H. Pals, Don Braner, Mrs. Henry Halfwassen, Mrs. Henry Pals and Mrs. Loren Mennenga.

DELIVERY WAS BELATED, but not a whit less appreciated on that account, when the Eagle Grove Lions club on Wednesday of last week presented to the local club a check for $1,600 to be used for disaster relief purposes. The money was in a fund sponsored by the Eagle Grove club in its community after last fall's tornado. A contingent of 10 local Lions went to Eagle Grove to witness presentation of the check to President Bill Walrod by the host club's president, Paul Phillips, as pictured above. Mr. Walrod pledged that the money will be used in some concrete manner to the Belmond community's benefit for a tornado-related project.

College grant winners named—

Zeiger given Boller scholarship

First winner of the Catherine Marie Boller Scholarship, named in honor of the late Mrs. Anton Boller of Goodell, was identified at Monday evening's Senior Class Night exercises as Larry Zeiger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Zeiger.

This annual grant of $500 is being given by the nine living children of Mrs. Boller, the winner being chosen by a special committee appointed for the purpose.

Larry next fall will be enrolling at Iowa State university, Ames, and plans to major in industrial engineering. As Guidance Counselor Jerald Torgerson announced the various scholarship winners from the BHS Class of '67, he made known that Larry also is the recipient of the $100 scholarship given by Chester P. Luick chapter of the National Honor Society. This was presented by NHS President Doug Thompsen.

Valedictorian Susan Thompson is receiving a special honor scholarship to attend Wartburg college at Waverly, where she will major in elementary education.

Merit scholarships from the University of Iowa, Iowa City, which range in amount from $100 to $340, have been awarded to Ted Berns and Ed Dana. Scholarship grants from Iowa State university at Ames will go to Charles Christenson, Neil Kalkwarf, Dave Moe and Lance Campbell.

3 students given librarian awards

Librarian Aline Burgess at Monday evening's Senior Class Night presented awards to 10 girls who earned them during the past year as volunteer assistant librarians. Rae Jean Willey, a junior, got recognition for having earned a three-year award.

Two-year awards went to Linda Trager, Evelyn Basener and Mariane Hanson; and one-year awards to Rebecca Bell, Rebecca Tiggeman, Velma Basener, Janice Willey, Ione Buseman and Barbara Sorenson.

Election held on Monday—

Mrs. Bob Gray heads Jaycee-Ettes

Mrs Robert Gray was elected to succeed Mrs. Bruce Schroder as president of the Belmond Jaycee-Ettes as the Jaycee auxiliary organization held its annual business meeting Monday night at the Congregational church youth center. Twenty-one members of the group were present, and three visitors.

Others chosen to be installed as new officers in July were: Mrs. Lynn Sorum, vice president; Mrs. Keith Carlson, secretary; and Mrs. Tom Hill, treasurer.

The Jaycee-Ettes have been enjoying an achievement filled year under Mrs. Schroeder's leadership. One of their major undertakings was conduct of the Belmond Community Chest drive for the second consecutive year. The campaign was disastrously interrupted near its outset by the October tornado, but was pursued to as nearly successful a conclusion as the young women could manage.

They presently have as one of their important projects the rehabilitation of park equipment damaged by the storm. They have had the cooperation of Allen Suby's shop students at the high school in returning picnic tables and other items to usefulness and plan to replace some of the equipment that was destroyed.

Directly after the tornado, the Joycee-Ettes conducted a survey in behalf of the city to locate debris-strewn areas that needed most badly to be cleaned up. They also assisted the Red Cross by contacting families that were hard hit by the tornado and explaining to them what assistance the Red Cross had to offer them.

While entertainment facilities such as the theater and bowling alley were still out of operation after the tornado, they put on a dance at the BHS student center for the students.

As one of their important fund-raising projects, they collaborated with the Jaycees in putting on the annual dinner for the Wright County Swine Producers association held here in early spring.

• • • • • • • • •

LINDA SUNTKEN

Salutatorian, Linda Suntken—

Susan Thompson valedictorian, Class of '67

Susan Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Thompson, was the only member of the BHS Class of '67 to achieve straight A's in her scholastic subjects during the second semester — an achievement which was decisive in making her valedictorian of the graduating class.

These two scholars headed an honor roll of 14 seniors who received recognition at last night's commencement exercises for having achieved averages of B or better for their four years in high school.

Others named by Principal Ernest Doeringsfeld were: Ted Berns, Barbara Burt, Charles Christenson, Neil Kalkwarf, Marcia Kelley, Jean McLaughlin, David Moe, Margaret Prince, Roxanne Slining, Doug Thompsen, Linda Thompson and Larry Zeiger.

Another one of these scholars receiving special honors at the time of commencement was Doug Thompsen, who was selected from the Class of '67 to receive the annual Citizenship Award of the Iowa Bar association. This was presented to him by Attorney James Houser at Monday evening's Senior Class Night program. Doug is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Thompsen.

Versatility was the keynote of the high school careers of both of the top scholars of the Class of '67. That each was far from being a "book worm" is clearly proven by the wide scope of their extra-curricular activities.

Miss Thompson played with the concert and marching bands all four years and was a member of instrumental small groups participating in state competition. As a freshman, she was a soloist. She became a member of the National Honor Society as a junior. She was a Future Homemaker for four years and president of the group as a senior.

She belonged to the Drama club four years and played parts in three-act plays in each of the last three. She belonged to the Future Teachers of America from her sophomore year on. She was yearbook editor as a junior and senior and her first two years was on the staff of Hoofbeats, student newspaper.

Linda sang with the concert chorus four years and with vocal small groups her last two years. She, too, was initiated into National Honor Society as a junior. She belonged to the Drama club for four years, was on the Hoofbeats staff as a freshman and sophomore and on the yearbook staff as a junior and senior. She was an FHA member four years and an officer when a sophomore and junior and was a home room officer when a freshman. She belonged to the Girls Recreation association all four years.

Matching the top scholars' list of activities was that of the Citizenship Award winner. Doug was out for football, baseball and track four years and played baseball his first two, winning a total of nine varsity letters. He was a B club member three years and its president as a senior.

He held the distinction of election to the National Honor Society in his sophomore year and was NHS president this past year. He was on the Student Council from his sophomore year on and a class officer his first two years. This past year he has been a member of the Iowa State Student Council cabinet.

Alumni to meet coming Tuesday

Preliminary reports indicate good attendance is in prospect for the biennial meeting of the Belmond High School Alumni association that is planned for next Tuesday at the BHS student center. All alumni, with husbands and wives, will meet there for a reminiscing session between 2:00 and 5:00 p. m.

Highlighting the day will be the 50th reunion of the Class of '17. Mrs. Harry (Eunice Reed) Slining reports that 19 class members and spouses have indicated they will be present, and there was a possibility that the number might still grow during the current week.

Sale of poppies set for Saturday

Mrs. Carroll Bamford and Mrs. Juanita Elphic, co-chairmen of the poppy sale to be conducted here Saturday, believe Belmond should respond more generously than ever to this annual project this year.

Just before Christmas last winter, a station wagon packed to the top with clothing, bedding, toys and other articles for victims of the October tornado came to Belmond to make a brighter Christmas for a number of families here.

All of these gifts were supplied through the Iowa American Legion Auxiliary welfare fund that receives its resources from Poppy Day proceeds. The state share of the proceeds are devoted to "rehabilitation, child welfare, scholarship and education."

Tomson Insurance Agency's office will serve as the sale headquarters Saturday and local Auxiliary members will sell poppies along Main street. Camp Fire Girls will visit the residential sections and local industries.

Disabled veterans at government hospitals and domiciliary centers over the nation make the poppies, and receive payment for each one they turn out. Poppies sold here come from the soldiers' home at Marshalltown.

One-year delay in widening 69

Mayor Robert Misner received word on Tuesday of this week that the state highway project to widen No. 69 through Belmond to four lanes has been dropped from the highway commission's program for this year.

Robert Tutton of Mason City, district engineer for the commission, advised Mayor Misner that difficulty has been experienced in buying up the needed strip of land adjoining Highway 69 on each side.

This was due mainly, he said, to the number of absentee owners involved with whom the right-of-way buyer has had to communicate by mail. This phase of preparation for the project has lagged so much that it has grown too late in the season to let contract for the present year.

Mr. Tutton emphasized that the project is definitely not being dropped, but is merely being postponed for a year. It is hoped, he added, that early letting of contract will permit a prompt start on the job in 1968. It is the present plan to have the contract let by such time as will allow work on the project to start just as soon as frost has left the ground thoroughly enough to make it possible for Highway 107 (the Alexander-Meservey road) to handle the heavy detour traffic without damage.

3 from Belmond reap SCI honors

CEDAR FALLS (Special)—Three Belmond Community High school graduates were among 694 State College of Iowa students honored for scholastic and extra-curricular achievements Wednesday of last week at the SCI All-College Honors Convocation.

All students who achieved scholastic honors or were named to honor societies during the year had their names listed in the Honors Day program distributed at the convocation.

Those from Belmond who won recognition were: Diana Andrews, scholarship honors for a cumulative grade-point average of 3.5 or higher and election to Kappa Delta Pi, national education honor society.

Honor from IHA to Mrs. Woodley

Mrs. Leo Woodley of Clarion was one of only six Heart Fund volunteers from over the entire state being presented with the Distinguished Achievement Medallion of the Iowa Heart Association at that organization's recent Annual Awards Banquet held at Des Moines.

Awards were made for "diligent and devoted work" in behalf of the IHA. Mrs. Woodley was recognized for the key role she has played in helping keep Wright county one of the most outstanding in the state in regard to continuing generous support of the Heart Fund.

AT HONORS CONVOCATION

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Proeger, Jr., attended Honors Convocation held last Wednesday at the men's gym at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls. Their daughter Kathy was among the students honored

Fifteen already on payroll—

Camper plant finishes first unit

First Forester camper to be manufactured at the new local plant of Forest City Industries, Inc., rolled off the assembly line on Tuesday of this week. The model being produced here is an 8½-foot pickup-mounted camper that retails at $1,100. Sometime during June, a 10½-foot model will be added to the plant's output.

Foreman Herb Pals says he now has 12 men on the production line, with another three to start work very soon. Nine of the employees got two weeks of training at the parent plant in Forest City before manufacture was started here on Monday of last week.

By the end of this month he expects the staff to be up to 20 and that two wholly completed units will be produced daily.

Now working at the plant are: Ralph Day of Clarion, George Lightbody of Thornton, Raymond Larsen of Alexander, George Simpson of Rowan, Darwin Schmidt of Meservey, Omar Kelley, Leroy Goeman, Kent Johnson, Lance Campbell, Doug Mennenga and Doug Thompsen. Those starting just as soon as school obligations are out of the way are Paul Watnem of Klemme, Jerry Jenison and Jerry Mennenga.

Foreman Pals explains that the 8½-foot dimension referred to in connection with the camper model now being produced is the floor length. Similarly, the 10½-foot model that will also be built starting approximately the third week in June will have a 2-foot longer floor.

Mr. Pals says that directors and members of the Belmond Industrial Development corporation were most helpful in lending a hand during the two busy weeks when the plant was setting up for operation here, and he is most grateful to them.

He asks that it be made clear that Forest City Industries hires no women for construction work, either here or at Forest City, and does not plan to have women on the production line at any future time.

He also notes that the plant is not open to visitors. He states that an occasion is planned for later in the summer when the public will have an opportunity to inspect the plant, in club groups or otherwise, by making advance arrangements.

Virginia Cook of Kanawha and Richard Wolf of Beaumont, Tex., were married at 7:30 p. m., May 13th, at the Methodist church. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. James P. Russell. The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father.

She chose a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace and silk organza over taffeta. The empire bodice featured a scalloped sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves. The A-line skirt of organza was topped with a full flowing, lace overskirt which swept into an aisle-wide train. Her cathedral veil of imported illusion was caught by a crown of lace and swept to full length of the train.

Carol Talzmann of Omaha, Neb., was matron of honor. Diane Allen and Betty Svenson were bridesmaids. They wore identical floor-length dresses of orange taffeta with lace bodices, sleeves, and A-line skirt and empire waist. Their shoulder-length veils were of orange and headbands of mint green. Each carried a cascade bouquet of white and yellow daisies and pompons.

Connie Cook was flower girl and wore a white A-line dress of taffeta, with lace bodice and floor-length train of lace and matching veil. She carried a basket of orange and white flowers.

Terry Anderson of Lincoln, Neb., was best man. Dick Hemmingsen and Gene Svenson of Omaha were groomsmen. Men in the bridal party wore dark suits and carnation boutonnieres.

Kent Schuver of Garner was ring bearer and carried the rings on a white satin pillow. Candlelighters were Larry and Tommy Cook, brothers of the bride. Ushers were Rudy Scheibel of Forest City and Dick Justice of Manchester.

The chancel was decorated with candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and white and orange pompons. The pews were marked with white satin bows and candelabra.

Mrs. Donald Katuin, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Robert Eekhoff as he sang "Oh! Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt.

The bride's mother chose an olive green three-piece dress with orange accessories. The groom's mother wore a mint green sheath dress, matching lace coat and beige accessories. Each wore a corsage of orange and white carnations.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall, following the ceremony. Mr and Mrs. George Beukema were dining room host and hostess. Janice Cook, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cook of Britt, dipped punch. The wedding cake was cut and served by aunts of the bride and groom. Carol Justice of Manchester, sister of the groom, poured coffee.

Gift pages were Bonnie and Joyce Rapp of Mason City. Mrs. David Ziegler and Mrs. Robert Eckhoff of Kanawha opened and displayed the gifts. Waitresses were Linda Rapp of Clear Lake, Gloria Wood, Ilene Hovey and Bonnie Scheibel of Forest City.

And be renewed in the spirit of your mind. — Eph. 4:23

Small towns may be sick; but we lack the symptoms

When "the experts" take a look at rural America these days, they are voluble in their warnings of the unhappy fate to which we'd better be resigning ourselves. They say, in affect, that communities such as Belmond are doomed — that we'd just as well pull our shroud around us and go peacefully.

Caught in the hopeless slide to the doldrums — we are told — are our business districts, our schools, our churches. . . . Our churches? Somebody's GOT to be wrong.

Certainly our churches have been refusing to play their proper roles as doomed institutions. This weekend, the folks at Immanuel Reformed are dedicating a splendid new building that is clearly intended to serve the spiritual needs of an adequately large group of parishoners for a good many years to come.

In a brief period of time just preceding, St. Olaf Lutheran church to our west similarly dedicated a new Sunday school unit and attractive new narthex (entryway, to you and me), apparently under the delusion that this church body also is destined to fulfill a useful purpose for a long stretch of years into the future.

And the Congregational church (in the throes of achieving new identity as the United Church of Christ) looked back upon 100 years of existence with no perceptible misgivings as to the gloominess of its outlook for the next century.

Where these churches have probably made their mistake is in not conducting sociological surveys to ascertain where they stand. They KNOW that some farm families have been dislocated by mechanized agriculture; that some farmers have been forced to seek new means of livelihood; that there is not th same opportunity for young people to continue in the family occupation of farming that beckoned a generation ago.

Still, an air of confidence clearly prevails that communities such as OURS will retain sufficient stability to preserve the fundamental forces that went into its creation — and its survival to this time.

This optimism seems even to have spread along Main street, where business after business has been making a heavy investment in the future just as if BRIGHTER days lie ahead for Belmond.

Our schools, with the patient and understanding cooperation of the taxpayer, are going about the business of maintaining the strongest possible faculty, the best affordable facilities — and are seemingly assuming that their influence figures to be one of growing, rather than diminishing importance.

Look where you will — most of the motions being made in Belmond signify a deep faith that there is going to be a continuing place for communities such as ours. One gathers that the threats of doom are of much less concern than the necessity of meeting NEW problems with NEW answers that will prove the crepe-hangers WRONG.

Perhaps "the experts" would say we're whistling in the dark; that we are simply being unrealistic and that our fate will catch up with us regardless of our determination that NO SUCH THING SHALL HAPPEN.

With population proliferating as it's been doing between recent census takings, there are a lot of people who are going to have to end up SOMEWHERE. And there must always be a great number who do not view city living (or even suburban) as the best of all possible ways of life.

We don't know how much the experts have thought about THAT. But we personally choose to regard our new or enlarged rural churches, our handsome new store fronts and attractively improved interiors, the willingness to meet the ever rising cost of educating our children the very best we can as just as important "straws in the wind" as the experts' pessimistic auguries.

Small-town America may be taking on something of a new face; but we insist on believing that its basic constitution is strong. And we like to think of such communities as Belmond as proof in fact.

GI Joe's "Stars and Stripes" observes anniversary

When you-know-what happened you-know-where on Oct. 14th last, Belmond servicemen half a world apart were worriedly aware of the mess that had been made of their home town by gazing at Associated Press Wirephotos of the disaster in the Stars and Stripes. It was a typical example of GI Joe's newspaper performing its function of keeping the men in U. S. uniform informed of what's going on back home — and the world over.

We mention this (a little belatedly) because the Stars and Stripes just four weeks ago last Thursday marked its 25th anniversary. Through this quarter century it has performed nobly as the "Unofficial Newspaper of the U. S. Forces in Europe, North Africa and the Middle East."

Actually, its roots go back to Civil War days, when on a one-shot basis it appeared in a number of places at separated times to let the boys in gray know something about the news of the day. During World War I it was revived and served the Armies of General John J. Pershing's American Expeditionary Forces for 71 weeks during the latter part of the conflict.

On April 18, 1942, the publication was revived — the first issue of the four-page weekly being little similar to the present day 24-page tabloid that appears throughout the week and is expanded to 40 pages on Sunday. One noteworthy similarity remains, though; there is not a line of commercial advertising.

One other trait of the paper has remained steadfast. It is jealously guarded against becoming a sounding board for propaganda and a medium of personal publicity for ill-advised officers who might aspire to use it for that purpose.

That its integrity is still determinedly defended was made apparent very recently when the teen-age son of an officer in Europe got into a scrape that did not immediately make the pages of Stars and Stripes. Such an outcry immediately ensued that the "oversight" was quickly corrected.

Famed General George S. Patton once wrote the editors a threatening letter when a Bill Mauldin cartoon, which poked fun at certain niceties that "Old Blood and Guts" insisted upon demanding of his 3rd Army under even the grimmest of combat conditions, adjoined a photo of exhausted fighting men. General Eisenhower got Patton squared away in short order — and efforts to "censor" the Stars and Stripes have been few and far between in the years since intervening.

By supplementing its income with the sale of periodicals, paperback and hardcover books through 50 outlets that have been converted into bookstores, the voice of GI Joe has actually managed to be self-supporting. This is despite the fact that it has grown to a $13 million-a-year operation with nearly 1,800 employees.

It faithfully aims at the objectives that Gen. George C. Marshall set for it in an interview in the very first World War II issue:

"A soldier's newspaper, in these grave times, is more than a morale venture. It is a symbol of the things we are fighting to preserve and spread in this threatened world. It represents the free thought and free expression of a free people."

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

HOUSE TAX BILL—

A solution to the twin problems of the need for greatly increased state aid to schools and lower property taxes has been approved by the House.

Heeding the many years of demands by citizens for lower property taxes, the House passed bills which would result in an average 20-mill reduction in property taxes below the indicated 1968 levy need and boost state aid to schools from the present 13 per cent level to about 41 per cent. Because school costs for next year will be higher, a 6- to 7-mill levy increase generally will be needed, the full 20-mill average reduction will never show up as a result of the Petersen Plan.

THE HOUSE ACTION WAS straight-forward and faced these two facts: One fact is that meaningful reductions in property tax would require more money to be raised in state taxes.

The second fact is that their action does provide a way to do all possible to make sure that property taxes remain as low as possible by shifting school costs from property to state taxes which more accurately reflect economic growth.

The result was an 89-31 vote in favor of a tax increase bill, which would pay for the lower property taxes and high state support for schools.

THE TAX BILL CALLS FOR raising the sales tax from the present two per cent to three per cent and extending it to a few services; increasing the state income tax rate by about one-third and adding a new bracket for taxable income of $5,000 or more; and doubling the corporation income tax from the present four per cent to eight per cent.

As passed, the plan generally conforms with that recommended by the Governor's Tax Study Advisory committee. The committee noted that tax increases should be voted only if property taxes are lowered, which the House action achieves.

There is no doubt in anyone's mind that the shift in taxes from property to sales and income will result in some people paying less and some people paying more. Every effort was made to make the new taxes fair, to widely spreading benefits of the lower property taxes, and to equal spreading of the new taxes.

WHILE THE HOUSE TOOK UP its approach to reducing personal property taxes through exempting the first $5,000 of assessed value, the Senate had another angle. The Senate, with mixed support, voted to abolish the personal property tax on household goods and on livestock.

The separate bills call for the state to make up the $5.3 million lost through repeal of the household goods tax, while no provision was made to replace the $12 million which the tax on livestock brings into the state.

I was critical of the Senate approach and joined three other Senators in the following statement which appeared in the May 18 Journal of the Senate:

"WE VOTED AGAINST SENATE File 768 and Senate File 773 for the following reasons:

"1. We feel strongly that personal property tax relief should be considered as one major tax problem in this state and that a solution to this problem should apply to all personal property.

"2. It is our opinion that such piecemeal repeal bills as these two are proposed strictly for political purposes, not with a sincere objective of providing a sensible solution to the entire problem.

"3. WE WILL VOTE FOR REpeal of the personal property tax on household goods and on livestock when and if the Senate Ways and Means Committee presents us with a bill which will consider the entire question."

The House would pay for its $20 million relief by selectively cutting that much from the Governor's budget.

THE USUAL SERIOUS NATURE of legislative activity was interrupted by a social event involving most legislators and their supporting staff. I was particularly proud, and I know others in my district will be, that Sharon Fuller from Belmond, my legislative secretary, was chosen by the pages to be a reigning princess.

Sharon's popularity with all in the Senate is exceeded only by her responsible work in helping me. While Sharon started as an inexperienced legislative clerk working for a freshman legislator who was unable to help orient her in her Senate duties, she eagerly and pleasantly grasped the multitude of procedures.

This has meant a lot to me because her bill books are accurately posted, our correspondence is current, and together we have proposed and prepared many successful amendments.

IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

SESSION LENGTHENING OUT—

When the 62nd General Assembly convened last Jan. 9, there were promises of cooperation by both Republican and Democrat legislative leaders. But, as usually happens when there is split control of the two houses, the legislative process has slowed down.

Representatives charge that the Senate is passing only one House bill for every three Senate bills that clear the House. Senate Democrats counter that the House still must take action on numerous bills, such as area vocational schools, governmental reorganization, public retirement system, and judicial reform.

The key to adjournment now, however, is what to do about property tax relief. The House is forging ahead with its own plan for more state school aid.

IT WANTS THE STATE TO PROvide 40 per cent of the cost of educating a child instead of the present 12 per cent. But to do this will take an additional $125 million in state revenue.

When the comptroller drafted a budget he set aside $2 million for the cost of this legislative session. He figured the session would be over by June 1. Prospects for adjournment by then appear dim. In all probability the session will cost more than $2 million.

Through April, legislative salaries alone amounted to more than $1.3 million. That includes salaries at $40 a day for legislators, $12 a day for secretaries, plus various amounts for other legislative staff members. It does not include anything for other legislative expenditures, such as printing.

HUGHES HAS HIS SAY—

Gov. Harold Hughes, Democrat, has gone on the offensive. For weeks he kept mum as the lawmakers talked about increasing taxes. He said he wanted a "total tax program" if the legislators revised the state's tax structure, but he was relatively quiet.

Then, when it appeared House Republicans were going to force through a massive tax increase, the governor unloaded at one of his regular news conferences. Reporters were about ready to leave, when the governor said he would like to answer some of the charges that had been made.

Some Republicans, both Representatives and Senators, had suggested slashing the governor's budget request by 10 per cent across-the-board.

"WHY, IT'S FANTASTIC TO think anyone would consider such bone-slashing cuts . . .," Hughes told reporters. He charged that the "Republicans have fired the first cannon ball in the next campaign."

Earlier, Republican State Chairman Robert Ray had claimed that 5,400 people had been added to the state's payroll under Hughes' administrations. Hughes countered by saying actually the number was 6,420. But, he emphasized, 4,652 of these new employees are in board of regents' institutions. highway commission and state safety department.

Not counting the regents, he continued, there has been an increase of fewer than 10 employees in individual state departments.

ON EQUALIZING LEVIES—

The battle on assessments has been a long, tough fight. The latest skirmish started about 10 years ago. It has been fought in the legislature, in the courts and within the tax commission. Even now assessments vary considerably from county to county. But the gap has been closed by quite a degree.

Th latest development is a bill passed by the Senate 48 to 5 to require that all property tax assessments in the state be 27 per cent of actual value. The bill now goes to the House.

OFFICE SPACE NEEDED—

The state is spending about $300,000 a year to rent office space in downtown Des Moines. Although a new $3.5 million state office building is under construction east of the capitol, it will not begin to provide sufficient space for state employees scattered across Des Moines in these leased quarters. For example, the department of public instruction spends $100,000 to rent two floors of a downtown building.

So perhaps it was only natural that state officials jumped at the chance of buying the Valley Bank and Trust building, a 10-story building in the heart of downtown Des Moines.

THE BANK BUILDING NOW houses many federal offices which will be vacated when the new federal building opens. After negotiating with General Services Administration officials, the state put a $400,000 price tag on the property.

A bill was drafted for presentation in both houses of the legislature. It drew considerable opposition in the House as some of the opponents charged it was a "white elephant." But in the end, the House voted its approval of the purchase, 93 to 20. The lower chamber then voted to spend another $100,000 for the repair and remodeling of the building. The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is expected to be approved.

SLOGAN MISFIRES—

Remember the furore early in the session over whether Iowa auto license plates should carry the slogan "beautiful land?" Well, somebody slipped. Although the bill cleared both houses and was signed into law, the measure is defective. It seems the bill goes into effect July 1. Nearly 600,000 pairs of 1968 license plates already have been turned out by the Anamosa reformatory without the "beautiful land" imprint. So the lawmakers probably will decide to chuck it all, for now.

Lots of fees 'way past due—

Delinquent dogs? Just "delinquent" owners

Would you believe that 100 bitches and 521 sons of bitches are residing in Wright county — illegally? That was the number of canines certified on Monday of last week to the county treasurer as having been declared on tax assessment reports by their owners, but on whom no county license fee has been paid.

Actually, one point is stretched a bit above. Lumped in with the s-o-b's are spayed females, who like males require only a $1.00 license, whereas the tax on non-neutered females is $3.00.

Before the fees were turned over to the treasurer for collection (he just adds 'em to property tax bills) the amount owing was $821. With a dollar penalty added to each fee, the delinquent dog owners now owe $1,442.

Dogs must have "shots"

Delinquency in buying county dog tags has been growing year by year since it's been required that every applicant must present certification from a veterinary that his pet has been inoculated against rabies in the past two years. Some of the owners plainly reason that they can avoid the vaccination cost if they just don't buy a tag at the auditor's office and pay the fee — plus penalty — after it's been placed in the treasurer's hands.

That doesn't work out, though. Auditor Ethel West points out that even when the fee and penalty have been paid to the treasurer, the tag must be obtained at her office. And to get it, you STILL have to show that rabies certification.

54 delinquent in Belmond

Fifty-four dog owners in Belmond were delinquent on their fees when the penalties went on. Would you be interested to know who? We'll tell you (an asterisk by the name indicates ownership of an unspayed female):

Edwin Ackerman, Deloris Allen, Bill Beenen, Homer Brinton, Merle Bonte, *Carroll Bamford, George Blau, *Ray Covington, *M. R. "Bob" Cox, *Les Classick (saving that vet's fee, Les?), Don Cleveland, Donald Dorr, Russ Dougherty, Mike Dillon, Vic Fleener, Bob Foss, Alice Flanagan, Tom Geesaman.

If the above list seems to have a certain air of distinction about it, consider that the countywide list of delinquents includes: a county supervisor (Conger Whyte of Goldfield), a deputy sheriff (Bob Shaw), a former county attorney (Bob Maddocks, lately of Clarion) and a former president of the Wright County Taxpayers association (Dr. Oren Emerson, Eagle Grove veterinarian).

Townships lag, too

Ben Prince (four males, three females), Harold Buseman, Lyman Robb, George Smith, Harold Smith, Klaas Steenhard, Howard Tulp, John Wagner and Dennis Wilhelm (2).

Eagle Grove owes a bunch

Apparently, to be without a dog tag is the "in" thing at Eagle Grove. It would take dog-owners in that community $416 to square accounts. At Clarion, fees and penalties owing come to $202 (the Belmond amount is $128).

Is this a situation that prevails EVERYWHERE? Not in Hanco county. Auditor Art Ross says t! treasurer there hasn't been given a list of dog fees to collect in eight years. Hancock has a "special deputy sheriff" who acts as "do catcher" for the county (the towns take care of their own).

The dog catcher is paid $1.50 per hour plus 10 cents per mile and i paid $1.50 for each dog picked up unlicensed (or $1.50 per stop, if more than one's picked up at a single place). The entire cost of the operation runs about $500 annually. The special deputy also investigates a majority of the domestic animal fund claims lodged against the county.

No "delinquent dogs"

Wright county's domestic animal fund — which pays claims for livestock deaths caused by mauradi dogs — is in pretty pitiful shape. Auditor West reports. Even if all dog fees presently delinquent w paid, it is certain to show a big deficit the end of this year, in far as being adequate to meet claims is concerned.

Meanwhile, she views the delinquent dog tax list sympathetically — where the canines are concerned. She says, "There are no delinquent dogs, you know; just delinquent owners."

She was valedictorian of the Meservey-Thornton Community High school Class of '67.

Central College Honor Scholarships are awarded in recognition of outstanding achievement as demonstrated by achievement test scores and rank in class. They are awarded on a one-year basis, renewable yearly if the student maintains at least a "B" average.

Miss Schlichting was a member of the staffs of her school paper and annual, participated in school plays and debate, played on the basketball team and with the band, and sang in the mixed chorus.

She also was drum majorette for the marching band and accompanist for various music groups of her church. The past year she served as senior class president.

Library receives Blewett memorial

The Meservey public library is now using a beautiful walnut bookcase with glass sliding doors presented to them as a memorial to the late Mrs. Harold (Edna Hartfelder) Blewett, a charter member of the Meservey Federated Woman's club.

Memorial cash gifts had been given to the Meservey Federated Woman's club by the Blewett family to be used as a suitable memorial. The late Mrs. Blewett was an avid reader and always greatly interested in education, library work and legislation.

The Meservey Club will place a fitting memorial plate on the bookcase, which is to be used for memorial books only.

The club also plans to place books in the new case as memorials to other deceased club members — Mrs. Wm. (Irma Nissen) Hartfelder, another charter member; Mrs. Dilla E. Hartwig and Mrs. Jeanette Stevens.

A summer reading program for children, entitled "Summer Treasure Trails," will be conducted by the library. In addition, there will be a story hour for tots too young to read. Its time will be announced later.

Fifty books for special use of the library over the summer have been received from the State Traveling Library. A regular book exchange is to take place next Monday, so it is asked that all Traveling Library books now out be returned by Thursday of this week.

Congratulations received by Federated Woman's Club

Federated Woman's club, met at the home of Frieda Schlichting for the annual May Breakfast with 15 members and three visitors, Mrs. Mark Moore and son Chris and Netha Boelman, present.

"Congratulation greetings" for the club winning 3rd prize in the Shell Oil contest in development of Meservey Community Library were sent to the club from Mrs. Ernest Buss, county chairman, from Ernestine Grafton, director of the state traveling library in Des Moines and from Gwendolyn Hall of Hornick. The latter will be remembered as a former Meservey high school teacher.

The club voted to present a book to the Meservey library "In appreciation" for the efforts of Leonard Weimann as auctioneer at the library benefit sale and donating his services.

Dorothy Nordman, librarian encouraged the club members to read five books or more. She brought books from the library that are on the I. F. W. C. reading list. This was the last meeting of this club year and the meetings will resume in September.

Walt Soll elected to advisor group

Walt Soll, owner-operator of the Ben Franklin store, was notified last weekend of his election to a newly organized owners' advisory board that has been set up by the Ben Franklin organization.

It will have headquarters in Minneapolis and will meet periodically to express recommendations relative to store policies and practices, and to suggest merchandise additions. Mr. Soll will represent more than 80 Ben Franklin stores in northern Iowa, southern Minnesota and South Dakota.

Once a year, members of the advisory board will join with eight other regional advisors in Chicago for a national meeting involving representation from the more than 2,400 Ben Franklin stores throughout the country.

Mr. Soll anticipates that his position on the advisory board will require that he be away from his store on quite a few occasions. It will be overseen at those times by his assistant manager, Fred Samuelson.

The local Ben Franklin proprietor brings more than 25 years' experience in the variety store business to his new position. He and Mrs. Soll have conducted their business here for the past six years, coming here from Northwood.

Rides, camp-out held on weekend by Trail Blazers

The Belmond Trail Blazers held an overnight camp-out ride Saturday evening and Sunday morning. They met at a small pasture on the Verle Crafton farm, next to Bingham Park southwest of Rowan. About 46 horses and riders participated.

They rode in "Horse Grove" southwest of Rowan, the first ride starting about 7:00 p. m. Saturday and lasting about an hour and a half. The families then gathered around a campfire to roast wieners and marshmallows and for singing. Later in the evening Arvid Hansen played his accordion for some outdoor square dancing. Bob Avery called the squares.

About midnight the families went to their tents or other sleeping places. At 5:00 a. m., about 20 early risers took another ride before breakfast. At 7:00 a. m. Rev. M. L. Jones came down and conducted a short service for the campers.

Breakfast was eaten and then the Trail Blazers took off again. This ride lasted about two hours.

Ages of the participants ranged from two-year-olds on up. The Rowan members were in charge of cooking pancakes and scrambled eggs for the breakfast.

Baldwin returned to Clarion jail

Gerald Baldwin, who on March 4 of last year was sentenced to 10 years in Fort Madison penitentiary and fined $1,000 and costs on a manslaughter charge, was back in the Wright county jail this week. The charge was the outgrowth of an accident here on Oct. 8, 1965, when Baldwin's car fatally injured 17-year-old Walter Mason.

The defendant had been given a bench parole by Judge Ed J. Kelley, but had been ordered to make regular payments to cover the fine and costs. He had paid $50 immediately following his release, and nothing thereafter.

Baldwin was taken into custody last week at Webster City after Judge Kelley had ordered the issuance of a mittimus for the man to be picked up. Judge Kelley has ruled that Baldwin must serve out the $1,117 still owing at the rate of a day in jail for each $7.50 unless the money is paid to the district court.

He was turned over to Sheriff Bob Blecker last Sunday and has approximately 150 days to spend in jail unless he can round up the necessary funds.

Stage recognition to four seniors

Awards were presented to four senior members of the BHS Thespians club at Monday's Senior Class Night program. They were Susan Thompson and Ed Dana, for acting; Art Larson and Glenda Cunningham, for production.

Lynn Sorum, dramatic director, says that a new system has been adopted by the Thespians for giving recognition to students for participation in dramatics.

It is based on points given for stage appearances and hours of work spent on production assignments. Points may be accumlated during a student's high school career to acquire the necessary total, but the awards will go only to seniors.

The purpose of the new county service is to furnish home help services to families with children, convalescent, aged, acutely or chronically ill, and disabled persons. Its primary function is the maintenance of the household routine and the preservation, or creation, of wholesome family living in times of stress.

Salvation Army relates how it uses Chest funds

Recently a check in the amount of $500 was received by the Salvation Army from the Belmond Community Chest. A portion of these funds are returned to the local treasurer to be distributed for local urgent needs.

There are times when school youngsters need glasses and the family is unable to meet this need. Dental services, school lunches, temporary assistance is given to families, such as groceries, fuel and clothing, who because of no fault of their own, illness or some misfortune leaves them in need of help.

There also are times when stranded families traveling through ask for meals, lodging, or gas for their car so they can continue on their journey.

The people who contribute to the Community Chest for the benefit of such agencies should know something about how the funds are disbursed, believes Birger Justvig, state commander. He says, "The Salvation Army program of service in behalf of the needy is never ending, and the funds raised are used where most required to alleviate suffering and need."

Funds are used for the statewide program, such as the Home and Hospital for Unwed Mothers operated in Des Moines by the Salvation Army. Last year 145 girls were admitted, representing some 44 Iowa counties.

Another worthwhile project is the "Christmas Prison Toy Lift." Last year 413 parcels were mailed out before Christmas, representing 1,006 children who received gifts or toys. These were children of fathers and mothers serving time in the Iowa penal institutions.

The summer camp operated by The Salvation Army brings benefits to hundreds of children, as well as the blind, the deaf and the Golden Agers.

Any community having a disaster such as fire, tornado or flood is urged to call The Salvation Army in Des Moines.

These and many other activities are being carried on by the Salvation Army every day of the year by the 24 corps and the 685 service units located throughout Iowa.

Local police job to George Kaduce

Belmond's councilmen at a special meeting Monday night hired George Kaduce, lately of Owen, Wis., as a new member of the Belmond police force. He will replace Gary Luick, who resigned with the understanding that he had a job with the Waterloo police department.

When Gary took a physical examination as part of the routine for qualifying for his new appointment, it was found that his vision — without glasses — would not meet the required minimum standards and he lost the expected appointment. His plans right now are uncertain.

For the past couple of months, the new policeman has been living here with his brother Joe. He has had railroad employment. Some years ago he gained experience in law enforcement by serving as Alexander's town marshal.

He will start breaking in on the job this weekend, spending time with Chief Ray Thompson and other force members on duty to "learn the ropes."

Library summer program set up

June 1, Thursday of next week, will mark the start of the annual summer reading program at Belmond public library. Mrs. Richard Woodin, the librarian, says a western theme similar to that of a year ago will be followed and that children completing the requirement of reading 15 books will each receive a silver pin of western design.

She adds that a surprise "grab bags" will be given to the youngsters each time one completes the reading of three books. Mrs. Woodin urges those planning to take part in the program to sign up in advance.

Story hours for the younger children will be delayed until vacation Bible schools are over. There will be separate hours for children age four and five and for those age six and seven, starting on June 12 and continuing for four weeks.

Story hours for the younger group of children will be held on Monday afternoons from 2:00 to 3:00 o'clock and for the older group during the same time on Wednesdays. Advance registration is requested by Mrs. Woodin.

She says there will be a special surprise on the last day that each group meets.

MIKE GOWDY APPEARS IN STAGE PRODUCTION

IOWA CITY (special) — Mike Gowdy of Belmond, University of Iowa freshman, was in the cast of the last University of Iowa Theatre production of the season, "The Knight of the Burning Pestle." A comedy written in the early 1600's by Francis Beaumont and John Fletcher, "Knight" ran for a week, through May 20.

"Knight" satirizes the middle-class chivalric romance popular in renaissance England and those play-goers who insisted upon seeing persons like themselves as heroes of incredible stage fictions. The U-of-I production took a cast of 35.

Coxes' grandson escapes death when run over

Mr. and Mrs. Luin Cox on Wednesday of last week learned of a nearly miraculous escape that the day before had saved from death their two-year-old grandson, John Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Olson of Long Beach, Calif.

While the family was at a near-by ocean beach for an outing, John had darted in front of a station wagon driven by a teen-ager and filled with young companions of the driver. The front left wheel passed over the trunk of the tot's body and the rear wheel over his head as he lay face down.

Although the little fellow did suffer two fractures of the skull and a concussion, doctors at the Long Beach hospital where he was taken were amazed that he had survived the accident. Examination brought to light no other fractures and no internal injuries.

For 12 hours, John's condition was regarded "critical;" but he then showed encouraging indications and recovery and by the weekend appeared likely to recover completely, barring unforeseen complications.

It was on a surfaced parking lot that the mishap occurred, making his survival particularly remarkable.

Second life taken in family within only three weeks

Death last Friday struck the family of Mrs. Oscar Laaveg for the second time in less than three weeks when her brother, Norman Larson of Park River, N. D., was killed in a farm tractor accident. On April 29, the mother of Mr. Larson and Mrs. Laaveg, Mrs. Lena Larson of Park River, died.

Mr. Larson, who was 53, was a prominent citizen in his vicinity and had served as a representative from his district during the session of the North Dakota General Assembly which concluded in March.

He was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and had followed the occupation of farming. He leaves his wife and four children.

Rev. and Mrs. Laaveg and son Joel attended the funeral services held at Park River on Monday. Due to the tragedy, Mr. Laaveg was unable to deliver the baccalaureate address for the BHS Class of '67 Sunday evening. Rev. Leo Andersen of St. John Lutheran church took his place on the program.

1st '67 highway death in county kills man of 71

Otto Frederick Becker, 71, of Pomeroy was driving east on Highway 3 a little distance west of Goldfield when his weaving car forced Lloyd Miller of Benson, Minn., off the road.

Miller was going the opopsite direction, but turned around to chase the other car down and got it stopped in Goldfield. He suspected the other driver had been drinking and tried to get him to leave his car.

Becker rolled up his car windows, locked the doors and refused to budge from the auto. He then drove on toward Clarion, while Miller tried without success to find a policeman at Goldfield.

He decided he would have to return to Clarion to alert an officer to Becker's dangerously erratic driving; but as he came to the Rock Island tracks a mile and a half west of the county seat he found the Pomeroy auto demolished by having run into the warning signal situated just south of the tracks.

By the time Deputy Sheriff Bob Shaw arrived at the scene, having been summoned by Miller, the elderly driver had died of severe injuries he had sustained. Deputy Shaw confirmed that Becker had obviously been drinking heavily before the fatal crash that brought his death.
